INTRODUCTION

By BERNARD DARWIN

QUOTATION brings to many people one of the intensest joys of living. If they need any encouragement they have lately received it from the most distinguished quarters Mr Roosevelt quoted Longfellow to Mr. Churchill; Mr. Churchill passed on the quotation to us and subsequently quoted Clough on his own account. Thousands of listeners to that broadcast speech must have experienced the same series of emotions. When the Prime Minister said that there were some lines that he deemed appropriate we sat up rigid, waiting in mingled pleasure and apprehension. How agreeable it would be if we were acquainted with them and approved the choice! How flat and disappointing should they be unknown to us! A moment later we heard 'For though the tired waves, vainly breaking' and sank back in a pleasant agony of relief. We whispered the lines affectionately to ourselves, following the speaker, or even kept a word or two ahead of him in order to show our familiarity with the text. We were if possible more sure than ever that Mr Churchill was the man for our money. He had given his ultimate proofs by flattering our vanity. He had chosen what we knew and what, if we had thought of it, we could have quoted ourselves. This innocent vanity often helps us over the hard places in life; it gives us a warm little glow against the coldness of the world and keeps us snug and happy. It certainly does its full share in the matter of quotations. We are puffed up with pride over those that we know and, a little illogically, we think that everyone else must know them too. As to those which lie outside our line of country we say, with Jowett as pictured by some anonymous genius at Balliol, 'What I don't know isn't knowledge.' Yet here again we are illogical and unreasonable, for we allow ourselves to be annoyed by those who quote from outside our own small preserves. We accuse them in our hearts, as we do other people's children at a party, of 'showing off'. There are some departments of life in which we are ready to strike a bargain of mutual accommodation. The golfer is prepared to listen to his friend's story of missed putts, in which he takes no faintest interest, on the understanding that he may in turn impart his own heart-rending tale, and the bargain is honourably kept by both parties. The same rule does not apply to other people's quotations, which are not merely tedious but wound us in our tenderest spot. And the part played by vanity is perhaps worth pointing out because everybody, when he first plunges adventurously into this great work, ought in justice to the compilers to bear it in mind.

It is safe to say that there is no single reader who will not have a mild grievance or two, both as to what has been put in and what has been left out. In particular he will 'murmur a little sadly' over some favourite that is not there. I, for instance, have a small grievance. William Hepworth Thompson, sometime Master of Trinity, the author of many famous and mordant sayings on which I have been brought up, is represented by but a single one. Can it be, I ask myself, that this is due to the fact that an Oxford Scholar put several of the Master's sayings into his Greek exercise book but attributed them to one Talirantes? Down, base thought! I only mention this momentary and most unworthy suspicion to show other readers the sort of thing they should avoid as they would the very devil. It is not that of which any one of us is fondest that is entitled as of right to a place. As often as he feels ever so slightly aggrieved, the reader should say to himself, if need be over and over again, that this is not a private anthology, but a collection of the quotations which the public knows best. In this fact, moreover, if properly appreciated, there ought to be much comfort. 'My head', said Charles Lamb, 'has not many mansions nor spacious', and is that not true of most of us? If in this book there are a great many quotations that we do not know, there are also a great many that we do. There is that example of Clough with which I began. We may have to admit under cross-examination that we have only a rather vague acquaintance with Clough's poems, but we do know 'Say not the struggle', and there on page so-and-so it is. Both we and the dictionary's compilers are thereupon seen to be persons of taste and discrimination.

If I may be allowed to harp a little longer on this string of vanity, it is rather amusing to fancy the varied reception given to the book by those who are quoted in it. They will consist largely of more or less illustrious shades, and we may picture them looking over one another's pale shoulders at the first copy of the dictionary to reach the asphodel. What jealousies there will be as they compare the number of pages respectively allotted to them! What indignation at finding themselves in such mixed company! Alphabetical order makes strange bedfellows. Dickens and Dibdin must get on capitally and convivially together, but what an ill-assorted couple are Mrs. Humphry Ward and the beloved Artemus of the same name! George Borrow may ask, 'Pray, who is this John Collins Bossidy?' Many readers may incidentally echo his question, and yet no man better merits his niche, for Mr. Bossidy wrote the lines ending 'And the Cabots talk only to God', which have told the whole world of the blue blood of Boston. John Hookham Frere, singing of the mailed lobster clapping his broad wings, must feel his frivolity uncomfortably hushed for a moment by his next-door neighbour, Charles Frohman, on the point of going down with the Lusitania. And apropos of Frere, there rises before me the portentous figure of my great-great-grandfather, Erasmus Darwin. He was thought a vastly fine poet in his day and there is a family legend that he was paid a guinea a line for his too fluent verses. And yet he is deservedly forgotten, while those who parodied him in the Anti-Jacobin attain an equally well-deserved immortality. He was a formidable old gentleman, with something of the Johnson touch, but not without a sense of humour, and I do not think he will be greatly hurt.

The most famous poets must be presumed to be above these petty vanities, though it would be agreeable to think of Horace contemplating his array of columns and saying, 'I told you so—Exegi monumentum'. In any case the number of columns or pages does not constitute the only test. Another is the number of words in each line by which any particular quotation can be identified, and this gives me a chance of making my compliments to the ingenuity and fullness of the index. The searcher need never despair and should he draw blank under 'swings' he is pretty sure to find what he wants under 'roundabouts'. There is a little game to be played (one of the many fascinating games which the reader can devise for himself) by counting the number of 'key words' in each line and working out the average of fame to which any passage is entitled. Even a short time so spent shows unexpected results, likely to spread envy and malice among the shades. It might be imagined that Shakespeare would be an easy winner. It has been said that every drop of the Thames is liquid history and almost every line of certain passages in Shakespeare is solid quotation. Let us fancy that his pre-eminence is challenged, that a sweepstake is suggested, and that he agrees to be judged by 'To be or not to be'. It seems a sufficiently sound choice and is found to produce fifty-five key words in thirty-three lines. All the other poets are ready to give in at once, they cannot stand against such scoring as that and Shakespeare is about to pocket the money when up sidles Mr. Alexander Pope. What, he asks, about that bitter little thing of his which he sent to Mr. Addison? And he proves to be right, for in those two and twenty lines to Atticus there are fifty-two key words. I have not played this game nearly long enough to pronounce Pope the winner. Very likely Shakespeare or someone else can produce a passage with a still higher average, but here at any rate is enough to show that it is a good game and as full of uncertainties as cricket itself.

Though the great poets may wrangle a little amongst themselves, they do not stand in need of anything that the dictionary can do for them. Very different is the case of the small ones, whose whole fame depends upon a single happy line or even a single absurd one. To them exclusion from these pages may virtually mean annihilation, while inclusion makes them only a little lower than the angels. Their anxiety therefore must be pitiful and their joy when they find themselves safe in the haven proportionately great. Sometimes that joy may be short-lived. Think of Mr. Robert Montgomery, who was highly esteemed till the ruthless Macaulay fell upon him. With trembling hand he turns the pages and finds no less than four extracts from 'The Omnipresence of the Deity'. Alas! under his own letter M the traducer is waiting for him, and by a peculiar refinement of cruelty there are quoted no less than five of Lord Macaulay's criticisms on that very poem. This is a sad case, let us take a more cheerful one and still among the M's Thomas Osbert Mordaunt has full recognition as the author of 'Sound, sound the clarion, fill the fife', after having for years had to endure the attribution of his lines to Sir Walter Scott, who in pure innocence put them at the head of a chapter. This to be sure was known already, but whoever heard before the name of the author of 'We don't want to fight', the man who gave the word 'Jingo' to the world? We know that the Great McDermott sang it, but even he may not have known who wrote it, just as Miss Fotheringay did not know who wrote 'The Stranger'. Now G. W. Hunt comes into his kingdom and with him another who helped many thousands of soldiers on their way during the last war. Mr. George H. Powell is fortunately still alive to enjoy the celebrity of 'Pack up your troubles in your old kit bag'. How many thousands, too, have sung 'Wrap me up in my tarpaulin jacket' without realizing that it was by Whyte Melville? To him, however, recognition is of less account. His place was already secure.

Among the utterers of famous sayings some seem to have been more fortunate than others. Lord Westbury, for instance, has always had the rather brutal credit of telling some wretched little attorney to turn the matter over 'in what you are pleased to call your mind', but how many of us knew who first spoke of a 'blazing indiscretion' or called the parks 'the lungs of London'? We may rejoice with all these who, having for years been wronged, have come into their rights at last, but there are others with whom we can only sympathize. They must be contented with the fact that their sayings or their verses have been deemed worth recording, even though their names 'shall be lost for evermore'. The Rugby boy who called his headmaster 'a beast but a just beast' sleeps unknown, while through him Temple lives. He can only enjoy what the dynamiter Zero called 'an anonymous infernal glory'. So do the authors of many admirable limericks, though some of the best are attributed to a living divine of great distinction, who has not disclaimed such juvenile frolics. So again do those who have given us many household words from the advertisement hoardings, the beloved old jingle of 'the Pickwick, the Owl, and the Waverley pen', the alluring alliteration of 'Pink Pills for Pale People'. Let us hope that it is enough for them that they did their duty and sent the sales leaping upward.

So much for the authors without whom this book could never have been. Now for the readers and some of the happy uses to which they will put it. 'Hand me over the Burton's Anatomy', said Captain Shandon, 'and leave me to my abominable devices'. It was Greek and Latin quotations that he sought for his article, but fashion has changed and to-day it would rather be English ones. Here is one of the most obvious purposes for which the dictionary will be used. It cannot accomplish impossibilities. It will not prevent many an honest journalist from referring to 'fresh fields and pastures new' nor from describing a cup-tie as an example of 'Greek meeting Greek'. There is a fine old crusted tradition of misquoting not lightly to be broken and it might almost seem pedantry to deck these ancient friends in their true but unfamiliar colours. Misquoting may even be deemed an amiable weakness, since Dickens in one of his letters misquoted Sam Weller, but here at least is a good chance of avoiding it. There is likewise a chance of replenishing a stock grown somewhat threadbare. 'Well, you're a boss word', exclaimed Jim Pinkerton, when he lighted on 'hebdomadary' in a dictionary. 'Before you're very much older I'll have you in type as long as yourself'. So the hard-pressed writer in turning over these pages may find and note many excellent phrases against future contingencies, whether to give a pleasing touch of erudition or to save the trouble of thinking for himself. These, however, are sordid considerations, and the mind loves rather to dwell on fireside quoting-matches between two friends, each of whom thinks his own visual memory the more accurate. There are certain writers well adapted to this form of contest and among the moderns Conan Doyle must, with all respect to Mr. Wodehouse, be assigned the first place. Sherlock Holmes scholars are both numerous and formidable; they set themselves and demand of others a high standard. It is one very difficult to attain since there often seems no reason why any particular remark should have been made on any particular occasion. This is especially true of Dr. Watson. He was constantly saying that his practice was not very absorbing or that he had an accommodating neighbour, but when did he say which? Even the most learned might by a momentary blunder confuse 'A Case of Identity' with 'The Final Problem'. It would be dry work to plough through all the stories, even though the supreme satisfaction of being right should reward the search. Now a glance at the dictionary will dispose of an argument which would otherwise 'end only with the visit'.

It is incidentally curious and interesting to observe that two authors may each have the same power of inspiring devotion and the competitive spirit, and yet one may be, from the dictionary point of view, infinitely more quotable than the other. Hardly any prose writer, for instance, produces a more fanatical adoration than Miss Austen, and there are doubtless those who can recite pages of her with scarce a slip, but it is perhaps pages rather than sentences that they quote. Mr. Bennet provides an exception, but generally speaking she is not very amenable to the treatment by scissors and paste. George Eliot, if we leave out Mrs. Poyser, a professed wit and coiner of aphorisms, is in much poorer case. Another and a very different writer, Borrow, can rouse us to a frantic pitch of romantic excitement, but it is the whole scene and atmosphere that possess this magic and we cannot take atmosphere to pieces. These are but three examples of writers who do not seem to lend themselves to brief and familiar quotations. They have jewels in plenty, but these form part of a piece of elaborate ornament from which they cannot be detached without irreparable damage. The works of some other writers may by contrast be said to consist of separate stones, each of which needs no setting and can sparkle on its own account. Dickens is an obvious and unique instance. Stevenson, too, has the gift of producing characters such as Prince Florizel and Alan Breck, John Silver and Michael Finsbury, whose words can stand memorable by themselves, apart from context or atmosphere. Those who share my love for Florizel will rejoice to observe that he has had some faithful friend among the compilers. As for Michael I cannot help feeling that he has been rather scurvily used, for 'The Wrong Box' is admirably suited to competition and even learned Judges of the Court of Appeal have been known, all unsuspected by their ignorant auditors, to bandy quotations from it on the Bench. Here, however, I take leave to give any indignant reader a hint. Let him not cry too loudly before he is hurt! It is true that 'nothing like a little judicious levity' is not in the main body of the dictionary, but someone awoke just in time and it is among the addenda.

To return to those friends by the fireside whom I pictured indulging in a heated quoting-match, it may be that they will presently become allies and unite to use the dictionary over a cross-word puzzle. It is hardly too much to say that the setters of these problems should not use a quotation unless it is to be found in the dictionary. A cross-word quotation should not be too simple, but it should be such that that hypothetical personage, the reasonable man, might have heard of it. The solver demands fair play, and the setter who takes a volume of verse at haphazard, finds a word that fits, and substitutes a blank for it, is not playing the game. There are solvers whose standard of sportsmanship is so high that they would as soon allow themselves to cheat at patience as have recourse to a book. We may admire though we cannot emulate this fine austere arrogance. It is the best fun to win unaided, but there is good fun too in ferreting out a quotation. It well repays the arduous of the chase. Moreover a setter of puzzles who oversteps honourable limits should be fought with his own weapons. He has palpably used books and this is an epoch of reprisals. Then let us use books too and hoist him with his own petard.

It is difficult to-day not to deal in warlike metaphors, but perhaps the truest and most perfect use of the dictionary is essentially peaceful. Reviewers are apt to say of a detective story that it is 'impossible to lay it down till the last page is reached'. It is rather for books of reference that such praise should be reserved. No others are comparable with them for the purposes of eternal browsing. They suggest all manner of lovely, lazy things, in particular the watching of a cricket match on a sunshiny day. We have only dropped in for half an hour, but the temptation to see just one more over before we go is irresistible. Evening draws on, the shadows of the fielders lengthen on the grass, nothing much is happening, a draw becomes every minute more inevitable, and still we cannot tear ourselves away. So it is with works of reference, even with the most arid, even with Bradshaw, whose vocabulary, as Sherlock Holmes remarked, is 'nervous and terse but limited'. Over the very next page of Bradshaw there may be hidden a Framlingham Admiral; adventure may always be in wait a little farther down the line. So, but a thousand times more so, is some exciting treasure-trove awaiting us over the next page of this dictionary. What it is we cannot guess, but it is for ever calling in our ears to turn over just one more. We have only taken down the book to look up one special passage, but it is likely enough that we shall never get so far. Long before we have reached the appropriate letter we shall have been waylaid by an earlier one, and shall have clean forgotten our original quest. Nor is this all, for, if our mood changes as we browse, it is so fatally, beautifully easy to change our pasture. We can play a game akin to that 'dabbing' cricket, so popular in private-school days, in which the batsman's destiny depended or was supposed to depend—for we were not always honest—on a pencil delivered with eyes tightly shut. We can close the book and open it again at random, sure of something that shall set us off again on a fresh and enchanting voyage of not too strenuous discovery.

Under this enchantment I have fallen deep. I have pored over the proofs so that only by a supreme effort of will could I lay them down and embark on the impertinent task of trying to write about them. I now send them back to their home with a sense of privation and loneliness. Here seems to me a great book. Then

Deem it not all a too presumptuous folly,

THE COMPILERS TO THE READER

'Classical quotation', said Johnson, 'is the parole of literary men all over the world.' Although this is no longer strictly true the habit of quoting, both in speech and writing, has steadily increased since his day, and Johnson would undoubtedly be surprised to find here eight and a half pages of his own work that have become part of the parole of the reading public. Small dictionaries of quotations have been published for many years—in 1799 D. E. Macdonnell brought out a Dictionary of Quotations chiefly from Latin and French translated into English—and during comparatively recent years several large works of American editorship have been produced. In this book the Oxford Press publishes what it is hoped will be a valuable addition to the Oxford Books of Reference already in existence.

The work remained in contemplation for some time before it first began to take shape under the general editorship of Miss Alice Mary Smyth, who worked, for purposes of selection, with a small committee formed of members of the Press itself. The existing dictionaries were taken as a foundation and the entries, pasted up onto separate cards, considered individually for rejection or inclusion. With these as a basis the most important authors were again dealt with either by the expert, or in committee, or by both. The Press is indebted for a great deal of work to the late Charles Fletcher, who among others made the original selections from Shakespeare, Milton, Pope, Tennyson, and Dryden: among those who dealt with single authors were Lady Charnwood and Mr. Bernard Darwin, who did the Dickens entries, Professor Dewar the Burns, Professor Ernest de Selincourt the Wordsworth: Mr. Colin Ellis did the Surtees, Sterne and Whyte Melville, Mr. E. Latham contributed the French quotations, and Mr. Harold Child made many valuable suggestions. A great many people, whom it is impossible to name individually, sent in one or more quotations.

During the whole work of selection a great effort was made to restrict the entries to actual current quotations and not to include phrases which the various editors or contributors believed to be quotable or wanted to be quoted: the work is primarily intended to be a dictionary of familiar quotations and not an anthology of every author good and bad; popularity and not merit being the password to inclusion. The selections from the Bible and Shakespeare were the most difficult because a great part of both are familiar to most people; but as concordances of both the Bible and Shakespeare are in print the quotations here included are meant to be the most well known where all is well known.

It has been found very difficult to put into precise words the standard of familiarity that has been aimed at or to imagine one man who might be asked whether or not the particular words were known to him. But it is believed that any of the quotations here printed might be found at some time in one or other of the leading articles of the daily and weekly papers with their wide range of matter—political, literary, descriptive, humorous, &c. So much for the very elastic standard to which the quotations conform. No one person having been imagined to whom everything included in this book would be familiar, the committee have tried to keep in mind that a number of different kinds of readers would be likely to use the book. these are the 'professionals', such as journalists, writers, public speakers, &c ; the crossword devotee, since this form of intellectual amusement appears to have come to stay, the man who has in his mind either a few or many half-completed or unidentified quotations which he would like to complete or verify; and (since, as Emerson wrote—'By necessity, by proclivity—and by delight, we all quote') everyone who has found joy and beauty in the words of the writers and wishes to renew that pleasure by using the words again—he whom perhaps Johnson meant by 'the literary man'. The book is not intended as a substitute for the complete works nor as an excuse to anyone not to drink deep of the Pierian spring. But it is hoped that the lover of Dickens, for instance, may find pleasure in reading through his entries and that even his detractors will have to admit how good he is in quotation: that the man who has always regarded Milton as a heavy and dull poet may here come across some lovely line and be inclined to read Paradise Lost. If the book serves to start people reading the poets it will have accomplished a great deal besides being a work of reference.

It is interesting to observe that the following are the most quoted writers (arranged in the order in which they appear here). Browning, Byron, Cowper, Dickens, Johnson, Kipling, Milton, Shakespeare, Shelley, Tennyson, Wordsworth, the Bible, and the Book of Common Prayer. On the other hand, certain authors of accepted merit or favour such as Trollope, Henry James, Jane Austen, and P. G. Wodehouse have none of them as much as one page to their credit: it would seem that their charm depends on character and atmosphere and that quotability is no real criterion of either popularity or merit in a writer.

The arrangement of authors is alphabetical and not chronological. The Book of Common Prayer and the Bible come after this alphabetical arrangement, followed immediately by the Anonymous and Miscellaneous entries. After this come the Latin and Greek sections and then the foreign quotations. A short section of Addenda has been added containing a few quotations that have become familiar since the first part was printed off and certain omissions that have been noted in time for inclusion. Under each author the arrangement of the extracts is alphabetical according to the title of the poem or work from which the quotation is taken. When authors have written both poetry and prose the poetry is given first. The text is, wherever possible, the acknowledged authoritative text and the source of the quotation is always given as fully as possible. Some quotations have had to be omitted because every effort to trace their source has failed—e.g. 'Home, James, and don't spare the horses'. Proverbs and phrases are not included, since these have been dealt with fully in the Oxford Dictionary of Proverbs and Phrases.

It is to be expected that almost every reader will be shocked by what he considers obvious omissions. Should the reader's indignation be strong enough to prompt him to write pointing these out it is to be hoped that he will give the source of all his suggestions. It is not possible to give all the quotations familiar to every reader; almost all households have favourite books and authors from whom they frequently quote. to one family Stevenson is known and quoted by heart, to another the whole of the Beggar's Opera is as familiar as the extracts given here. Nor must the user expect to find here every quotation given in crossword puzzles: compilers of these often seek to be obscure rather than familiar.

Latin is no longer a normal part of the language of educated people as it was in the eighteenth century; but from that age certain classical phrases have survived to become part of contemporary speech and writing. It is these 'survivals' that have been included here together with a few of the sayings or writings of the Schoolmen and early theologians. In many places more of the context of the actual familiar phrase has been given than is strictly necessary, but this has been a practice throughout the book, and one which it was thought would add to its value and charm. The translations are usually taken from the works of the better-known translators. Some one or two of the Greek quotations may be known to the general reader in their English versions—e.g. 'The half is better than the whole' or 'Call no man happy till he dies'; but no apology is needed for the inclusion of two pages of matter most of which cannot pretend to be familiar to any but classical scholars.

The foreign quotations are not intended to satisfy the foreigner. they include such things as have become part of the speech and writings of English-speaking people either in their own language, such as 'les enfants terribles', or in an English translation, such as 'We will not go to Canossa'. As hardly any Spanish and no Russian or Swedish quotations are familiar to English readers most of these have been given only in translation.

The index occupies approximately one-third of the total bulk of the book. A separate note will be found at the beginning of the index explaining the arrangement that has been adopted. Of the Latin quotations only those phrases that are familiar to the reader have been indexed, the unfamiliar context has not. In the English translations much the same principle has been followed: where the quotation is known to the reader in its English equivalent it has been indexed; where only the Latin is familiar and a translation is merely supplied to assist the reader it is left unindexed. A great deal of care has been spent on the index and the compilers look at it with some pride, believing that unless the searcher has to say 'Iddy tiddy' for every important word in the quotation he is looking for he will be able to find it; if, like Pig-wig (in Beatrix Potter's Pigling Bland), he has only forgotten some of the words, the index is full enough for him to trace it.

As some grave Tyrian trader, from the sea,
 Descried at sunrise an emerging prow
 Lifting the cool-hair'd creepers stealthily,
 The fringes of a southward-facing brow
 Among the Aegean isles,
 And saw the merry Grecian coaster come,

Freighted with amber grapes, and Chian wine,
 Green bursting figs, and tunnies steep'd in brine,
 And knew the intruders on his ancient home,

The young light-hearted Masters of the waves,
 And snatch'd his rudder, and shook out more sail,
 And day and night held on indignantly
 Oe'r the blue Midland waters with the gale, Betwixt the Syrtis and soft Sicily,
 To where the Atlantic raves
 Outside the Western Straits, and unbent sails
 There, where down cloudy cliffs, through sheets of foam,
 Shy traffickers, the dark Iberians come;
 And on the beach undid his corded bales

Essays on Criticism, Second Series, Shelley [Quoting his own sentence in his essay on Byron, Essays on Criticism, Second Series]

The difference between genuine poetry and the poetry of Dryden, Pope, and all their school, is briefly this their poetry is conceived and composed in their wits, genuine poetry is conceived and composed in the soul Ib Thomas Gray

Our society distributes itself into Barbarians, Philistines, and Populace, and America is just ourselves, with the Barbarians quite left out, and the Populace nearly Culture and Anarchy, preface

The great aim of culture [is] the aim of setting ourselves to ascertain what perfection is and to make it prevail Ib p 12

The pursuit of perfection, then, is the pursuit of sweetness and light He who works for sweetness and light united, works to make reason and the will of God prevail. Ib p 47

The men of culture are the true apostles of equality
Ib p 49

One has often wondered whether upon the whole earth there is anything so unintelligent, so unapt to perceive how the world is really going, as an ordinary young Englishman of our upper class
Ib pp 70-1

For this [Middle] class we have a designation which now has become pretty well known, and which we may as well still keep for them, the designation of Philistines Ib p 97

But that vast portion, lastly, of the working-class which is now issuing from its hiding-place to assert an Englishman's heaven-born privilege of doing as he likes, and is beginning to perplex us by marching where it likes, meeting where it likes, bawling what it likes, breaking what it likes—to this vast residuum we may with great propriety give the name of Populace

Thus we have got three distinct terms, Barbarians, Philistines, Populace, to denote roughly the three great classes into which our society is divided.

Hebraism and Hellenism—between these two points

The grand, old, fortifying, classical curriculum

Friendship's Garland

The translator of Homer should above all be penetrated by a sense of four qualities of his author—that he is eminently rapid, that he is eminently plain and direct both in the evolution of his thought and in the expression of it, that is, both in his syntax and in his words, that he is eminently plain and direct in the substance of his thought, that is, in his matter and ideas, and, finally, that he is eminently noble On Translating Homer, 1

Wordsworth says somewhere that wherever Virgil seems to have composed 'with his eye on the object', Dryden fails to render him. Homer invariably composes 'with his eye on the object', whether the object be a moral or a material one. Pope composes with his eye on his style, into which he translates his object, whatever it is Ib

He [the Translator] will find one English book and one only, where, as in the Iliad itself, perfect plainness of speech is allied with perfect nobleness, and that book is the Bible Ib 11

Nothing has raised more questioning among my critics than these words—noble, the grand style. I think it will be found that the grand style arises, in poetry, when a noble nature, poetically gifted, treats with simplicity or with severity a serious subject Ib Last Words

The true meaning of religion is thus not simply morality, but morality touched by emotion

Ib ch 1, § 2

Conduct is three-fourths of our life and its largest concern Ib ch 1, § 3

Let us put into their 'Eternal' and 'God' no more science than they [the Hebrew writers] did—the enduring power, not ourselves, which makes for righteousness Ib ch 1, § 5

For it is what we call the Time-Spirit that is sapping the proof from miracles. The human mind, as its experience widens, is turning away from them Ib ch v, § 3

What is called 'orthodox divinity' is, in fact, an immense literary misapprehension Ib ch vi, § 3

The eternal not ourselves which makes for righteousness Ib ch viii, § 1

But there remains the question what righteousness really is. The method and secret and sweet reasonableness of Jesus Ib ch xii, § 2

For the total man, therefore, the truer conception of God is as 'the Eternal Power, not ourselves, by which all things fulfil the law of their being'

What is truth? said jesting Pilate, and would not stay for an answer
Ib 1 Of Truth

A mixture of a lie doth ever add pleasure
Ib

It is not the lie that passeth through the mind, but the lie that sinketh in, and setteth in it, that doth the hurt
Ib

The inquiry of truth, which is the love-making, or wooing of it, the knowledge of truth, which is the presence of it, and the belief of truth, which is the enjoying of it, is the sovereign good of human nature
Ib

Certainly, it is heaven upon earth, to have a man's mind turn upon the poles of truth
Ib

Men fear death as children fear to go in the dark, and as that natural fear in children is increased with tales, so is the other
Ib 2 Of Death

There is no passion in the mind of man so weak, but it mates and masters the fear of death Revenge triumphs over death, love slights it, honour aspereth to it, grief flieth to it
Ib

It is as natural to die as to be born, and to a little infant, perhaps, the one is as painful as the other

It has been well said that 'the arch-flatterer with whom all the petty flatterers have intelligence is a man's self'
Ib

Men in great place are thrice servants servants of the sovereign or state, servants of fame, and servants of business.
Ib 11. Of Great Place

It is a strange desire to seek power and to lose liberty
Ib

The rising unto place is laborious, and by pains men come to greater pains, and it is sometimes base, and by indignities men come to dignities The standing is slippery, and the regress is either a downfall, or at least an eclipse
Ib.

Set it down to thyself, as well to create good precedents as to follow them
Ib

Severity breedeth fear, but roughness breedeth hate Even reproofs from authority ought to be grave, and not taunting
Ib

As in nature things move violently to their place and calmly in their place, so virtue in ambition is violent, in authority settled and calm
Ib

All rising to great place is by a winding stair
Ib

There is in human nature generally more of the fool than of the wise
Ib 12 Boldness

Ib

In civil business, what first? boldness, what second and third? boldness and yet boldness is a child of ignorance and baseness
Ib

Boldness is an ill keeper of promise
Ib

Mahomet made the people believe that he would call a hill to him, and from the top of it offer up his prayers for the observers of his law. The people assembled. Mahomet called the hill to come to him again and again, and when the hill stood still, he was never a whit abashed, but said, 'If the hill will not come to Mahomet, Mahomet will go to the hill.'
Essays 12 Boldness

The inclination to goodness is imprinted deeply in the nature of man, inasmuch, that if it issue not towards men, it will take unto other living creatures
Ib 13 Goodness, and Goodness of Nature

If a man be gracious and courteous to strangers, it shows he is a citizen of the world
Ib

It is a reverend thing to see an ancient castle or building not in decay

God never wrought miracle to convince atheism, because his ordinary works convince it
Ib

A little philosophy inclineth man's mind to atheism, but depth in philosophy bringeth men's minds about to religion.
Ib

They that deny a God destroy man's nobility, for certainly man is of kin to the beasts by his body, and, if he be not of kin to God by his spirit, he is a base and ignoble creature
Ib

It were better to have no opinion of God at all than such an opinion as is unworthy of him, for the one is unbelief, the other is contumely
Ib 17 Of Superstition

There is a superstition in avoiding superstition
Ib

Travel, in the younger sort, is a part of education, in the elder, a part of experience. He that travelleth into a country before he hath some entrance into the language, goeth to school, and not to travel
Ib 18 Of Travel

Let diaries, therefore, be brought in use.
Ib

It is a miserable state of mind to have few things to desire and many things to fear
Ib 19 Of Empire

Books will speak plain when counsellors blanch
Ib 20 Of Counsel

There be that can pack the cards and yet cannot play well, so there are some that are good in canvasses and factions, that are otherwise weak men
Ib 22 Of Cunning

In things that are tender and unpleasing, it is good to break the ice by some whose words are of less weight, and to reserve the more weighty voice to come in as by chance.
Ib

I knew one that when he wrote a letter he would put that which was most material in the postscript, as if it had been a bymatter
Ib

Nothing doth more hurt in a state than that cunning men pass for wise
Ib

Be so true to thyself as thou be not false to others
Ib 23 Of Wisdom for a Man's Self

It is a poor centre of a man's actions, himself
Ib

It is the nature of extreme self-lovers, as they will set a house on fire, and it were but to roast their eggs
Ib

It is the wisdom of the crocodiles, that shed tears when they would devour
Ib

As the births of living creatures at first are ill-shapen, so are all innovations, which are the births of time
Ib 24 Of Innovations

He that will not apply new remedies must expect new evils, for time is the greatest innovator
Ib

I knew a wise man that had it for a by-word, when he saw men hasten to a conclusion, 'Stay a little, that we may make an end the sooner.'
Ib 25 Of Despatch

To choose time is to save time
Ib

The French are wiser than they seem, and the Spaniards seem wiser than they are Ib 26 Of Seeming Wise

It had been hard for him that spake it to have put more truth and untruth together, in a few words, than in that speech 'Whosoever is delighted in solitude is either a wild beast, or a god.'
Ib 27 Of Friendship

A crowd is not company, and faces are but a gallery of pictures, and talk but a tinkling cymbal where there is no love
Ib

It [friendship] redoubleth joys, and cutteth griefs in halves
Ib

Cure the disease and kill the patient

WALTER BAGEHOT

1826-1877

The mystic reverence, the religious allegiance, which are essential to a true monarchy, are imaginative sentiments that no legislature can manufacture in any people

The English Constitution Ch 1 The Cabinet

The Crown is, according to the saying, the 'fountain of honour', but the Treasury is the spring of business. Ib

It has been said that England invented the phrase, 'Her Majesty's Opposition', that it was the first government which made a criticism of administration as much a part of the polity as administration itself. This critical opposition is the consequence of cabinet government Ib

The Times has made many ministries. Ib

We turned out the Quaker (Lord Aberdeen), and put in the pugilist (Lord Palmerston). (Change of Ministry, 1855) Ib

The best reason why Monarchy is a strong government is, that it is an intelligible government. The mass of mankind understand it, and they hardly anywhere in the world understand any other

Ib Ch 2 The Monarchy

The characteristic of the English Monarchy is that it retains the feelings by which the heroic kings governed their rude age, and has added the feelings by which the constitutions of later Greece ruled in more refined ages Ib

Women—one half the human race at least—care fifty times more for a marriage than a ministry Ib

Royalty is a government in which the attention of the nation is concentrated on one person doing interesting actions. A Republic is a government in which that attention is divided between many, who are all doing uninteresting actions. Accordingly, so long as the human heart is strong and the human reason weak, Royalty will be strong because it appeals to diffused feeling, and Republics weak because they appeal to the understanding Ib

An Englishman whose heart is in a matter is not easily baffled Ib

Throughout the greater part of his life George III was a kind of 'consecrated obstruction'. Ib

But of all nations in the world the English are perhaps the least a nation of pure philosophers Ib

The order of nobility is of great use, too, not only in what it creates, but in what it prevents. It prevents the rule of wealth—the religion of gold. This is the obvious and natural idol of the Anglo-Saxon Ib Ch 4 The House of Lords

The House of Peers has never been a House where the most important peers were most important. Ib

A severe though not unfriendly critic of our institutions said that 'the cure for admiring the House of Lords was to go and look at it' Ib

Nations touch at their summits Ib

Years ago Mr Disraeli called Sir Robert Peel's Ministry—the last Conservative Ministry that had real power—an 'organized hypocrisy', so much did the ideas of its 'head' differ from the sensations of its 'tail' Ib

It has been said, not truly, but with a possible approximation to truth, 'that in 1802 every hereditary monarch was insane' Ib

Queen Anne was one of the smallest people ever set in a great place Ib Ch 7 Checks and Balances

The soldier—that is, the great soldier—of to-day is not a romantic animal, dashing at forlorn hopes, animated by frantic sentiment, full of fancies as to a love-lady or a sovereign, but a quiet, grave man, busied in charts, exact in sums, master of the art of tactics, occupied in trivial detail, thinking, as the Duke of Wellington was said to do, most of the shoes of his soldiers, despising all manner of éclat and eloquence, perhaps, like Count Moltke, 'silent in seven languages' Ib

The most melancholy of human reflections, perhaps, is that, on the whole, it is a question whether the benevolence of mankind does most good or harm Physics and Politics, No. v.

Tiger! Tiger! burning bright

In the forests of the night,

What immortal hand or eye

Could frame thy fearful symmetry?

In what distant deeps or skies
Burnt the fire of thine eyes?
On what wings dare he aspire?
What the hand dare seize the fire?

And what shoulder, and what art,
Could twist the sinews of thy heart?
And when thy heart began to beat,
What dread hand? and what dread feet?

What the hammer? What the chain?
In what furnace was thy brain?
What the anvil? what dread grasp Dare its deadly terrors clasp?

When the stars threw down their spears,
And water'd heaven with their tears,
Did he smile his work to see?
Did he who made the Lamb make thee?

So I piped he wept to hear

'Drop thy pipe, thy happy pipe,
Sing thy songs of happy cheer
So I sang the same again,
While he wept with joy to hear

'Piper, sit thee down and write
In a book, that all may read'
So he vanish'd from my sight,
And I pluck'd a hollow reed.

And I made a rural pen,
And I stain'd the water clear,
And I wrote my happy songs

Nor stayed to hear him sing
His song of love —

I love all beauteous things,
I seek and adore them;
God hath no better praise,
And man in his hasty days
Is honoured for them.

I too will something make
And joy in the making,
Altho' tomorrow it seem Like the empty words of a dream Remembered on waking

I Love All Beauteous Things

I made another song,
In likeness of my love
And sang it all day long,
Around, beneath, above
I told my secret out,

That none might be in doubt

Since to be loved endures,
To love is wise
Earth hath no good but yours,
Brave, joyful eyes
Earth hath no sin but thine,
Dull eye of scorn
O'er thee the sun doth pine
And angels mourn Since to be Loved Endures

So sweet love seemed that April morn,
When first we kissed beside the thorn,
So strangely sweet, it was not strange
We thought that love could never change

But I can tell—let truth be told—
That love will change in growing old,
Though day by day is nought to see,
So delicate his motions be.
So Sweet Love Seemed

I wonder, bathed in joy complete,
How love so young could be so sweet. Ib

Back on budding boughs
Come birds, to court and pair,
Whose rival amorous vows
Amaze the scented air. Spring, ode 1

And country life I praise,
And lead, because I find
The philosophic mind
Can take no middle ways. Ib 7

With ecstasies so sweet
As none can even guess,
Who walk not with the feet
Of joy in idleness. Ib 10

Spring goeth all in white,
Crowned with milk-white may.
In fleecy flocks of light
O'er heaven the white clouds stray

White butterflies in the air,
White daisies prank the ground:
The cherry and hoary pear
Scatter their snow around.
Spring Goeth All in White

There is a hill beside the silver Thames, Shady with birch and beech and odorous pine.
And brilliant underfoot with thousand gems
Steeply the thickets to his floods decline
There is a Hill.

Nor thus the only time
Thou shalt set love to rhyme
Thou Didst Dehght My Eyes

Fight, to be found fighting nor far away
Deem, nor strange thy doom.
Like this sorrow 'twill come,
And the day will be today.
Weep Not To-Day.

When Death to either shall come,—
I pray it be first to me,—
Be happy as ever at home,
If so, as I wish, it be Possess thy heart, my own,
And sing to the child on thy knee,
Or read to thyself alone
The songs that I made for thee
When Death to Either Shall Come.

When first we met we did not guess
That Love would prove so hard a master
When First We Met We Did Not Guess

When June is come, then all the day

I dare, without usurpation, assume the honourable style of a Christian Religio Medici, pt 1, § 1

At my devotion I love to use the civility of my knee, my hat, and hand Ib § 3

I could never divide my self from any man upon the difference of an opinion, or be angry with his judgment for not agreeing with me in that, from which perhaps within a few days I should dissent my self Ib § 6

Many . . have too rashly charged the troops of error, and remain as trophies unto the enemies of truth

A man may be in as just possession of truth as of a city, and yet be forced to surrender Ib

Me thinks there be not impossibilities enough in Religion for an active faith Ib § 9

Who can speak of eternity without a solecism, or think thereof without an ecstasy? Time we may comprehend, 'tis but five days elder than ourselves
Ib § 11

I have often admired the mystical way of Pythagoras, and the secret magic of numbers. Ib § 12

We carry within us the wonders, we seek without us
 There is all Africa, and her prodigies in us
Ib § 15

All things are artificial, for nature is the art of God
Ib § 16

'Twill be hard to find one that deserves to carry the buckler unto Samson Ib § 21

Obstinacy in a bad cause, is but constancy in a good
Ib § 25

Persecution is a bad and indirect way to plant religion
Ib

There are many (questionless) canonized on earth, that shall never be Saints in Heaven. Ib § 26

Not pickt from the leaves of any author, but bred amongst the weeds and tares of mine own brain
Ib § 35

This reasonable moderator and equal piece of justice,
 Death Ib § 37

I am not so much afraid of death, as ashamed thereof,
 'tis the very disgrace and ignominy of our natures
Ib § 39

Certainly there is no happiness within this circle of flesh, nor is it in the optics of these eyes to behold felicity, the first day of our Jubilee is death
Ib § 43

I have tried if I could reach that great resolution to be honest without a thought of Heaven or Hell
Ib § 46

To believe only possibilities, is not faith, but mere Philosophy Ib § 46

There is no road or ready way to virtue Ib § 53

My desires only are, and I shall be happy therein, to be but the last man, and bring up the rear in heaven Ib § 57

I am of a constitution so general, that it consorts and sympathiseth with all things I have no antipathy, or rather idiosyncrasy, in diet, humour, air, any thing Ib pt 11, § 1

I feel not in myself those common antipathies that I can discover in others, those national repugnances do not touch me, nor do I behold with prejudice the French, Italian, Spaniard, or Dutch, but where I find their actions in balance with my countrymen's, I honour, love and embrace them in the same degree Religio Medici, pt. II, § 1

All places, all airs make unto me one country, I am in England, everywhere, and under any meridian Ib.

It is the common wonder of all men, how among so many millions of faces, there should be none alike
Ib. § 2.

No man can justly censure or condemn another, because indeed no man truly knows another
Ib. § 4

Charity begins at home, is the voice of the world
Ib.

Sure there is music even in the beauty, and the silent note which Cupid strikes, far sweeter than the sound of an instrument For there is a music wherever there is a harmony, order or proportion, and thus far we may maintain the music of the spheres, for those well ordered motions, and regular paces, though they give no sound unto the ear, yet to the understanding they strike a note most full of harmony Ib. § 9

For even that vulgar and tavern music, which makes one man merry, another mad, strikes in me a deep fit of devotion, and a profound contemplation of the first Composer, there is something in it of divinity more than the ear discovers Ib.

We all labour against our own cure, for death is the cure of all diseases Ib.

For the world, I count it not an inn, but an hospital, and a place, not to live, but to die in Ib. § 12

There is surely a piece of divinity in us, something that was before the elements, and owes no homage unto the sun Ib.

[Sleep is] in fine, so like death, I dare not trust it without my prayers Ib. § 13

Sleep is a death, O make me try,
By sleeping what it is to die
And as gently lay my head
On my grave, as now my bed Ib.

Conclude in a moist relentment Urn Burial, ch. 1

With rich flames, and hured tears, they solemnized their obsequies Ib. ch. 3

Hercules is not only known by his foot Ib.

Men have lost their reason in nothing so much as their religion, wherein stones and clouts make martyrs.
Ib. ch. 4

They carried them out of the world with their feet forward Ib.

Were the happiness of the next world as closely apprehended as the felicities of this, it were a martyrdom to live Ib.

These dead bones have quietly rested under the drums and tramlings of three conquests
Ib. ch. 5

Time, which antiquates antiquities, and hath an art to make dust of all things, hath yet spared these minor monuments Ib.

The long habit of living indisposeth us for dying Ib.

Misery makes Alcmena's nights Ib.

What song the Syrens sang, or what name Achilles assumed when he hid himself among women. Ib.

Circles and right lines limit and close all bodies, and the mortal right-lined circle, must conclude and shut up all Ib.

Old families last not three oaks Ib.

To be nameless in worthy deeds exceeds an infamous history. Ib.

But the inequity of oblivion blindly scattereth her poppy, and deals with the memory of men without distinction to merit of perpetuity. Ib.

Herostratus lives that burnt the Temple of Diana—he is almost lost that built it Ib.

The night of time far surpasseth the day, and who knows when was the equinox? Ib.

Mummy is become merchandise, Mizraim cures wounds, and Pharaoh is sold for balsams Ib.

Man is a noble animal, splendid in ashes, and porno-pous in the grave. Ib.

Ready to be any thing, in the ecstasy of being ever, and as content with six foot as the moles of Adrianus
Ib.

Mine only died In Obitum M S vº May

SIR WILLIAM BROWNE

1692-1774

The King to Oxford sent a troop of horse,

For Tories own no argument but force

With equal skill to Cambridge books he sent,

For Whigs admit no force but argument

ELIZABETH BARRETT BROWNING

1806-1861

Here's God down on us! what are you about?
How all those workers start amid their work,
Look round, look up, and feel, a moment's space,
That carpet-dusting, though a pretty trade,
Is not the imperative labour after all,

Aurora Leigh, bk i.

Near all the birds
Will sing at dawn,—and yet we do not take
The chaffering swallow for the holy lark Ib

God answers sharp and sudden on some prayers,
And thrusts the thing we have prayed for in our face,
A gauntlet with a gift in 't Ib bk ii

The music soars within the little lark,
And the lark soars Ib bk iii

I think it frets the saints in heaven to see How many desolate creatures on the earth
Have learnt the simple dues of fellowship
And social comfort, in a hospital Ib

Now may the good God pardon all good men!
Ib bk iv

Since when was genius found respectable? Ib bk vi
The devil's most devilish when respectable
Ib bk vii

Earth's crammed with heaven,
And every common bush afire with God,
But only he who sees, takes off his shoes,
The rest sit round it and pluck blackberries,
And daub their natural faces unaware More and more from the first similitude Ib.

'Jasper first,' I said,
'And second sapphire, third chalcedony,
The rest in order,—list an amethyst' Ib bk ix

Speak low to me, my Saviour, low and sweet
From out the hallelujahs, sweet and low,
Lest I should fear and fall, and miss Thee so
Who art not missed by any that entreat Comfort

O poets, from a maniac's tongue was poured the deathless singing!

O Christians, at your cross of hope, a hopeless hand was clinging!

O men, this man in brotherhood your weary paths beguiling,

Groaned only while he taught you peace, and died while ye were smiling Cowper's Grave

And kings crept out again to feel the sun
Crowned and Buried

Do ye hear the children weeping, O my brothers, Ere the sorrow comes with years?
The Cry of the Children

But the young, young children, O my brothers,
They are weeping bitterly!
They are weeping in the playtime of the others,
In the country of the free Ib.

And lips say, 'God be pitiful,'
Who ne'er said, 'God be praised'
Cry of the Human

Oh, the little birds sang east, and the little birds sang west, Toll slowly

And I smiled to think God's greatness flowed around our incompleteness,—

Round our restlessness, His rest
Rime of the Duchess May, last stanza

Thou large-brained woman and large-hearted man
To George Sand A Desire

Or from Browning some 'Pomegranate', which, if cut deep down the middle,

Shows a heart within blood-tinctured, of a veined humanity Lady Geraldine's Courtship, xli

By thunders of white silence, overthrown Hiram Potter's Greek Slave.

'Yes,' I answered you last night,
'No,' this morning, sir, I say

Colours seen by candle-light
Will not look the same by day The Lady's Yes.

In the pleasant orchard closes,
'God bless all our gains,' say we,
But 'May God bless all our losses,'

Better suits with our degree The Lost Bower

What was he doing, the great god Pan,
Down in the reeds by the river?

Spreading ruin and scattering ban,
Splashing and paddling with hoofs of a goat,
And breaking the golden lilies afloat

With the dragon-fly on the river
A Musical Instrument

Yet half a beast is the great god Pan,
To laugh as he sits by the river,

Making a poet out of a man
The true gods sigh for the cost and pain,—

For the reed which grows nevermore again
As a reed with the reeds in the river. Ib

And her smile, it seems half holy,
As if drawn from thoughts more far Than our common jestings are

And if any poet knew her,
He would sing of her with falls
Used in lovely madrigals A Portrait

God keeps a niche
In Heaven, to hold our idols, and albeit

He brake them to our faces, and denied
That our close kisses should impair their white,—

I know we shall behold them raised, complete,
The dust swept from their beauty,—glorified,

New Memmons singing in the great God-light Sonnets Futurity.

I tell you, hopeless grief is passionless
Sonnets Grief

Straightway I was 'ware,
So weeping, how a mystic shape did move

Behind me, and drew me backward by the hair,
And a voice said in mastery while I strove, .

'Guess now who holds thee?'—'Death,' I said, but there

The silver answer rang, . . . 'Not Death, but Love'
Sonnets from the Portuguese, i.

The face of all the world is changed, I think,
Since first I heard the footsteps of thy soul

Move still, oh, still, beside me, as they stole Betwixt me and the dreadful outer brink

Of obvious death, where I, who thought to sink,
Was caught up into love, and taught the whole

Of a new rhythm Ib. 7.

If thou must love me, let it be for naught
Except for love's sake only Ib 14

When our two souls stand up erect and strong Face to face, silent, drawing nigh and nigher Ib 22

Let us stay
Rather on earth, Beloved—where the unfit Contrarious moods of men recoil away
And isolate pure spirits, and permit
A place to stand and love in for a day,
With darkness and the death-hour rounding it Ib

God's gifts put man's best dreams to shame Ib 26

First time he kissed me, he but only kissed
The fingers of this hand wherewith I write,
And, ever since, it grew more clean and white Ib 38

And think it soon when others cry, 'Too late' Ib 40

How do I love thee? Let me count the ways
I love thee to the depth and breadth and height
My soul can reach, when feeling out of sight
For the ends of Being and ideal Grace
I love thee to the level of every day's Most quiet need, by sun and candle light
I love thee freely, as men strive for Right,
I love thee purely, as they turn from Praise
I love thee with the passion put to use
In my old griefs, and with my childhood's faith
I love thee with a love I seemed to lose
With my lost saints—I love thee with the breath, Smiles, tears, of all my life!—and, if God choose,
I shall but love thee better after death Ib 43

Of all the thoughts of God that are Borne inward unto souls afar,

Along the Psalmist's music deep,
Now tell me if that any is,
For gift or grace, surpassing this—
'He giveth His beloved, sleep' The Sleep

O earth, so full of dreary noises!
O men, with wailing in your voices!
O delvèd gold, the wailers heap!
O strife, O curse, that o'er it fall!
God strikes a silence through you all,
And giveth His beloved, sleep Ib

Let One, most loving of you all,
Say, 'Not a tear must o'er her fall,
He giveth His beloved, sleep' Ib

There, Shakespeare, on whose forehead climb
The crowns o' the world Oh, eyes sublime,
With tears and laughters for all time!

A Vision of Poets, verse 100

Life treads on life, and heart on heart
We press too close in church and mart
To keep a dream or grave apart Ib (conclusion).

The Last Ride Together, 1
Who knows but the world may end tonight? Ib 11

- Hush! if you saw some western cloud
 All billowy-bosomed, over-bowed
 By many benedictions—sun's
 And moon's and evening-star's at once Ib III
- My soul
 Smoothed itself out, a long-cramped scroll Freshening and fluttering in the wind Ib IV
- Might she have loved me? just as well
 She might have hated, who can tell! Ib
- The petty done, the undone vast Ib V
- What hand and brain went ever paired?
 They scratch his name on the Abbey-stones
 My riding is better, by their leave Ib
- Sing, riding's a joy! For me, I ride Ib VII
- Ride, ride together, for ever ride?
 Escape me?
 Never—
 Beloved! Life in a Love. Ib X
- To dry one's eyes and laugh at a fall,
 And, baffled, get up and begin again Ib.
- No sooner the old hope goes to ground
 Than a new one, straight to the self-same mark Ib.
- So, I gave her eyes my own eyes to take,
 My hand sought hers as in earnest need,
 And round she turned for my noble sake,
 And gave me herself indeed A Light Woman
- 'Tis an awkward thing to play with souls,
 And matter enough to save one's own Ib
- And, Robert Browning, you writer of plays, Here's a subject made to your hand! Ib
- A face to lose youth for, to occupy age
 With the dream of, meet death with A Likeness
- Just for a handful of silver he left us,
 Just for a riband to stick in his coat
The Lost Leader
- We that had loved him so, followed him, honoured
 him,
 Lived in his mild and magnificent eye,
 Learned his great language, caught his clear accents,
 Made him our pattern to live and to die! Ib
- Shakespeare was of us, Milton was for us, Burns, Shelley, were with us—they watch from their graves! Ib
- We shall march prospering,—not thro' his presence,
 Songs may inspire us,—not from his lyre,
 Deeds will be done,—while he boasts his quiescence,
 Still bidding crouch whom the rest bade aspire Ib
- One more devils'-triumph and sorrow for angels,
 One wrong more to man, one more insult to God!
Ib
- Never glad confident morning again! Ib
- All's over, then, does truth sound bitter
 As one at first believes? The Lost Mistress.
- I will hold your hand but as long as all may,
 Or so very little longer! Ib
- Where the quiet-coloured end of evening smiles Love among the Ruins
- Earth's returns
 For whole centuries of folly, noise and sin! Ib
- Love is best Ib
- How the March sun feels like May! A Lovers' Quarrel
- Oppression makes the wise man mad Luria, IV
- But a bird's weight can break the infant tree
 Which after holds an aery in its arms Ib
- The only fault's with time,
 All men become good creatures but so slow! Ib V
- Argument's hot to the close
Master Hugues of Saxe-Gotha, XIII
- One dissertates, he is candid,
 Two must discept,—has distinguished Ib XIV
- Do I carry the moon in my pocket? Ib XXIX
- As I gain the cove with pushing prow,
 And quench its speed i' the slushy sand
Meeting at Night
- A mile of warm sea-scented beach. Ib
- A tap at the pane, the quick sharp scratch
 And blue spurt of a lighted match,
 And a voice less loud, thro' its joys and fears,
 Than the two hearts beating each to each! Ib
- Ah, did you once see Shelley plain,
 And did he stop and speak to you
 And did you speak to him again?
 How strange it seems, and new! Memorabilia
- A moulted feather, an eagle-feather!
 Well, I forget the rest Ib
- Have you found your life distasteful?
 My life did, and does, smack sweet
 Was your youth of pleasure wasteful?
 Mine I saved and hold complete.
 Do your joys with age diminish?
 When mine fail me, I'll complain.
 Must in death your daylight finish?
 My sun sets to rise again. At the 'Mermaid'.
- I find earth not grey but rosy,
 Heaven not grim but fair of hue
 Do I stoop? I pluck a posy
 Do I stand and stare? All's blue Ib
- 'Next Poet'—(Manners, Ben!) Ib
- If such as came for wool, sir, went home shorn,
 Where is the wrong I did them?
Mr. Sludge, 'The Medium', I 630
- Solomon of saloons
 And philosophic diner-out Ib I 773
- This trade of mine—I don't know, can't be sure
 But there was something in it, tricks and all!
 Really, I want to light up my own mind. Ib I. 809
- Boston's a hole, the herring-pond is wide,
 V-notes are something, liberty still more Beside, is he the only fool in the world? Ib last lines
- This is the spray the bird clung to. Misconceptions
- This is a heart the Queen leant on Ib.
- That's my last Duchess painted on the wall
My Last Duchess, I 1.

Lo, the moon's self!
 Here in London, yonder late in Florence,
 Still we find her face, the thrice-transfigured
 Curving on a sky imbrued with colour,
 Drifted over Fiesole by twilight,
 Came she, our new crescent of a hair's-breadth
 Full she flared it, lamping Samminiato,

	1728-1797
	Would twenty shillings have ruined Mr Hampden's fortune? No! but the payment of half twenty shillings, on the principle it was demanded, would have made him a slave
	Speech on American Taxation, 1774
	It is the nature of all greatness not to be exact Ib
	Falsehood has a perennial spring Ib
	It did so happen that persons had a single office divided between them, who had never spoken to each other in their lives, until they found themselves, they knew not how, pigging together, heads and points, in the same truckle-bed Ib
	For even then, sir, even before this splendid orb was entirely set, and while the western horizon was in a blaze with his descending glory, on the opposite quarter of the heavens arose another luminary, and, for his hour, became lord of the ascendant. Ib
	Great men are the guide-posts and landmarks in the state. Ib Passion for fame, a passion which is the instinct of all great souls. Ib
	To tax and to please, no more than to love and to be wise, is not given to men Ib
	The only liberty I mean, is a liberty connected with order; that not only exists along with order and virtue, but which cannot exist at all without them
	Speech at his arrival at Bristol (1771) Applaud us when we run, console us when we fall, cheer us when we recover—but let us pass on—for God's sake, let us pass on!
	Speech at Bristol previous to the Election, 1780 Bad laws are the worst sort of tyranny Ib
	The worthy gentleman [Mr. Coombe], who has been snatched from us at the moment of the election, and in the middle of the contest, whilst his desires were as warm, and his hopes as eager as ours, has feelingly told us, what shadows we are, and what shadows we pursue

	The cold neutrality of an impartial judge
	Preface to the Address of M. Brissot
	I have in general no very exalted opinion of the virtue of paper government Speech on Conciliation with America, 1775
	The noble lord in the blue riband Ib
	The concessions of the weak are the concessions of fear Ib .
	Young man, there is America—which at this day serves for little more than to amuse you with stories of savage men, and uncouth manners, yet shall, before you taste of death, show itself equal to the whole of that commerce which now attracts the envy of the world Ib
	When we speak of the commerce with our colonies, fiction lags after truth, invention is unfruitful, and imagination cold and barren. Ib
	A people who are still, as it were, but in the gristle and not yet hardened into the bone of manhood Ib
	Through a wise and salutary neglect [of the colonies], a generous nature has been suffered to take her own way to perfection, when I reflect upon these effects, when I see how profitable they have been to us, I feel all the pride of power sink and all presumption in the wisdom of human contrivances melt and die away within me. My rigour relents I pardon something to the spirit of liberty Ib
	The use of force alone is but temporary. It may subdue for a moment; but it does not remove the necessity of subduing again and a nation is not governed, which is perpetually to be conquered Ib
	Nothing less will content me, than whole America Ib Abstract liberty, like other mere abstractions, is not to be found. Ib .
	All protestantism, even the most cold and passive, is a sort of dissent. But the religion most prevalent in our northern colonies is a refinement on the principle of resistance—it is the dissidence of dissent, and the protestantism of the Protestant religion. Ib
	In no country perhaps in the world is the law so general a study. This study renders men acute, inquisitive, dexterous, prompt in attack, ready in defence, full of resources. . . . They augur misgovernment at a distance, and snuff the approach of tyranny in every tainted breeze Ib
	The mysterious virtue of wax and parchment. Ib .
	I do not know the method of drawing up an indictment against an whole people Ib
	It is not, what a lawyer tells me I may do, but what humanity, reason, and justice, tell me I ought to do Ib
	Govern two millions of men, impatient of servitude, on the principles of freedom Ib
	I am not determining a point of law, I am restoring tranquillity. Ib
	The march of the human mind is slow. Ib .
	Freedom and not servitude is the cure of anarchy, as religion, and not atheism, is the true remedy for superstition Ib
	Instead of a standing revenue, you will have therefore a perpetual quarrel Ib

Slavery they can have anywhere It is a weed that grows in every soil

Conciliation with America, 1775

Deny them this participation of freedom, and you break that sole bond, which originally made, and must still preserve the unity of the empire Ib

It is the love of the people, it is their attachment to their government, from the sense of the deep stake they have in such a glorious institution, which gives you your army and your navy, and infuses into both that liberal obedience, without which your army would be a base rabble, and your navy nothing but rotten timber Ib

Magnanimity in politics is not seldom the truest wisdom, and a great empire and little minds go ill together Ib

By adverting to the dignity of this high calling, our ancestors have turned a savage wilderness into a glorious empire and have made the most extensive, and the only honourable conquests, not by destroying, but by promoting the wealth, the number, the happiness of the human race Ib

The people never give up their liberties but under some delusion

Speech at County Meeting of Bucks, 1784

Corrupt influence, which is itself the perennial spring of all prodigality, and of all disorder, which loads us more than millions of debt, which takes away vigour from our arms, wisdom from our councils, and every shadow of authority and credit from the most venerable parts of our constitution

Speech on the Petition of the Unitarians, 1792

Dangers by being despised grow great. Ib

To complain of the age we live in, to murmur at the present possessors of power, to lament the past, to conceive extravagant hopes of the future, are the common dispositions of the greatest part of mankind

Thoughts on the Cause of the Present Discontents

The power of the crown, almost dead and rotten as Prerogative, has grown up anew, with much more strength, and far less odium, under the name of Influence Ib

The wisdom of our ancestors. Ib

When bad men combine, the good must associate, else they will fall, one by one, an unpitied sacrifice in a contemptible struggle Ib

Of this stamp is the cant of Not men, but measures, a sort of charm by which many people get loose from every honourable engagement. Ib

There is, however, a limit at which forbearance ceases to be a virtue

Observations on a Publication, 'The present state of the nation'

Well stored with pious frauds, and, like most discourses of the sort, much better calculated for the private advantage of the preacher than the edification of the hearers Ib

It is a general popular error to imagine the loudest complainers for the public to be the most anxious for its welfare Ib

I flatter myself that I love a manly, moral, regulated liberty as well as any gentleman

Reflections on the Revolution in France

Whenever our neighbour's house is on fire, it cannot be amiss for the engines to play a little on our own Ib

Politics and the pulpit are terms that have little agreement No sound ought to be heard in the church but the healing voice of Christian charity.

Surely the church is a place where one day's truce ought to be allowed to the dissensions and animosities of mankind Ib

A state without the means of some change is without the means of its conservation. Ib.

Make the Revolution a parent of settlement, and not a nursery of future revolutions Ib.

The confused jargon of their Babylonian pulpits Ib

People will not look forward to posterity, who never look backward to their ancestors Ib

Government is a contrivance of human wisdom to provide for human wants Men have a right that these wants should be provided for by this wisdom Ib.

It is now sixteen or seventeen years since I saw the Queen of France, then the Dauphiness, at Versailles, and surely never lighted on this orb, which she hardly seemed to touch, a more delightful vision I saw her just above the horizon, decorating and cheering the elevated sphere she just began to move in,—glittering like the morning star, full of life, and splendour, and joy Little did I dream that I should have lived to see disasters fallen upon her in a nation of gallant men, in a nation of men of honour, and of cavaliers I thought ten thousand swords must have leaped from their scabbards to avenge even a look that threatened her with insult But the age of chivalry is gone That of sophisters, economists, and calculators, has succeeded, and the glory of Europe is extinguished for ever Ib

The unbought grace of life, the cheap defence of nations, the nurse of manly sentiment and heroic enterprise is gone! Ib

It is gone, that sensibility of principle, that chastity of honour, which felt a stain like a wound Ib

Vice itself lost half its evil, by losing all its grossness Ib

The offspring of cold hearts and muddy understandings Ib.

In the groves of their academy, at the end of every vista, you see nothing but the gallows Ib

Kings will be tyrants from policy, when subjects are rebels from principle Ib

Learning will be cast into the mire, and trodden down under the hoofs of a swinish multitude Ib

France has always more or less influenced manners in England and when your fountain is choked up and polluted, the stream will not run long, or will not run clear with us, or perhaps with any nation Ib

Because half a dozen grasshoppers under a fern make the field ring with their importunate chink, whilst thousands of great cattle, reposed beneath the shadow of the British oak, chew the cud and are silent, pray do not imagine that those who make the noise are the only inhabitants of the field, that of course, they are many in number, or that, after all, they are other than the little, shrivelled, meagre, hopping, though loud and troublesome insects of the hour Ib.

A Vindication of Natural Society, preface

The fabric of superstition has in our age and nation received much ruder shocks than it had ever felt before, and through the chinks and breaches of our prison we see such glimmerings of light, and feel such refreshing airs of liberty, as daily raise our ardour for more

F Harrison's Carlyle and The London Library

"'Thou'st gey'" [pretty, pronounced gyez] 'ill to deal wi'—Mother's allocution to me once, in some unreasonable moment of mine', is Carlyle's note on this phrase (which, indeed, is an old-fashioned country formula), cited by his wife in a letter to his mother in Dec. 1835. The readers of Mr Froude's Life of Carlyle will remember that he harps upon this phrase, using it as a sort of refrain, but always with the significant change of the word 'deal' to 'live'—'gey ill to live wi'.

Carlyle and Milnes were talking of the Administration just formed by Sir Robert Peel, and Milnes was evincing some disappointment that he had not been offered a post in it. diately suppressed by the officers of the court. Ib
- 'Where shall I begin, please your Majesty?' he asked
'Begin at the beginning,' the King said, gravely, 'and go on till you come to the end then stop.' Ib
- 'Ummportant, of course, I meant,' the King hastily said, and went on to himself in an undertone,
'important—unimportant—unimportant—important—' as if he were trying which word sounded best. Ib ch. 12
- 'That's not a regular rule you invented it just now.'
'It's the oldest rule in the book,' said the King.
'Then it ought to be Number One,' said Alice. Ib.

Long time the manxome foe he sought—
So rested he by the Tumtum tree,
And stood awhile in thought
- And as in uffish thought he stood,
The Jabberwock, with eyes of flame,
Came whiffling through the tulgey wood,
And burred as it came!

One, two! One, two! And through and through The vorpal blade went snicker-snack!
 He left it dead, and with its head
 He went galumphing back
 'And hast thou slain the Jabberwock?

Agreed to have a battle,

For Tweedledum said Tweedledee

Had spoiled his nice new rattle

They quite forgot their quarrel

The sun was shining on the sea,

Shining with all his might

He did his very best to make

The billows smooth and bright—

And this was odd, because it was

The middle of the night

Ib The Walrus and the Carpenter

'It's very rude of him,' she said

'To come and spoil the fun!' Ib

You could not see a cloud, because

No cloud was in the sky

No birds were flying overhead—

There were no birds to fly Ib

The Walrus and the Carpenter

Were walking close at hand,

They wept like anything to see

Such quantities of sand

'If this were only cleared away,'

They said, 'it would be grand'

'If seven maids with seven mops

Swept it for half a year,

Do you suppose,' the Walrus said,

'That they could get it clear?' Ib

'I doubt it,' said the Carpenter,

And shed a bitter tear

But four young Oysters hurried up,

All eager for the treat

Their coats were brushed, their faces washed,

Their shoes were clean and neat—

And this was odd, because, you know,

They hadn't any feet Ib

And thick and fast they came at last,

And more, and more, and more Ib.

The Walrus and the Carpenter

Walked on a mile or so,

And then they rested on a rock

Conveniently low

And all the little Oysters stood

And waited in a row.

'The time has come,' the Walrus said,

'To talk of many things

Of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—

Of cabbages—and kings—

And why the sea is boiling hot—

And whether pigs have wings' Ib

'For some of us are out of breath,

And all of us are fat' Ib.

'A loaf of bread,' the Walrus said,

'Is what we chiefly need

Pepper and vinegar besides

Are very good indeed—

Now if you're ready, Oysters dear,

We can begin to feed' Ib

'The night is fine,' the Walrus said

'Do you admire the view?' Ib

The Carpenter said nothing but

'The butter's spread too thick!' Ib

'I weep for you,' the Walrus said

'I deeply sympathize'

With sobs and tears he sorted out

Those of the largest size,

Holding his pocket-handkerchief

Before his streaming eyes Ib.

But answer came there none—

And this was scarcely odd because They'd eaten every one Ib.

'Fit to snore his head off!' as 'Tweedledum remarked Ib

'Let's fight till six, and then have dinner,' said

'Tweedledum Ib

'You know,' he said very gravely, 'it's one of the most serious things that can possibly happen to one in a battle—to get one's head cut off' Ib

'I'm very brave generally,' he went on in a low voice

'only to-day I happen to have a headache' Ib

'Twopence a week, and jam every other day' Ib ch 5

The rule is, jam to-morrow and jam yesterday—but never jam to-day Ib

'It's a poor sort of memory that only works backwards,' the Queen remarked Ib

'Consider anything, only don't cry!' Ib.

'I can't believe that!' said Alice 'Can't you?' the Queen said in a pitying tone 'Try again draw a long breath, and shut your eyes' Alice laughed

'There's no use trying,' she said 'one can't believe impossible things' 'I daresay you haven't had much practice,' said the Queen 'When I was your age, I always did it for half-an-hour a day Why, sometimes I've believed as many as six impossible things before breakfast' Ib

'It's very provoking,' Humpty Dumpty said after a long silence, '—to be called an egg—very!' Ib. ch 6

Humpty Dumpty sat on a wall,
 Humpty Dumpty had a great fall,
 All the king's horses and all the king's men Couldn't put Humpty Dumpty together again Ib

With a name like yours, you might be any shape, almost Ib

'They gave it me,—for an un-birthday present' Ib

'There's glory for you!' 'I don't know what you mean by "glory",' Alice said 'I meant, "there's a nice knock-down argument for you!"' 'But "glory", doesn't mean "a nice knock-down argument",' Alice objected 'When I use a word,' Humpty Dumpty said in a rather scornful tone, 'it means just what I choose it to mean,—neither more nor less' Ib

'The question is,' said Humpty Dumpty, 'which is to be master—that's all' Ib

'I can explain all the poems that ever were invented—and a good many that haven't been invented just yet' Ib

'I can repeat poetry as well as other folk if it comes to that—' 'Oh, it needn't come to that!' Alice hastily said Ib

The little fishes of the sea,
 They sent an answer back to me

The little fishes' answer was
 'We cannot do it, Sir, because—' Ib

I took a kettle large and new,
 Fit for the deed I had to do Ib

I said it very loud and clear,
 I went and shouted in his ear

But he was very stiff and proud,
 He said 'You needn't shout so loud'

And he was very proud and stiff,
 He said 'I'd go and wake them, if—' Ib

You see it's like a portmanteau—there are two meanings packed up into one word Ib

He's an Anglo-Saxon Messenger—and those are Anglo-Saxon attitudes Ib ch 7

The other Messenger's called Hatta I must have two you know—to come and go One to come, and one to go Ib

'There's nothing like eating hay when you're faint'
 'I didn't say there was nothing better,' the King replied, 'I said there was nothing like it' Ib

'I'm sure nobody walks much faster than I do!'
 'He can't do that,' said the King, 'or else he'd have been here first' Ib

It's as large as life, and twice as natural! Ib

'If you'll believe in me, I'll believe in you' Ib

The [White] Knight said 'It's my own invention' Ib

'But you've no idea what a difference it makes, mixing it with other things—such as gunpowder and sealing-wax' Ib

I'll tell thee everything I can There's a time to relate
 I saw an aged, aged man,
 A-sitting on a gate.

'Who are you, aged man?' I said
 'And how is it you live?'
 And his answer trickled through my head
 Like water through a sieve

He said, 'I look for butterflies
 That sleep among the wheat
 I make them into mutton-pies,
 And sell them in the street' Ib

I cried, 'Come, tell me how you live!'
 And thumped him on the head Ib

He said, 'I hunt for haddocks' eyes
 Among the heather bright,
 And work them into waistcoat-buttons
 In the silent night

And these I do not sell for gold
 Or coin of silvery shine,
 But for a copper halfpenny,
 And that will purchase nine.

I sometimes dig for buttered rolls,
 Or set limed twigs for crabs,
 I sometimes search the grassy knolls
 For wheels of hansom-cabs.' Ib

Or madly squeeze a right-hand foot
 Into a left-hand shoe Ib

'Speak when you're spoken to!' the Red Queen sharply interrupted her, Ib ch 9

'No admittance till the week after next!' Ib

'It isn't etiquette to cut any one you've been introduced to Remove the joint' Ib

'Un-dish-cover the fish, or dishcover the riddle' Ib

He thought he saw an Elephant,
 That practised on a fife
 He looked again, and found it was
 A letter from his wife
 'At length I realize,' he said,
 'The bitterness of life!' Sylvie and Bruno, ch 5

He thought he saw a Buffalo
 Upon the chimney-piece
 He looked again, and found it was His sister's husband's niece
 'Unless you leave this house,' he said,
 'I'll send for the Police' Ib ch 6

He thought he saw a Banker's Clerk
 Descending from the bus
 He looked again, and found it was A Hippopotamus
 'If this should stay to dine,' he said,
 'There won't be much for us' Ib ch 7

He thought he saw an Albatross
 That fluttered round the lamp
 He looked again, and found it was A penny-postage-stamp
 'You'd best be getting home,' he said,
 'The nights are very damp' Ib ch 12

What I tell you three times is true
Hunting of the Snark, Fit 1. The Landing

He had forty-two boxes, all carefully packed,
 With his name painted clearly on each
 But, since he omitted to mention the tact,
 They were all left behind on the beach Ib

a WILLIAM HERBERT CARRUTH

He would answer to 'Hi!' or to any loud cry,
Such as 'Fry me!' or 'Fritter-my-wig!' Ib
His intimate friends called him 'Candle-ends',
And his enemies, 'Toasted-cheese' Ib
Then the bowsprit got mixed with the rudder sometimes Ib
But the principal failing occurred in the sailing,
And the Bellman, perplexed and distressed,
Said he had hoped, at least, when the wind blew due East,
That the ship would not travel due West!
Ib Fit 2 The Bellman's Speech
But oh, beamish nephew, beware of the day,
If your Snark be a Boojum! For then
You will softly and suddenly vanish away,
And never be met with again!
Ib Fit 3 The Baker's Tale
They sought it with thimbles, they sought it with care,
They pursued it with forks and hope,
They threatened its life with a railway-share,
They charmed it with smiles and soap

It had taken no pains with its sums Ib

In scandal, as in robbery, the receiver is always thought as bad as the thief
Advice to his Son. Rules for Conversation, Scandal

In my mind, there is nothing so illiberal and so ill-bred, as audible laughter Ib Graces, Laughter.

In my opinion, parsons are very like other men, and neither the better nor the worse for wearing a black gown Letter to his Son, 5 Apr 1746.

The knowledge of the world is only to be acquired in the world, and not in a closet Ib 4 Oct 1746.

An injury is much sooner forgotten than an insult Ib 9 Oct 1746.

Courts and camps are the only places to learn the world in Ib 2 Oct 1747.

There is a Spanish proverb, which says very justly, Tell me whom you live with, and I will tell you who Advice is seldom welcome, and those who want it the most always like it the least. Ib 29 Jan. 1748.

Speak of the moderns without contempt, and of the ancients without idolatry Ib 22 Feb 1748.

Wear your learning, like your watch, in a private pocket and do not merely pull it out and strike it; merely to show that you have one Ib.

Sacrifice to the Graces Ib 9 Mar 1748.

If Shakespeare's genius had been cultivated, those beauties, which we so justly admire in him, would have been disgraced by those extravagancies, and that nonsense, with which they are so frequently accompanied. Ib 1 Apr 1748.

Women, then, are only children of a larger growth they have an entertaining tattle, and sometimes wit, but for solid, reasoning good-sense, I never knew in my life one that had it, or who reasoned or acted consequentially for four and twenty hours together Ib 5 Sept 1748

A man of sense only trifles with them [women], plays with them, humours and flatters them, as he does with a sprightly and forward child, but he neither consults them about, nor trusts them with, serious matters Ib

It must be owned, that the Graces do not seem to be natives of Great Britain, and I doubt, the best of us here have more of rough than polished diamond
Ib 18 Nov 1748

Idleness is only the refuge of weak minds
Ib 20 July, 1749

Women are much more like each other than men they have, in truth, but two passions, vanity and love, these are their universal characteristics
Ib 19 Dec 1749

Knowledge may give weight, but accomplishments give lustre, and many more people see than weigh

Who stuck like limpets to the spot,
Lest they forgot, lest they forgot
- Lord Lilac was of slighter stuff,
Lord Lilac had had quite enough Ib
- God made the wicked Grocer
For a mystery and a sign,
That men might shun the awful shop
And go to inns to dine.
- Song Against Grocers*
- The evil-hearted Grocer
Would call his mother 'Ma'am,'
And bow at her and bob at her,
Her aged soul to damn. Ib
- He crams with cans of poisoned meat
The subjects of the King,
And when they die by thousands
Why, he laughs like anything Ib
- He keeps a lady in a cage
Most cruelly all day,
And makes her count and calls her 'Miss'
Until she fades away Ib.
- The righteous minds of innkeepers Induce them now and then
To crack a bottle with a friend
Or treat unmoneyed men,
But who hath seen the Grocer
Treat housemaids to his teas
Or crack a bottle of fish-sauce
Or stand a man a cheese? Ib.
- And I dream of the days when work was scrappy,
And rare in our pockets the mark of the mint,
And we were angry and poor and happy,
And proud of seeing our names in print.

 Seem here no painful inch to gain,
 Far back, through creeks and inlets making,
 Comes silent, flooding in, the main

And not by eastern windows only,
 When daylight comes, comes in the light,
 In front, the sun climbs slow, how slowly,
 But westward, look, the land is bright Say Not, the Struggle Naught Availeth.

 Unskilled to sunder, and too weak to cleave,
 And with much toil attain to half-believe

Some future day when what is now is not,
 When all old faults and follies are forgot
Ib. Some Future Day.

Where lies the land to which the ship would go?
Far, far ahead, is all her seamen know,
And where the land she travels from? Away.
Far, far behind, is all that they can say

SAMUEL TAYLOR
COLERIDGE

1772-1834

It is an ancient Mariner,
And he stoppeth one of three
'By thy long grey beard and glittering eye,
Now wherefore stopp'st thou me?'
The Ancient Mariner, pt 1

The guests are met, the feast is set May'st hear the merry din Ib

He holds him with his skinny hand,
'There was a ship,' quoth he
'Hold off! unhand me, grey-beard loon!'
Eftsoons his hand dropt he

He holds him with his glittering eye—
The Wedding-Guest stood still,
And listens like a three years' child
The Mariner hath his will

The Wedding-Guest sat on a stone
He cannot choose but hear,
And thus spake on that ancient man,
The bright-eyed Mariner

The ship was cheered, the harbour cleared,
Merrily did we drop
Below the kirk, below the hill,
Below the lighthouse top

The Sun came up upon the left
Out of the sea came he!
And he shone bright, and on the right
Went down into the sea

The Wedding-Guest here beat his breast,
For he heard the loud bassoon

The bride hath paced into the hall,
Red as a rose is she

As who pursued with vell and blow
Still treads the shadow of his foe,
And forward bends his head

And ice, mast-high, came floating by,
As green as emerald

The ice was here, the ice was there,
The ice was all around
It cracked and growled, and roared and howled,
Like noises in a sward!

It ate the food it ne'er had eat,
And round and round it flew.

SAMUEL TAYLOR COLERIDGE b

The ice did split with a thunder-fit,
The helmsman steered us through! Ib.

And a good south wind sprung up behind;
'The Albatross did follow,
And every day, for food or play,
Came to the mariner's hollo! Ib

'God save thee, ancient Mariner!
From the fiends that plague thee thus!—
Why look'st thou so?'—With my cross-bow
I shot the Albatross Ib.

Nor dim nor red, like God's own head,
The glorious Sun uprist Ib pt. II

We were the first that ever burst Into that silent sea Ib

All in a hot and copper sky,
The bloody Sun, at noon,
Right up above the mast did stand,
No bigger than the Moon Ib.

As idle as a painted ship
Upon a painted ocean Ib.

Water, water, every where,
And all the boards did shrink,
Water, water, everywhere
Nor any drop to drink

The very deep did rot O Christ!
That ever thus should be!
Yea, slimy things did crawl with legs
Upon the slimy sea.

About, about, in reel and rout
The death-fires danced at night,
The water, like a witch's oils,
Burnt green, and blue and white Ib

Nine fathom deep he had followed us
From the land of mist and snow Ib

Ib There passed a weary time Each throat
Was parched, and glazed each eye
A weary time! a weary time!
How glazed each weary eye Ib pt III

I bit my arm, I sucked the blood,
And cried, A sail! a sail! Ib

Ib Gramercy! they for joy did grin,
And all at once their breath drew in,
As they were drinking all Ib

Ib When that strange shape drove suddenly Betwixt us and the Sun Ib

Ib. And straight the Sun was flecked with bars, (Heaven's Mother send us grace!)
As if through a dungeon-grate he peered
With broad and burning face Ib.

Ib Her lips were red, her looks were free,
Her locks were yellow as gold
Her skin was white as leprosy,
The Night-mare LIFE-IN-DEATH was she,
Who thicks man's blood with cold

Ib The naked hulk alongside came,
And the twain were casting dice,
'The game is done! I've won! I've won!'
Quoth she, and whistles thrice Ib.

The Sun's rim dips, the stars rush out
 At one stride comes the dark,
 With far-heard whisper, o'er the sea,
 Off shot the spectre-bark The Ancient Mariner, pt iii.
 We listened and looked sideways up! Ib
 The hornèd Moon, with one bright star
 Within the nether tip Ib
 Each turned his face with a ghastly pang,
 And cursed me with his eye Ib.
 And every soul, it passed me by,
 Like the whizz of my cross-bow! Ib.
 'I fear thee, ancient Mariner!
 I fear thy skinny hand!
 And thou art long, and lank, and brown,
 As is the ribbed sea-sand ' Ib pt iv.
 Alone, alone, all, all alone,
 Alone on a wide wide sea!
 And never a saint took pity on My soul in agony. Ib.
 And a thousand thousand slimy things
 Lived on, and so did I Ib.
 An orphan's curse would drag to hell
 A spirit from on high,
 But oh! more horrible than that
 Is the curse in a dead man's eye. Ib
 The moving Moon went up the sky,
 And no where did abide Softly she was going up,
 And a star or two beside Ib
 And everywhere the blue sky belongs to them, and is their appointed rest and their native country and their own nuptial homes, which they enter unannounced, as lords that are certainly expected, and yet there is a silent joy at their arrival [the stars] Ib gloss
 But where the ship's huge shadow lay,
 The charmed water burned away
 A still and awful red Ib
 A spring of love gushed from my heart,
 And I blessed them unaware Ib
 Oh Sleep! it is a gentle thing,
 Beloved from pole to pole!
 To Mary Queen the praise be given!
 She sent the gentle sleep from Heaven,
 That slid into my soul Ib pt v
 The silly buckets on the deck,
 That had so long remained,
 I dreamt that they were filled with dew,
 And when I awoke, it rained Ib
 Sure I had drunken in my dreams,
 And still my body drank Ib
 Beneath the lightning and the Moon
 The dead men gave a groan Ib
 It had been strange, even in a dream,
 To have seen those dead men rise Ib
 We were a ghastly crew Ib.
 The body of my brother's son
 Stood by me, knee to knee
 The body and I pulled at one rope,
 But he said nought to me Ib

How they seemed to fill the sea and air
 With their sweet jargoning! Ib
 It ceased, yet still the sails made on A pleasant noise till noon,
 A noise like of a hidden brook
 In the leafy month of June,
 'That to the sleeping woods all night
 Singeth a quiet tune Ib
 With a short uneasy motion
 Quoth he, "The man hath penance done,
 And penance more will do ' Ib
 The air is cut away before,
 And closes from behind Ib pt vi
 Like one, that on a lonesome road
 Doth walk in fear and dread,
 And having once turned round walks on,
 And turns no more his head,
 Because he knows, a frightful fiend
 Doth close behind him tread Ib
 It raised my hair, it fanned my cheek
 Like a meadow-gale of spring Ib
 Oh! dream of joy! is this indeed
 The lighthouse top I see?
 Is this the hill? is this the kirk?
 Is this mine own countree? Ib
 O let me be awake, my God!
 Or let me sleep away Ib.
 A man all light, a seraph-man,
 On every corse there stood.
 This seraph-band, each waved his hand
 It was a heavenly sight!
 They stood as signals to the land,
 Each one a lovely light Ib
 No voice, but oh! the silence sank
 Like music on my heart Ib.
 'This Hermit good lives in that wood
 Which slopes down to the sea
 How loudly his sweet voice he rears!
 He loves to talk with mariners
 That come from a far countree.
 He kneels at morn, and noon, and eve—
 He hath a cushion plump
 It is the moss that wholly hides
 The rotted old oak-stump. Ib pt vii
 Brown skeletons of leaves that lag
 My forest-brook along;
 When the ivy-tod is heavy with snow,
 And the owl whoops to the wolf below,
 'That eats the she-wolf's young Ib.
 Under the water it rumbled on,
 Still louder and more dread
 It reached the ship, it split the bay,
 'The ship went down like lead Ib
 I moved my lips—the Pilot shrieked
 And fell down in a fit,
 The holy Hermit raised his eyes,
 And prayed where he did sit Ib
 I took the oars the Pilot's boy,
 Who now doth crazy go,
 Laughed loud and long, and all the while
 His eyes went to and fro.
 'Hal! hal' quoth he, 'full well I see,
 'The Devil knows how to row ' Ib.

- I pass, like night, from land to land;
I have strange powers of speech,
That moment that his face I see,
I know the man that must hear me.
To him my tale I teach. The Ancient Mariner, pt vii
- And hark the little vesper-bell,
Which biddeth me to prayer! Ib
- O Wedding-Guest! this soul hath been
Alone on a wide wide sea
So lonely 'twas, that God himself Scarce seemed there to be. Ib
- O sweeter than the marriage-feast,
'Tis sweeter far to me,
To walk together to the kirk
With a goodly company
To walk together to the kirk,
And all together pray,
While each to his great Father bends,
Old men, and babes, and loving friends
And youths and maidens gay! Ib
- He prayeth well, who loveth well
Both man and bird and beast
He prayeth best, who loveth best
All things both great and small,
For the dear God who loveth us,
He made and loveth all Ib
- He went like one that hath been stunned,
And is of sense forlorn
A sadder and a wiser man,
He rose the morrow morn. Ib.
- That he sings, and he sings, and for ever sings he—
'I love my Love, and my Love loves me!'
Answer to a Child's Question
- And the Spring comes slowly up this way, Christabel, pt 1
- I guess, 'twas frightful there to see
A lady so richly clad as she—Beautiful exceedingly! Ib
- Carved with figures strange and sweet,
All made out of the carver's brain. Ib
- A sight to dream of, not to tell! Ib
- But this she knows, in joys and woes,
That saints will aid if men will call
For the blue sky bends over all! Ib
- Each matin bell, the Baron saith, Knells us back to a world of death Ib pt 11
- Alas! they had been friends in youth;
But whispering tongues can poison truth. Ib
- And constancy lives in realms above,
And life is thorny, and youth is vain;
And to be wroth with one we love
Doth work like madness in the brain Ib
- They stood aloof, the scars remaining,
Like cliffs which had been rent asunder,
A dreary sea now flows between Ib
- In Kohln, a town of monks and bones,
And pavements fang'd with murderous stones
And rags, and hags, and hideous wenches,
I counted two and seventy stenches,
All well defined, and several stinks!
- Ye Nymphs that reign o'er sewers and sinks,
The river Rhine, it is well known,
Doth wash your city of Cologne,
But tell me, Nymphs, what power divine Shall henceforth wash the river Rhine? Cologne
- My eyes make pictures, when they are shut
A Day-Dream
- Well! If the Bard was weatherwise, who made
The grand old ballad of Sir Patrick Spence Dejection an Ode
- I see them all so excellently fair,
I see, not feel, how beautiful they are! Ib
- O Lady! we receive but what we give,
And in our life alone does Nature live Ib
- A light, a glory, a fair luminous cloud Enveloping the Earth Ib.
- Joy is the sweet voice, joy the luminous cloud—
We in ourselves rejoice!
And thence flows all that charms our ear or sight,
All melodies the echoes of that voice, Ib
- All colours a suffusion from that light. Ib
- From his brimstone bed at break of day
A walking the Devil is gone,
To visit his snug little farm the earth,
And see how his stock goes on The Devil's Thoughts.
- And backward and forward he switched his long tail
As a gentleman switches his cane Ib
- His jacker was red and his breeches were blue,
And there was a hole where the tail came through Ib
- He saw a Lawyer killing a viper
On a dunghill hard by his own stable,
And the Devil smiled, for it put him in mind
Of Cain and his brother, Abel Ib.
- He saw a cottage with a double coach-house,
A cottage of gentility,
And the Devil did grin, for his darling sin
Is pride that apes humility Ib.
- As he went through Cold-Bath Fields he saw A solitary cell,
And the Devil was pleased, for it gave him a hint
For improving his prisons in Hell Ib.
- With Donne, whose nurse on dromedary trots, Wreath iron pokers into true-love knots
On Donne's Poetry
- What is an Epigram? a dwarfish whole,
Its body brevity, and wit its soul Epigram.
- Swans sing before they die—'twere no bad thing
Did certain persons die before they sing
Epigram on a Volunteer Singer
- Stop, Christian passer-by!—Stop, child of God Epitaph for Himself
- Ere sin could blight or sorrow fade,
Death came with friendly care
The opening bud to Heaven convey'd,
And bade it blossom there Epitaph on an Infant
- Forth from his dark and lonely hiding-place (Portentous sight!) the owl Atheism, Sailing on obscene wings athwart the noon,
Drops his blue-fringed lids, and holds them close,
And hooting at the glorious sun in Heaven, Cries out, 'Where is it?' Fears in Solitude

The Knight's Tomb

In Xanadu did Kubla Khan
A stately pleasure-dome decree
Where Alph, the sacred river, ran Through caverns measureless to man
Down to a sea

So twice five miles of fertile ground
With walls and towers were girdled round
And there were gardens bright with sinuous rills,
Where blossomed many an incense-bearing tree,
And here were forests ancient as the hills,
Enfolding sunny spots of greenery
But oh! that deep romantic chasm which slanted
Down the green hill athwart a cedarn cover!
A savage place! as holy and enchanted
As e'er beneath a waning moon was haunted
By woman wailing for her demon-lover!
And from this chasm, with ceaseless turmoil seething,
As if this earth in fast thick pants were breathing,
A mighty fountain momently was forced

Kubla Khan

And 'mid these dancing rocks at once and ever
It flung up momentarily the sacred river
Five miles meandering with a mazy motion

Through wood and dale the sacred river ran,
Then reached the caverns measureless to man,
And sank in tumult to a lifeless ocean
And 'mid this tumult Kubla heard from far Ancestral voices prophesying war!

The shadow of the dome of pleasure
Floated midway on the waves,
Where was heard the mingled measure
From the fountain and the caves
It was a miracle of rare device,
A sunny pleasure-dome with caves of ice!

A damsel with a dulcimer
In a vision once I saw.
It was an Abyssinian maid,
And on her dulcimer she played,
Singing of Mount Abora
Could I revive within me
Her symphony and song,
To such a deep delight 'twould me,
That with music loud and long,
I would build that dome in air,
That sunny dome! those caves of ice!
And all who heard should see them there,
And all should cry, Beware! Beware!
His flashing eyes, his floating hair!
Weave a circle round him thrice,
And close your eyes with holy dread,
For he on honey-dew hath fed,
And drunk the milk of Paradise.

Gibbon moved to flutes and hautboys, Johnson hewed passages through the Alps, while Gibbon levelled walks through parks and gardens.

Friendship

John Gilpin was a citizen
Of credit and renown,
A train-band captain eke was he
Of famous London town

John Gilpin's spouse said to her dear—
Though wedded we have been These twice ten tedious years, yet we No holiday have seen.

John Gilpin

To-morrow is our wedding-day,
And we will then repair
Unto the Bell at Edmonton
All in a chase and pair

My sister and my sister's child,
Myself and children three,
Will fill the chaise, so you must ride
On horseback after we

Ib.

He soon replied—I do admire
Of womankind but one,
And you are she, my dearest dear,
Therefore it shall be done

I am a linen-draper bold,
As all the world doth know,
And my good friend the calendar
Will lend his horse to go

Ib

O'erjoy'd was he to find
That, though on pleasure she was bent,
She had a frugal mind

Ib

And all agog
To dash through thick and thin!

Ib

John Gilpin at his horse's side
Seiz'd fast the flowing mane,
And up he got, in haste to ride,
But soon came down again

Ib

So down he came, for loss of time,
Although it griev'd him sore,
Yet loss of pence, full well he knew,
Would trouble him much more

Ib

Good lack! quoth he—yet bring it me,
My leathern belt likewise,
In which I bear my trusty sword
When I do exercise

Ib.

So, fair and softly, John he cried,
But John he cried in vain

So stooping down, as needs he must
Who cannot sit upright,
He grasp'd the mane with both his hands,
And eke with all his might.

Ib

His horse, who never in that sort
Had handled been before,
What thing upon his back had got Did wonder more and more

Away went Gilpin, neck or nought,
Away went hat and wig!

Ib.

The dogs did bark, the children scream'd
Up flew the windows all,
And ev'ry soul cried out—Well done!
As loud as he could bawl.

Away went Gilpin—who but he?
His fame soon spread around—
He carries weight! he rides a race!
'Tis for a thousand pound!

Ib

The dinner waits, and we are tired:
Said Gilpin—So am I

Which brings me to
The middle of my song

Ib

My hat and wig will soon be here—
They are upon the road

Ib

The calendar, right glad to find
His friend in merry pin

Ib

My head is twice as big as yours,
They therefore needs must fit.

John Gilpin

Said John—It is my wedding-day,
And all the world would stare,
If wife should dine at Edmonton
And I should dine at Ware

Ib

'Twas for your pleasure you came here,
You shall go back for mine

Ib

Nor stopp'd till where he had got up
He did again get down

Ib

Now let us sing—Long live the king,
And Gilpin long live he,
And, when he next doth ride abroad,
May I be there to see!

Inebriety, 1 120 (Imitation of Pope)

This, books can do—nor this alone they give
New views to life, and teach us how to live,
They soothe the grieved, the stubborn they chastise,
Fools they admonish, and confirm the wise
Their aid they yield to all they never shun
The man of sorrow, nor the wretch undone,
Unlike the hard, the selfish, and the proud,
They fly not sullen from the suppliant crowd;
Nor tell to various people various things,
But show to subjects, what they show to kings.
The Library, 1 41

Here come the grieved, a change of thought to find,
The curious here, to feed a craving mind,
Here the devout their peaceful temple choose,
And here the poet meets his favouring muse.
With awe around these silent walks I tread—
'These are the lasting mansions of the dead' Ib 1 101

The Canonization

Wilt thou forgive that sin, where I begun,
Which is my sin, though it were done before?
Wilt thou forgive those sins through which I run
And do them still, though still I do deplore?
When thou hast done, thou hast not done,
For I have more

Wilt thou forgive that sin, by which I have won Others to sin, and made my sin their door?
Wilt thou forgive that sin which I did shun
A year or two, but wallowed in a score?
When thou hast done, thou hast not done,
For I have more

I have a sin of fear that when I have spun
My last thread, I shall perish on the shore,
Swear by thy self that at my death, thy Sun
Shall shine as it shines now, and heretofore,
And having done that, thou hast done,
I have no more To Christ

Dear love, for nothing less than thee
Would I have broke this happy dream,
It was a theme
For reason, much too strong for fantasy,
Therefore thou wak'd'st me wisely, yet
My dream thou brok'st not, but continued'st it

Sweetest love, I do not go,
 For weariness of thee,
 Nor in hope the world can show
 A fitter Love for me,
 But since that I
 Must die at last, 'tis best,
 To use my self in jest
 Thus by fain'd deaths to die. Song

Go, and catch a falling star,
Get with child a mandrake root,
Tell me, where all past years are,
Or who cleft the Devil's foot

Song, Go and Catch a Falling Star

And swear

Lives a woman true and fair.

And last, till you write your letter,

Busy old fool, unruly Sun,
Why dost thou thus,

In whining Poetry.

The Triple Fool

Ib

I have done one braver thing
Than all the Worthies did,
And yet a braver thing doth spring,
Which is, to keep that hid

The Undertaking

So let us melt, and make no noise,
No tear-floods, nor sigh-tempests move,
'Twere profanation of our joys
To tell the laity our love

A Valediction Forbidding Mourning

Dull sublunary lovers' love (Whose soul is sense) cannot admit Absence, because it doth remove Those things which elemented it

But we, by a love so much refined,
That ourselves know not what it is,
Inter-assured of the mind,
Care less, eyes, lips, and hands to miss.

Our two souls therefore, which are one,
Though I must go, endure not yet
A breach, but an expansion,
Like gold to airy thinness beat

If they be two, they are two so
As stiff twin compasses are two,
Thy soul the fixt foot, makes no show
To move, but doth, if the other do

And though it in the centre sit,
Yet when the other far doth roam,
It leans, and hearkens after it,
And grows erect, as that comes home

Such wilt thou be to me, who must Like th' other foot, obliquely run,
Thy firmness makes my circle just,
And makes me end, where I begun

Ib

A Day that hath no pride, nor postride, yesterday doth not usher it in, nor tomorrow shall not drive it out. Methusalem, with all his hundreds of years, was but a mushroom of a night's growth, to this Day, and all the four Monarchies, with all their thousands of years, and all the powerful Kings and Queens of this world, were but as a bed of flowers, some gathered at six, some at seven, some at eight, all in one morning, in respect of this Day.

And when we meet at any time again,
Be it not seen in either of our brows,
That we one jot of former love retain,
Now at the last gasp of Love's latest breath,
When his pulse failing, Passion speechless lies,
When Faith is kneeling by his bed of death,
And Innocence is closing up his eyes,

Phi Beta Kappa Address, 18 July 1876

By necessity, by proclivity,—and by delight, we all quote Ib Quotation and Originality

Next to the originator of a good sentence is the first quoter of it Ib

When Nature has work to be done, she creates a genius to do it Method of Nature

I have heard with admiring submission the experience of the lady who declared that the sense of being well-dressed gives a feeling of inward tranquility which religion is powerless to bestow [Miss C F Forbes, 1817-1911] Ib Social Aims

Every hero becomes a bore at last Representative Men Uses of Great Men

Is not marriage an open question, when it is alleged, from the beginning of the world, that such as are in the institution wish to get out, and such as are out wish to get in Ib Montaigne

Belief consists in accepting the affirmations of the soul, Unbelief, in denying them Ib

Hitch your wagon to a star
Society and Solitude Civilization

We boil at different degrees Ib Eloquence.
 One of our statesmen said, 'The curse of this country

Invention breeds invention Ib Works and Days

Never read any book that is not a year old Ib Books.
 'Tis the good reader that makes the good book
Ib Success

America is a country of young men Ib Old Age

Glittering generalities! They are blazing ubiquities Attr remark on some sneering at the ideas of the Declaration of Independence as 'glittering generalities'

If a man write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mouse-trap than his neighbour, tho' he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door

[Mrs Sarah S B Yule (1856-1916) credits the quotation to Emerson in her Borrowings (1889), stating in The Docket, Feb 1912, that she copied this in her handbook from a lecture delivered by Emerson 'The 'mouse-trap' quotation was the occasion of a long controversy, owing to Elbert Hubbard's claim to its authorship]

He who has a thousand friends has not a friend to spare,

And he who has one enemy will meet him everywhere

Oh! don't you remember sweet Alice, Ben Bolt, Sweet Alice, whose hair was so brown,
 Who wept with delight when you gave her a smile,
 And trembled with fear at your frown? Ben Bolt.

Awake! for Morning in the Bowl of Night
Has flung the Stone that puts the Stars to Flight
And Lo! the Hunter of the East has caught
The Sultan's Turret in a Noose of Light
Omar Khayyám, ed 1, 1

Wake! For the Sun, who scatter'd into flight
The Stars before him from the Field of Night, Drives Night along with them from Heav'n, and strikes
The Sultan's Turret with a Shaft of Light Ib ed 4, 1
Dreaming when Dawn's Left Hand was in the Sky
I heard a Voice within the Tavern cry,
'Awake, my Little ones, and fill the Cup
Before Life's Liquor in its Cup be dry' Ib ed 1, 11
Before the phantom of False morning died, Methought a Voice within the Tavern cried,
'When all the Temple is prepared within,
Why nods the drowsy Worshipper outside?'
Ib ed 4, 11

Now the New Year reviving old Desires,
The thoughtful Soul to Solitude retires
Ib eds 1 and 4, 1v

Iram indeed is gone with all its Rose,
And Jamshyd's Sev'n-ring'd Cup where no one knows,
But still the Vine her ancient Ruby yields,
And still a Garden by the Water blows Ib ed 1, v
Iram indeed is gone with all his Rose Ib ed 4, v
But still a Ruby kindles in the Vine,
And many a Garden by the Water blows Ib.

In divine
High piping Pehlevi, with 'Wine! Wine! Wine!'
'Red Wine!'—the Nightingale cries to the Rose
That yellow Cheek of her's to incarnadine
Ib ed 1, vi

That sallow cheek of hers to incarnadine
Ib ed 4, vi.

Come, fill the Cup, and in the Fire of Spring
The Winter Garment of Repentance fling
The Bird of Time has but a little way
To fly—and Lo! the Bird is on the Wing
Ib ed 1, vii.

Come, fill the Cup, and in the fire of Spring
Your Winter-garment of Repentance fling
The Bird of Time has but a little way
To flutter—and the Bird is on the wing
Ib ed 4, vii

And look—a thousand Blossoms with the Day Woke—and a thousand scatter'd into Clay
Ib ed 1, viii.

Each Morn a thousand Roses brings, you say,
Yes, but where leaves the Rose of Yesterday?
Ib ed 4, ix.

But come with old Khayyám, and leave the Lot
Of Kaikobad and Kaikhosru forgot Let Rustum lay about him as he will,
Or Hatum Tai cry Supper—heed them not
Ib ed 1, ix.

Well, let it take them! What have we to do
With Kaikobad the Great, or Kaikhosru?
Let Zal and Rustum bluster as they will,
Or Hatum call to Supper—heed not you
Ib ed 4, x

And pity Sultan Mahmud on his Throne
Ib ed 1, x

And Peace to Mahmud on his golden Throne
Ib ed 4, xi

Here with a Loaf of Bread beneath the bough,
A Flask of Wine, a Book of Verse—and Thou
Beside me singing in the Wilderness—
And Wilderness is Paradise enow Ib ed 1, xi.

A Book of Verses underneath the Bough,
A Jug of Wine, a Loaf of Bread—and Thou
Beside me singing in the Wilderness—
Oh, Wilderness were Paradise enow! Ib ed 4, xii
Ah, take the Cash in hand and waive the Rest,
Oh, the brave Music of a distant Drum!
Ib ed 1, xii

Ah, take the Cash, and let the Credit go,
Nor heed the rumble of a distant Drum!
Ib ed 4, xiii

The Worldly Hope men set their Hearts upon Turns Ashes—or it prospers, and anon,
Like Snow upon the Desert's dusty Face Lighting a little Hour or two—is gone
Ib ed 1, xiv, ed 4, xvi.

And those who husbanded the Golden grain,
And those who flung it to the winds like Rain,
Alike to no such aureate Earth are turn'd
As, buried once, Men want dug up again

That every Hyacinth the Garden wears Dropt in her Lap from some once lovely Head
Ib ed 1, xviii, ed 4, xix

To-morrow!—Why, To-morrow I may be Myself with Yesterday's Sev'n thousand Years
Ib ed 1, xx, ed 4, xxi

Lo! some we loved, the loveliest and best
That Time and Fate of all their Vintage prest,
Have drunk their Cup a Round or two before,
And one by one crept silently to Rest
Ib ed 1, xxi

For some we loved, the loveliest and the best
That from his Vintage rolling Time hath prest
Ib ed 4, xxii

Ah, make the most of what we yet may spend,
Before we too into the Dust descend,
Dust into Dust, and under Dust, to lie,
Sans Wine, sans Song, sans Singer, and—sans End!
Ib ed 1, xxii, ed 4, xxiv

Oh, come with old Khayyám, and leave the Wise
To talk, one thing is certain, that Life flies,
One thing is certain, and the Rest is Lies,
The Flower that once hath blown for ever dies
Ib ed 1, xxvi

Oh threats of Hell and Hopes of Paradise!
One thing at least is certain—This Life flies
Ib ed 4, lxiii

Myself when young did eagerly frequent
Doctor and Saint, and heard great argument
About it and about but evermore
Came out by the same door as in I went
Ib ed 1, xxvii

Came out by the same Door where in I went
Ib ed 4, xxvii

I came like Water, and like Wind I go
Ib eds 1 and 4, xxviii

Into this Universe, and Why not knowing Nor Whence, like Water willy-nilly flowing,
And out of it, as Wind along the Waste,
I know not Whither, willy-nilly blowing

What, without asking, hither hurried whence?
And, without asking, whither hurried hencel
Another and another Cup to drown
The Memory of this Impertinence!
Ib ed 1, xxx

Oh, many a Cup of this forbidden Wine
Must drown the memory of that insolence!
Ib ed 4, xxx

There was a Door to which I found no Key
There was a Veil past which I could not see
Some little Talk awhile of ME and THEE
There seem'd—and then no more of THEE and ME
Ib ed 1, xxxii

There was the Door to which I found no Key,
There was the Veil through which I might not see
Some little talk awhile of ME and THEE
There was—and then no more of THEE and ME
Ib ed 4, xxxiii

And with its all obliterated Tongue
It murmur'd—"Gently, Brother, gently, pray!"
Ib eds 1 and 4, xxxvi.

Ah, fill the Cup—what boots it to repeat
How Time is slipping underneath our Feet
Unborn TOMORROW, and dead YESTERDAY,
Why fret about them if TODAY be sweet!

Omar Khayyám, ed 4, lxxvii

Oh Thou, who didst with Pitfall and with Gin Beset the Road I was to wander in,
 Thou wilt not with Predestination round
 Enmesh me, and impute my Fall to Sin?
Ib ed 1, lvi

Thou wilt not with Predestined Evil round
 Enmesh, and then impute my Fall to Sin!
Ib ed 4, lxxx

Oh, Thou, who Man of baser Earth didst make,
 And who with Eden didst devise the Snake,
 For all the Sin wherewith the Face of Man
 Is blacken'd, Man's Forgiveness give—and take!

Alas, that Spring should vanish with the Rose!
 That Youth's sweet-scented manuscript should close!
 The Nightingale that in the branches sang,
 Ah, whence, and whither flown again, who knows!
Ib ed 1, lxxii

Yet Ah, that Spring should vanish with the Rose!
Ib ed 4, xcvi

Ah Love! could thou and I with Fate conspire
 To grasp this sorry Scheme of Things entire,
 Would not we shatter it to bits—and then Re-mould it nearer to the Heart's Desire!
Ib ed 1, lxxiii

Ah Love! could you and I with Him conspire
Ib ed 4, xcix

Ah, Moon of my Delight who know'st no wane,
 The Moon of Heav'n is rising once again
 How oft hereafter rising shall she look Through this same Garden after me—in vain!
Ib ed 1, lxxiv

Yon rising Moon that looks for us again
 How oft hereafter will she wax and wane,
 How oft hereafter rising look for us
 Through this same Garden—and for one in vain!
Ib ed 4, c

And when Thyself with shining Foot shall pass
 Among the Guests Star-scattered on the Grass,
 And in thy joyous Errand reach the Spot Where I made one—turn down an empty Glass!
Ib ed 1, lxxv

And when like her, O Saki, you shall pass
Ib ed 4, ci

And in your joyous errand reach the spot

The Kings of England lifting up their swords Shall gather at the gate of Paradise
The Burial in England

Noon strikes on England, noon on Oxford town, Beauty she was statue cold—there's blood upon her gown

Noon of my dreams, O noon!
 Proud and godly kings had built her, long ago,
 With her towers and tombs and statues all arow,
 With her fair and floral air and the love that lingers
 there,

And the streets where the great men go

Set the crew laughing, and forgot his course

The Old Ships

It was so old a ship—who knows, who knows?

And yet so beautiful, I watched in vain
To see the mast burst open with a rose,
And the whole deck put on its leaves again Ib

From a highly impossible tree In a highly impossible scene	Ib. Only a Dancing Girl	His terrible taste for tipping Ib
There were captains by the hundred, there were baronets by dozens	Ib. Ferdinand and Elvira	A taste for drunk, combined with gout, Had doubled him up for ever Ib
Only find out who it is that writes those lovely cracker mottos!	Ib	Oh, 'tis a glorious thing, I ween, To be a regular Royal Queen! No half-and-half affair, I mean, But a right-down regular Royal Queen! Ib
Oh, I am a cook and a captain bold, And the mate of the Nancy brig, And a bo'sun tight, and a midshipmite, And the crew of the captain's gig	Ib. The Yarn of the 'Nancy Bell'	All shall equal be Ib
Among them was a Bishop, who Had lately been appointed to The balmy isle of Rum-ti-Foo, And Peter was his name	Ib. The Bishop of Rum-ti-Foo	The Earl, the Marquis, and the Dook, The Groom, the Butler, and the Cook, The Aristocrat who banks with Coutts, The Aristocrat who cleans the boots Ib
Which is pretty, but I don't know what it means	Ib. Story of Prince Agib	But the privilege and pleasure That we treasure beyond measure Is to run on little errands for the Ministers of State Ib 11
Then they began to sing That extremely lovely thing, ' Scherzando! ma non troppo ppp '	Ib	With the gratifying feeling that our duty has been done! Ib
Roll on, thou ball, roll on! Through pathless realms of Space Roll on!		Take a pair of sparkling eyes Ib
What though I'm in a sorry case? What though I cannot meet my bills? What though I suffer toothache's ills? What though I swallow countless pills?		Take my counsel, happy man, Act upon it, if you can! Ib
Never you mind! Roll on!	Ib. To the Terrestrial Globe	He wished all men as rich as he (And he was rich as rich could be), So to the top of every tree Promoted everybody Ib
It's true I've got no shirts to wear, It's true my butcher's bill is due, It's true my prospects all look blue— But don't let that unsettle you!		Dukes were three a penny Ib
Never you mind! Roll on!	(It rolls on) Ib	When every blessed thing you hold Is made of silver, or of gold, You long for simple pewter When you have nothing else to wear But cloth of gold and satins rare, For cloth of gold you cease to care— Up goes the price of shoddy Ib
The padre said, 'Whatever have you been and gone and done?'	Ib. Gentle Alice Brown	When everyone is somebodee, Then no one's anybody! Ib
A very good girl was Emily Jane, Jimmy was good and true, John was a very good man in the main (And I am a good man too)	Ib. Emily, John, James, and I	I see no objection to stoutness, in moderation. Iolanthe, 1
Down went the owners—greedy men whom hope of gain allured		For I'm to be married today—today— Yes, I'm to be married to-day! Ib
Oh, dry the starting tear, for they were heavily insured	Ib. Etiquette	Thou the singer, I the song! Ib
He had often eaten oysters, but had never had enough	Ib	Bow, bow, ye lower middle classes! Bow, bow, ye tradesmen, bow, ye masses Ib
In all the woes that curse our race There is a lady in the case	Fallen Fairies, 11	The Law is the true embodiment Of everything that's excellent It has no kind of fault or flaw, And I, my Lords, embody the Law Ib
He led his regiment from behind— He found it less exciting	The Gondoliers, 1	Pretty young wards in Chancery Ib
That celebrated, Cultivated, Underrated Nobleman, The Duke of Plaza Toro!	Ib.	A pleasant occupation for A rather susceptible Chancellor! Ib
Of that there is no manner of doubt— No probable, possible shadow of doubt— No possible doubt whatever.	Ib	For I'm not so old, and not so plain, And I'm quite prepared to marry again. Ib
		Spuin not the nobly born with love affected, Nor treat with virtuous scorn the well-connected Ib.
		Hearts just as pure and fair May beat in Belgrave Square As in the lowly air Ib
		Of Seven Dials Ib

When I went to the Bar as a very young man, (Said I to myself, said I)	Iolanthe, 1	As some day it may happen that a victim must be found,
My son in tears—and on his wedding day!	Ib	I've got a little list—I've got a little list
He exercises of his brains,		Of social offenders who might well be under ground
That is, assuming that he's got any	Ib 11	And who never would be missed—who never would be missed!	Ib
I am an intellectual chap, And think of things that would astonish you		The idiot who praises, with enthusiastic tone, All centuries but this, and every country but his own	Ib
I often think it's comical How Nature always does contrive		Three little maids from school are we, Pert as a schoolgirl well can be,
That every boy and every gal, That's born into the world alive,		Filled to the brim with girlish glee	Ib
Is either a little Liberal, Or else a little Conservative!	Ib	Life is a joke that's just begun	Ib
The House of Peers, throughout the war, Did nothing in particular,		Three little maids who, all unwary, Come from a ladies' seminary	Ib
And did it very well Yet Britain set the world ablaze		Modified rapture!	Ib.
In good King George's glorious days!	Ib	Awaiting the sensation of a short, sharp shock, From a cheap and chippy chopper on a big black block	Ib
Oh, Captain Shaw!		For he's going to marry Yum-Yum— Yum-Yum	Ib
Type of true love kept under!		There's not a trace Upon her face
Could thy Brigade With cold cascade		Of diffidence or shyness	Ib 11
Quench my great love, I wonder!	Ib	Ah, pray make no mistake, We are not shy,
For you dream you are crossing the Channel, and tossing about in a steamer from Harwich—		We're very wide awake, The moon and I!	Ib
Which is something between a large bathing machine and a very small second class carriage	Ib	Brightly dawns our wedding day, Joyous hour, we give thee greeting!	Ib
And bound on that journey you find your attorney (who started that morning from Devon),		Sing a merry madrigal.	Ib
He's a bit undersized, and you don't feel surprised when he tells you he's only eleven	Ib	Matrimonial devotion Doesn't seem to suit her notion	Ib
Faint heart never won fair lady!		Here's a how-de-doo!	Ib
Nothing venture, nothing win— Blood is thick, but water's thin—		Ha! ha! I amly Pride, how do you like that, my buck?	Ib
In for a penny, in for a pound— It's Love that makes the world go round!	Ib	My object all sublime I shall achieve in time—
A wandering minstrel I— A thing of shreds and patches, Of ballads, songs and snatches, And dreamy lullaby!	The Mikado, 1	To make the punishment fit the crime— The punishment fit the crime	Ib
Are you in sentimental mood?		A source of innocent merriment!
I'll sigh with you	Ib	Of innocent merriment	Ib
But the happiest hour a sailor sees Is when he's down At an inland town,		Sent to hear sermons From mystical Germans
With his Nancy on his knees, yo ho!		Who preach from ten till four	Ib
And his arm around her waist!	Ib	The music-hall singer attends a series Of masses and fugues and 'ops'
And I am right, And you are right, And all is right as right can be!	Ib	By Bach, interwoven With Spohr and Beethoven,
It revolts me, but I do it!	Ib	At classical Monday Pops	Ib
I accept refreshment at any hands, however lowly	Ib	The billiard sharp whom any one catches, His doom's extremely hard—
And the brass will crash, And the trumpets bray, And they'll cut a dash On their wedding day	Ib	He's made to dwell— In a dungeon cell
I am happy to think that there will be no difficulty in finding plenty of people whose loss will be a distinct gain to society at large	Ib	On a spot that's always barred And there he plays extravagant matches In fitless finger-stalls
		On a cloth untrue With a twisted cue
		And elliptical billiard balls	Ib
		The criminal cried, as he dropped him down, In a state of wild alarm—
		With a frightful, frantic, fearful frown, I bared my big right arm	Ib.

- I drew my snickersnee! Mikado, 11 For Art stopped short in the cultivated court of the Empress Josephine Ib

You can't assail,
With truth it quite agrees,
Her taste exact
For faultless fact Amounts to a disease Ib
- Though trunkless, yet
It couldn't forget
The deference due to me! Ib
- Something lingering, with boiling oil in it, I fancy Ib
- Merely corroborative detail, intended to give artistic versimilitude to an otherwise bald and unconvincing narrative Ib.
- She has a left elbow which people come miles to see! Ib
- The flowers that bloom in the spring, 'Tis la,
Have nothing to do with the civic Ib
- I've got to take under my wing,
tra la,
A most unattractive old thing,
tra la,
- With a caricature of a face
And that's what I mean when I say, or I sing,
'Oh bother the flowers that bloom in the spring' Ib
- On a tree by a river a little tom-tit
Sang 'Willow, titwillow, titwillow!'
And I said to him, 'Dicky-bird, why do you sit Singing 'Willow, titwillow, titwillow?' Ib
- 'Is it weakness of intellect, birdie?' I cried,
'Or a rather tough worm in your little inside?'
With a shake of his poor little head he replied,
'Oh, willow, titwillow, titwillow!' Ib
- He sobbed and he sighed, and a gurgle he gave,
Then he plunged himself into the billowy wave,
And an echo arose from the suicide's grave—
'Oh willow, titwillow, titwillow!' Ib.
- There's a fascination frantic
In a ruin that's romantic,
Do you think you are sufficiently decayed? Ib
- When your Majesty says, 'Let a thing be done,' it's as good as done—practically, it is done—because your Majesty's will is law Ib
- Twenty love-sick maidens we,
Love-sick all against our will Patience, 1
- When I first put this uniform on. Ib
- Am I alone,
And unobserved? I am! Ib.
- If you're anxious for to shine in the high aesthetic line as a man of culture rare Ib.
- You must lie upon the daisies and discourse in novel phrases of your complicated state of mind,
The meaning doesn't matter if it's only idle chatter of a transcendental kind
And everyone will say,
As you walk your mystic way,
'If this young man expresses himself in terms too deep for me,
Why, what a very singularly deep young man this deep young man must be!' Ib
- Then a sentimental passion of a vegetable fashion must excite your languid spleen,
An attachment à la Plato, for a bashful young potato, or a not too French French bean!
Though the Philistines may jostle, you will rank as an apostle in the high aesthetic band,
If you walk down Piccadilly with a poppy or a lily in your medieval hand
And everyone will say,
As you walk your flowery way,
'If he's content with a vegetable love which would certainly not suit me,
Why, what a most particularly pure young man this pure young man must be!' Ib
- Prithee, pretty maiden—prithee, tell me true. Ib
- Nobody I care for comes a-courting me. Ib
- Prithee, pretty maiden, will you marry me?
(Hey, but I'm hopeful, willow, willow, waly!)
I may say, at once, I'm a man of propertee—
Hey willow waly O!
Money, I despise it,
Many people prize it,
Hey willow waly O! Ib
- The pain that is all but a pleasure will change
For the pleasure that's all but pain Ib
- There will be too much of me
In the coming by and by! Ib 11
- While this magnetic,
Peripatetic
Lover, he lived to learn,
By no endeavour
Can magnet ever
Attract a Silver Churn! Ib
- Sing 'Hey to you—good day to you'— Sing 'Bah to you—ha! ha! to you'— Sing 'Booh to you—pooh, pooh to you' Ib.
- He will have to be contented
With our heartfelt sympathy! Ib.
- 'Tigh diddle diddle'
Will rank as an idyll,
If I pronounce it chaste! Ib
- Who's fond of his dinner
And doesn't get thinner
On bottled beer and chops Ib
- Francesca di Rimini, muminy, piminy, Je-ne-sais-quoi young man! Ib.
- A greenery-gallery, Grosvenor Gallery,
Foot-in-the-grave young man! Ib
- A Sewell and Cross young man,
A Howell & James young man,
A pushing young particle—'What's the next article?'
Waterloo House young man! Ib
- I'm called Little Buttercup—dear Little Buttercup, Though I could never tell whv H M S Pinafore, 1
- I am the Captain of the Pinafore,
And a right good captain too! Ib.

- And I'm never, never sick at sea!
 What, never?
 No, never!
 What, never?
 'Hardly ever!
 He's hardly ever sick at sea!
 Then give three cheers, and one cheer more,
 For the hardy Captain of the Pinafore! Ib.
- You're exceedingly polite,
 And I think it only right
 To return the compliment Ib.
- I never use a big, big D Ib.
- And so do his sisters and his cousins and his aunts!
 His sisters and his cousins,
 Whom he reckons up by dozens,
 And his aunts! Ib.
- When I was a lad I served a term
 As office boy to an Attorney's firm
 I cleaned the windows and I swept the floor,
 And I polished up the handle of the big front door
 I polished up that handle so carefuller
 That now I am the Ruler of the Queen's Navee! Ib.
- And I copied all the letters in a big round hand Ib.
- I always voted at my party's call,
 And I never thought of thinking for myself at all Ib.
- Stuck close to your desks and never go to sea,
 And you all may be Rulers of the Queen's Navee! Ib.
- His energetic fist should be ready to resist
 A dictatorial word Ib.
- His bosom should heave and his heart should glow,
 And his fist be ever ready for a knock-down blow Ib.
- Things are seldom what they seem,
 Skim milk masquerades as cream Ib.
- The merry maiden and the tar Ib.
- It was the cat Ib.
- He is an Englishman!
 For he himself has said it,
 And it's greatly to his credit,
 That he is an Englishman! Ib.
- For he might have been a Roosian,
 A French, or Turk, or Proosian,
 Or perhaps Ital-ian!
 But in spite of all temptations
 To belong to other nations,
 He remains an Englishman! Ib.
- The other, upper crust,
 A regular patrician Ib.
- It is, it is a glorious thing
 To be a Pirate King Pirates of Penzance, 1.
- The question is, had he not been
 A thing of beauty,
 Would she be swayed by quite as keen
 A sense of duty? Ib.
- Poor wandering one!
 Though thou hast surely strayed,
 Take heart of grace,
 Thy steps retrace,
 Poor wandering one! Ib.
- Take heart, fair days will shine,
 Take any heart, take mune! Ib.
- I am the very model of a modern Major-General Ib.
- When the foeman bares his steel,
 Tarantara, tarantara!
 We uncomfortable feel,
 Tarantara Ib.
- When constabulary duty's to be done,
 The policeman's lot is not a happy one Ib.
- When the enterprising burglar's not a-burgling Ib.
- When the coster's finished jumping on his mother—
 He loves to lie a-basking in the sun Ib.
- No Englishman unmoved that statement hears, Because, with all our faults, we love our House of Peers Ib.
- Politics we bar,
 They are not our bent,
 On the whole we are Not intelligent Princess Ida, 1.
- Yet everybody says I'm such a disagreeable man!
 And I can't think why! Ib.
- To everybody's prejudice I know a thing or two,
 I can tell a woman's age in half a minute—and I do! Ib.
- Man is Nature's sole mistake! Ib.

And in that town a dog was found,
As many dogs there be,
Both mongrel, puppy, whelp, and hound,
And curs of low degree Ib

The dog, to gain some private ends,
Went mad and bit the man Ib

And swore the dog had lost his wits,
To bite so good a man Ib

The man recover'd of the bite,
The dog it was that died. Ib

Here lies our good Edmund, whose genius was such,
We scarcely can praise it, or blame it too much;
Who, born for the Universe, narrow'd his mind,
And to party gave up what was meant for mankind
Though fraught with all learning, yet straining his throat

To persuade Tommy Townshend to lend him a vote,
Who, too deep for his hearers, still went on refining,
And thought of convincing, while they thought of dining,

Though equal to all things, for all things unfit,
Too nice for a statesman, too proud for a wit

Sweet Adon, darest not glance thine eye
N'oserez vous, mon bel ami ?
Upon thy Venus that must die?
Je vous en prie, pity me
N'oserez vous, mon bel, mon bel, N'oserez vous, mon bel ami ? Infida's Song.

Or but as mild as she is seeming so Dorastus in Praise of Fawnia Pandosto, ed 1694.

O glorious sun, imagine me the west!
Shine in my arms, and set thou in my breast! Ib.

Love in my bosom like a bee
Doth suck his sweet,
Now with his wings he plays with me,
Now with his feet
Within mine eyes he makes his nest,
His bed amid my tender breast,
My kisses are his daily feast,
And yet he robs me of my rest
Ah, wanton, will ye? Rosalind's Madrigal

Like to Diana in her summer weed,
Girt with a crimson robe of brightest dye,
Goes fair Samela
Whiter than be the flocks that straggling feed,
When washed by Arethusa's fount they lie,
Is fair Samela Samela

Weep not, my wanton, smile upon my knee,
When thou art old there's grief enough for thee
Mother's wag, pretty boy,
Father's sorrow, father's joy.
When thy father first did see
Such a boy by him and me,
He was glad, I was woe
Fortune changed made him so,
When he left his pretty boy,
Last his sorrow, first his joy Sephestia's Song

The wanton smiled, father wept,
Mother cried, baby leapt,
More he crowed, more we cried;
Nature could not sorrow hide.
He must go, he must kiss
Child and mother, baby bliss;
For he left his pretty boy,
Father's sorrow, father's joy. Ib

The swain did woo, she was nice,
Following fashion nayd him twice
The Shepherd's Ode

Ah! what is love! It is a pretty thing,
As sweet unto a shepherd as a king,
And sweeter too,

For kings have cares that wait upon a crown,
And cares can make the sweetest love to frown
Ah then, ah then,
If country loves such sweet desires do gain,
What lady would not love a shepherd swain?

prone enough to belief in the traditional superstitions of the place, and that there was a something corporeal, a matter-of-fact-ness, a clinging to the palpable, or often to the petty, in his poetry, in consequence Ib

At Godwin's they [Lamb, Holcroft, and Coleridge] were disputing fiercely which was the best—Man as he was, or man as he is to be. 'Give me,' says Lamb, 'man as he is not to be.' This saying was the beginning of a friendship between us, which I believe still continues Ib

Loveliest of trees, the cherry now
Is hung with bloom along the bough,
And stands about the woodland ride
Wearing white for Easter tide
Now, of my three score years and ten,
Twenty will not come again,
And take from seventy years a score,
It only leaves me fifty more
And since to look at things in bloom
Fifty springs are little room,
About the woodlands I will go
To see the cherry hung with snow

In summertime on Bredon
The bells they sound so clear,
Round both the shires they ring them
In steeples far and near,
A happy noise to hear

Here of a Sunday morning
My love and I would lie,
And see the coloured counties,
And hear the larks so high
About us in the sky

And I would turn and answer
Among the springing thyme,
'Oh, peal upon our wedding,
'And we will hear the chime,
'And come to church in time' Ib. xxi

They tolled the one bell only,
Groom there was none to see,
The mourners followed after,
And so to church went she,
And would not wait for me Ib.

And still the steeples hum
'Come all to church, good people,'—

Essays Of Civil Liberty

A miracle may be accurately defined, a transgression of a law of nature by a particular volition of the Deity, or by the interposition of some invisible agent

On Miracles pt 1, note

No testimony is sufficient to establish a miracle, unless the testimony be of such a kind, that its falseness would be more miraculous than the fact which it endeavours to establish and even in that case there is a mutual destruction of arguments, and the superior only gives us an assurance suitable to that degree of force which remains after deducting the inferior

Ib pt 1

There is not to be found, in all history, any miracle attested by a sufficient number of men, of such unquestioned good sense, education, and learning, as to secure us against all delusion in themselves, of such undoubted integrity, as to place them beyond all suspicion of any design to deceive others, of such credit and reputation in the eyes of mankind, as to have a great deal to lose in case of their being detected in any falsehood, and at the same time attesting facts, performed in such a public manner, and in so celebrated a part of the world, as to render the detection unavoidable

Ib pt 2

The usual propensity of mankind towards the marvellous

Ib

The Christian religion not only was at first attended with miracles, but even at this day cannot be believed by any reasonable person without one Mere reason is insufficient to convince us of its veracity and whoever is moved by faith to assent to it, is conscious of a continued miracle in his own person, which subverts all the principles of his understanding, and gives him a determination to believe what is most contrary to custom and experience

Custom, then, is the great guide of human life.

Awoke one night from a deep dream of peace,

And saw, within the moonlight in his room,

Making it rich, and like a lily in bloom,

An angel writing in a book of gold —

Exceeding peace had made Ben Adhem bold,

And to the presence in the room he said,

'What writest thou?' — The vision raised its head,

And with a look made of all sweet accord,

Answered, 'The names of those who love the Lord'

The other let it sleep with death
Fitter, where it lived, to tell,
Than that it died at all! Farewell!

In a shoe she drops a tester

Ib

Tell proud Jove,

Between his power and thine there is no odds

'Twas only fear first in the world made gods

Sejanus, ii ii

This figure that thou here seest put,

It was for gentle Shakespeare cut,

Wherein the graver had a strife

With Nature, to out-do the life

O could he but have drawn his wit

As well in brass, as he has hit

His face, the print would then surpass

All that was ever writ in brass

But since he cannot, reader, look

Not on his picture, but his book

On the Portrait of Shakespeare, To the Reader

While I confess thy writings to be such,

As neither man, nor muse, can praise too much

To the Memory of My Beloved, the Author,

Mr William Shakespeare

Soul of the Age!

The applause! delight! the wonder of our stage!

My Shakespeare, rise, I will not lodge thee by

Chaucer, or Spenser, or bid Beaumont lie

A little further, to make thee a room

Thou art a monument, without a tomb,

And art alive still, while thy book doth live,

And we have wits to read, and praise to give

The imagination of a boy is healthy, and the mature imagination of a man is healthy, but there is a space of life between, in which the soul is in a ferment, the character undecided, the way of life uncertain, the ambition thick-sighted thence proceeds mawkishness Endymion, preface

A thing of beauty is a joy for ever
Its loveliness increases, it will never Pass into nothingness, but still will keep
A bower quiet for us, and a sleep
Full of sweet dreams, and health, and quiet breathing.

Fanatics have their dreams, wherewith they weave
A paradise for a sect The Fall of Hyperion, l 1

'But those to whom the miseries of the world
Are misery, and will not let them rest' Ib l 147

'They are no dreamers weak,
They seek no wonder but the human face,
No music but a happy-noted voice' Ib l 162

The poet and the dreamer are distinct,
Diverse, sheer opposite, antipodes
The one pours out a balm upon the world,
The other vexes it Ib l 199

His flaming robes stream'd out beyond his heels,
And gave a roar, as if of earthly fire,
That scared away the meek ethereal hours,
And made their dove-wings tremble On he flared

Thy laurel, thy glory,

The light of thy story,
Or was I a worm—too low crawling, for death?
O Delphic Apollo! Hymn to Apollo

Far from the fiery noon, and eve's one star Hyperion, bk 1, l 3

No stir of air was there,
Not so much life as on a summer's day
Robs not one light seed from the feather'd grass,
But where the dead leaf fell, there did it rest Ib l 7

How beautiful, if sorrow had not made
Sorrow more beautiful than Beauty's self Ib l 35

That large utterance of the early Gods Ib l 51

O aching time! O moments big as years! Ib l 64

But, for the general award of love,
The little sweet doth kill much bitterness Isabella, xiii

Why were they proud? again we ask aloud,
Why in the name of Glory were they proud? Ib xvi

So the two brothers and their murder'd man
Rode past fair Florence Ib xxvii

And she forgot the stars, the moon, the sun,
And she forgot the blue above the trees,
And she forgot the dells where waters run,

And she forgot the chilly autumn breeze,
She had no knowledge when the day was done,
And the new moon she saw not but in peace
Hung over her sweet Basil evermore Ib liii

'For cruel 'tis,' said she,
'To steal my Basil-pot away from me' Ib lxii

Here are sweet peas, on tiptoe for a flight Ib

Oh what can ail thee, Knight at arms
Alone and palely loitering,
The sedge is wither'd from the lake,
And no birds sing La Belle Dame Sans Merci

I see a lily on thy brow,
With anguish moist and fever dew,
And on thy cheek a fading rose Fast withereth too Ib

I met a lady in the meads
Full beautiful, a fairy's child,
Her hair was long, her foot was light,
And her eyes were wild

I set her on my pacing steed,
And nothing else saw all day long,
For sideways would she lean, and sing
A fairy's song Ib

She look'd at me as she did love,
And made sweet moan Ib

And sure in language strange she said,
'I love thee true!' Ib

And there I shut her wild, wild eyes
With kisses four Ib (Ld Houghton's version)

'La belle Dame sans Merci
Hath thee in thrall!' Ib

I saw their sterv'd lips in the gloam
With horrid warning gap'd wide,
And I awoke, and found me here
On the cold hill side Ib

She was a gordian shape of dazzling hue,
Vermilion-spotted, golden, green, and blue,
Striped like a zebra, freckled like a pard,
Eyed like a peacock, and all crimson barr'd

Lamia, pt 1, l 47

Real are the dreams of Gods, and smoothly pass
Their pleasures in a long immortal dream Ib l 127

Love in a hut, with water and a crust,
Is—Love, forgive us!—cinders, ashes, dust;
Love in a palace is perhaps at last
More grievous torment than a hermit's fast Ib pt 2, l 1

That purple-lined palace of sweet sin Ib l 31

In pale contented sort of discontent Ib l 135

Do not all charms fly
At the mere touch of cold philosophy?
There was an awful rainbow once in heaven
We know her woof, her texture, she is given
In the dull catalogue of common things
Philosophy will clip an Angel's wings Ib l 229

Souls of poets dead and gone,
What Elysium have ye known,
Happy field or mossy cavern, Choicer than the Mermaid Tavern?
Have ye tupp'd drink more fine
Than mine host's Canary wine?

Lines on the Mermaid Tavern

Pledging with contented smack
The Mermaid in the Zodiac Ib

This living hand, now warm and capable
Of earnest grasping, would, if it were cold
And in the icy silence of the tomb,
So haunt thy days and chill thy dreaming nights
That thou wouldst wish thine own heart dry of blood
So in my veins red life might stream again,
And thus be conscience-calm'd—see here it is—
I hold it towards you

*Lines Supposed to have been Addressed to Old Meg was brave as Margaret Queen

And tall as Amazon
An old red blanket cloak she wore,
A chip hat had she on Meg Merrilies

Bards of Passion and of Mirth,
Ye have left your souls on earth!
Have ye souls in heaven too?

[Written on the blank page before Beaumont and Fletcher's Fair Maid of the Inn] Bards of Passion and of Mirth

Where the nightingale doth sing
Not a senseless, tranced thing,
But divine melodious truth Ib

Let none profane my Holy See of love,
Or with a rude hand break
The sacramental cake Ode to Fanny

Thou still unravish'd bride of quietness,
Thou foster-child of silence and slow time

Ode on a Grecian Urn

What men or gods are these? What maidens loth?
What mad pursuit? What struggle to escape?
What pipes and timbrels? What wild ecstasy? Ib

Heard melodies are sweet, but those unheard Are sweeter, therefore, ye soft pipes, play on,
Not to the sensual ear, but, more endear'd,
Pipe to the spirit ditties of no tone Ib

For ever wilt thou love, and she be fair! Ib

For ever piping songs for ever new Ib

All breathing human passion far above Ib

Who are these coming to the sacrifice?
To what green altar, O mysterious priest,
Lead'st thou that heifer lowing at the skies,
And all her silken flanks with garlands drest?
What little town by river or sea shore,
Or mountain-built with peaceful citadel,
Is emptied of this folk, this pious morn? Ib

O Attic shape! Fair attitude! Ib

Thou, silent form, dost tease us out of thought As doth eternity Cold Pastoral! Ib

'Beauty is truth, truth beauty,'—that is all Ye know on earth, and all ye need to know Ib

For I would not be dieted with praise,
A pet-lamb in a sentimental farce! Ode on Indolence

By bards who died content on pleasant sward, Leaving great verse unto a little clan Ode to Maya

Rich in the simple worship of a day Ib

No, no, go not to Lethe, neither twist
Wolf's-bane, tight-rooted, for its poisonous wine

Ode on Melancholy

Nor let the beetle, nor the death-moth be Your mournful Psyche Ib

She dwells with Beauty—Beauty that must die,
And Joy, whose hand is ever at his lips

Bidding adieu, and aching Pleasure nigh,
Turning to Poison while the bee-mouth sips

Ay, in the very temple of delight
Veil'd Melancholy has her sovran shrine

'Though seen of none save him whose strenuous tongue

C'n burst Joy's grape against his palate fine,
His soul shall taste the sadness of her might,

And be among her cloudy trophies hung Ib

My heart itches, and a drowsy numbness pains
My sense Ode to a Nightingale

'Tis not through envy of thy happy lot,
But being too happy in thine happiness,—

That thou, light-winged Dryad of the trees,
In some melodious plot

Of beechen green, and shadows numberless, Singest of summer in full-throated ease Ib

O, for a draught of vintage! that hath been Cool'd a long age in the deep-delv'd earth,

Tasting of Flora and the country green,
Dance, and Provençal song, and sunbunt mirth!

O for a beaker full of the warm South,
Full of the true, the blushful Hippocrene,

With beaded bubbles winking at the brim,
And purple-stained mouth,

That I might drink, and leave the world unseen,
And with thee fade away into the forest dim Ib

Fade far away, dissolve, and quite forget
 What thou among the leaves hast never known,
 The weariness, the fever, and the fret,
 Here, where men sit and hear each other groan Ib
 Where youth grows pale, and spectre-thin, and dies Ib

Where but to think is to be full of sorrow
 And leaden-eyed despairs Ib

Where Beauty cannot keep her lustrous eyes,
 Or new Love pine at them beyond tomorrow Ib

Away! away! for I will fly to thee,
 Not charioted by Bacchus and his pards,
 But on the viewless wings of Poesy,
 Though the dull brain perplexes and retards Ib.

But here there is no light,
 Save what from heaven is with the breezes blown Through verdurous glooms and winding mossy ways Ib

I cannot see what flowers are at my feet,
 Nor what soft incense hangs upon the boughs Ib

Fast fading violets cover'd up in leaves,
 And mid-May's eldest child,
 The coming musk-rose, full of dewy wine,
 The murmurous haunt of flies on summer eves Ib

Darkling I listen, and, for many a time
 I have been half in love with careless Death,
 Call'd him soft names in many a mused rhyme,
 To take into the air my quiet breath;
 Now more than ever seems it rich to die,
 To cease upon the midnight with no pain,
 While thou art pouring forth thy soul abroad
 In such an ecstasy!

Still wouldst thou sing, and I have ears in vain—
 To thy high requiem become a sod

Thou wast not born for death, immortal Bird!
 No hungry generations tread thee down,
 The voice I hear this passing night was heard
 In ancient days by emperor and clown
 Perhaps the self-same song that found a path
 Through the sad heart of Ruth, when sick for home,
 She stood in tears amid the alien corn,
 The same that oft-times hath Charm'd magic casements, opening on the foam
 Of perilous seas, in faery lands forlorn Ib

Forlorn! the very word is like a bell
 To toll me back from thee to my sole self!
 Adieu! the fancy cannot cheat so well
 As she is fam'd to do, deceiving elf
 Adieu! adieu! thy plaintive anthem fades
 Past the near meadows, over the still stream,
 Up the hill-side, and now 'tis buried deep
 In the next valley-glades

Was it a vision, or a waking dream?
 Fled is that music—Do I wake or sleep? Ib

'Mid hush'd, cool-rooted flowers, fragrant-eyed,
 Blue, silver-white, and budded Tyrian. Ode to Psyche

To make delicious moan
 Upon the midnight hours Ib

Thy voice, thy lute, thy pipe, thy incense sweet
 From swinged censer teeming,
 Thy shrine, thy grove, thy oracle, thy heat
 Of pale-mouth'd prophet dreaming Ib

Yes, I will be thy priest, and build a fane
 In some untrodden region of my mind,
 Where branched thoughts, new grown with pleasant pain, Ib

Instead of pines shall murmur in the wind
 With buds, and bells, and stars without a name,
 With all the gardener Fancy e'er could feign,
 Who breeding flowers, will never breed the same Ib

A bright torch, and a casement ope at night,
 To let the warm Love in! Ib

Stop and consider! life is but a day,
 A fragile dew-drop on its perilous way
 From a tree's summit, a poor Indian's sleep
 While his boat hastens to the monstrous steep
 Of Montmorency Sleep and Poetry, 1 85

 Of poesy, that it should be a friend
 To soothe the cares, and lift the thoughts of man
Ib 1 245

They shall be accounted poet kings
 Who simply tell the most heart-easing things
Ib 1 267

Bright star, would I were steadfast as thou art—
 Not in lone splendour hung aloft the night
 And watching, with eternal lids apart,
 Like nature's patient, sleepless Eremité,
 The moving waters at their priestlike task
 Of pure ablution round earth's human shores
Sonnet 'Bright Star'

Still, still to hear her tender-taken breath,
 And to live ever—or else swoon to death Ib

Much have I travell'd in the realms of gold,
 And many goodly states and kingdoms seen,
 Round many western islands have I been Which bards in fealty to Apollo hold Oft of one wide expanse had I been told
 That deep-brow'd Homer ruled as his demesne,
 Yet did I never breathe its pure serene
 Till I heard Chapman speak out loud and bold
 Then I felt like some watcher of the skies
 When a new planet swims into his ken,
 Or like stout Cortez when with eagle eyes
 He star'd at the Pacific—and all his men
 Look'd at each other with a wild surmise—
 Silent, upon a peak in Darien

JOHN KEBLE

1792–1866

Hues of the rich unfolding morn,
That, ere the glorious sun be born,
By some soft touch invisible
Around his path are taught to swell

The Christian Year Morning.

Oh! timely happy, timely wise,
Hearts that with rising morn arise!

Ib

New every morning is the love
Our waking and uprising prove

Ib.

If on our daily course our mind
Be set to hallow all we find,
New treasures still, of countless price,
God will provide for sacrifice

Ib

We need not bid, for cloister'd cell,
Our neighbour and our work farewell

Ib.

Nor strive to wind ourselves too high
For sinful man beneath the sky.

Ib

The trivial round, the common task,
Would furnish all we ought to ask,
Room to deny ourselves, a road
To bring us, daily, nearer God

Ib

And help us, this and every day,
To live more nearly as we pray

Ib

Sun of my soul! Thou Saviour dear,
It is not night if Thou be near

Ib Evening

Abide with me from morn till eve,
For without Thee I cannot live
Abide with me when night is nigh,
For without Thee I dare not die

A Renunciation.

Nature's true-born child, who sums his years (Like me) with no arithmetic but tears

The Annverse. Elegy

Accept, thou shrine of my dead Saint,
Instead of dirges this complaint,
And for sweet flowers to crown thy hearse,
Receive a strew of weeping verse
From thy griev'd friend, whom thou might'st see Quite melted into tears for thee. The Exequy.

Sleep on my Love in thy cold bed,
Never to be disquieted!
My last good night! Thou wilt not wake Till I thy fate shall overtake Till age, or grief, or sickness must Marry my body to that dust
It so much loves, and fill the room
My heart keeps empty in thy tomb
Stay for me there, I will not fail
To meet thee in that hollow vale
And think not much of my delay;
I am already on the way,
And follow thee with all the speed
Desire can make, or sorrows breed
'Tis true, with shame and grief I yield,
Thou like the van first took'st the field,
And gotten hast the victory
In thus adventuring to die
Before me, whose more years might crave
A just precedence in the grave

Ib

But hark! My pulse like a soft drum
Beats my approach, tells thee I come,
And slow howe'er my marches be,
I shall at last sit down by thee

Our England is a garden that is full of stately views, Of borders, beds and shrubberies and lawns and avenues,

With statues on the terraces and peacocks strutting by,

But the Glory of the Garden lies in more than meets the eye The Glory of the Garden

The Glory of the Garden it abideth not in words Ib

Our England is a garden, and such gardens are not made

By singing —'Oh, how beautiful' and sitting in the shade,

While better men than we go out and start their working lives

At grubbing weeds from gravel paths with broken dinner-knives

There's not a pair of legs so thin, there's not a head so thick,

There's not a hand so weak and white, nor yet a heart so sick,

But it can find some needful job that's crying to be done,

For the Glory of the Garden glorifieth every one

Then seek your job with thankfulness and work till further orders,

If it's only netting strawberries or killing slugs on borders,

And when your back stops aching and your hands begin to harden,

You will find yourself a partner in the Glory of the Garden

Oh, Adam was a gardener, and God who made him sees

That half a proper gardener's work is done upon his knees,

So when your work is finished, you can wash your hands and pray

For the Glory of the Garden, that it may not pass away!

And the Glory of the Garden it shall never pass away! Ib

You may talk o' gin an' 'bac

When you're quartered side out 'ere,

An' you're sent to penny-fights an' Aldershot it,

But when it comes to slaughter

You will do your work on water,

An' you'll lick the bloomin' boots of 'im that's got it

Are losing theirs and blaming it on you,
If you can trust yourself when all men doubt you,
But make allowance for their doubting too,
If you can wait and not be tired by waiting,
Or being lied about, don't deal in lies,
Or being hated, don't give way to hating,
And yet don't look too good, nor talk too wise
If you can dream—and not make dreams your master,
If you can think—and not make thoughts your aim,
If you can meet with Triumph and Disaster

Or walk with Kings—nor lose the common touch,
If neither foes nor loving friends can hurt you,
If all men count with you, but none too much,

'Have ye sinned one sin for the pride o' the eye or the sinful lust of the flesh?' Ib

'Then Tomlinson he gripped the bars and yammered,
'Let me in—

For I mind that I borrowed my neighbour's wife to sin the deadly sin'

The Devil he grinned behind the bars, and banked the fires high

'Did ye read of that sin in a book?' said he, and
'Tomlinson said 'Ay' Ib

The Devil he blew upon his nails, and the little devils ran Ib

'Ye have scarce the soul of a louse,' he said, 'but the roots of sin are there' Ib

'And—the God that you took from a printed book be work anew When Earth's Last Picture

And those that were good shall be happy they shall sit in a golden chair,
They shall splash at a ten-league canvas with brushes of comets' hair Ib

And only The Master shall praise us, and only The Master shall blame,
And no one shall work for money, and no one shall work for fame,
But each for the joy of the working, and each, in his separate star,
Shall draw the Thing as he sees It for the God of Things as They are! Ib

HORATIO HERBERT KITCHENER

1850-1916

You are ordered abroad as a soldier of the King to help our French comrades against the invasion of a common enemy. You have to perform a task which will need your courage, your energy, your patience. Remember that the honour of the British Army depends on your individual conduct. It will be your duty not only to set an example of discipline and perfect steadiness under fire but also to maintain the most friendly relations with those whom you are helping in this struggle. In this new experience you may find temptations both in wine and women. You must entirely resist both temptations, and, while treating all women with perfect courtesy, you should avoid any intimacy. Do your duty bravely. Fear God. Honour the King.

A message to the soldiers of the British Expeditionary Force, 1914, to be kept by each soldier in his Active Service Pay-Book. Sir G. Arthur's Life of Kitchener, vol. III, p. 27

What outcries pluck me from my naked bed?

Ib II v 1

Oh eyes, no eyes, but fountains fraught with tears,
Oh life, no life, but lively form of death,
Oh world, no world, but mass of public wrongs

Ib III II 1

Thus must we toil in other men's extremes,
That know not how to remedy our own

Ib III VI 1

My son—and what's a son? A thing begot
Within a pair of minutes, thereabout,
A lump bred up in darkness

Ib III XI Additions, 1 5

Duly twice a morning
Would I be sprinkling it with fountain water
At last it grew, and grew, and bore, and bore,
Till at the length
It grew a gallows and did bear our son,
It bore thy fruit and mine. O wicked, wicked plant

Ib Annual Message to Congress, 1 Dec 1862

Fourscore and seven years ago our fathers brought forth upon this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal. Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure. We are met on a great battlefield of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field as a final resting-place of those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this. But in a larger sense we cannot dedicate, we cannot consecrate, we cannot hallow this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, have consecrated it far above our power to add or detract. The world will little note, nor long remember, what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us, the living, rather to be dedicated here to the unfinished work they have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us, that from these honoured dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they here gave the last full measure of devotion, that we here highly resolve that the dead shall not have died in vain, that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people, and for the people, shall not perish from the earth.

By the shores of Gitche Gumee,
By the shining Big-Sea-Water,
Stood the wigwam of Nokomis,
Daughter of the Moon, Nokomis
Dark behind it rose the forest,
Rose the black and gloomy pine-trees,
Rose the firs with cones upon them,
Bright before it beat the water,
Beat the clear and sunny water,
Beat the shining Big-Sea-Water

Know no such liberty

Stone walls do not a prison make

Nor iron bars a cage,

Minds innocent and quiet take

That for an hermitage,

If I have freedom in my love,

And in my soul am free,

Angels alone, that soar above,

And greet as angels greet
 Tell me not (Sweet) I am unkind,
 That from the nunnery
 Of thy chaste breast, and quiet mind,

 True, a new mistress now I chase,
 The first foe in the field,
 And with a stronger faith embrace
 A sword, a horse, a shield
 Yet this inconstancy is such,
 As you too shall adore,
 I could not love thee (Dear) so much,

Campaspe, III. iii

Cupid and my Campaspe play'd
At cards for kisses, Cupid paid,
He stakes his quiver, bow, and arrows,
His mother's doves, and team of sparrows,

Loses them too, then, down he throws
The coral of his lip, the rose Growing on 's cheek (but none knows how),
With these, the crystal of his brow,
And then the dimple on his chin
All these did my Campaspe win
At last he set her both his eyes,
She won, and Cupid blind did rise

O Love! has she done this to thee?

What shall, alas! become of me?

I fear no foe with Thee at hand to bless,
Ills have no weight, and tears no bitterness,
Where is death's sting? Where, Grave, thy victory?

Shine through the gloom, and point me to the skies, Heaven's morning breaks and earth's vain shadows flee,

In life, in death, O Lord, abide with me

Attend, all ye who list to hear our noble England's praise,

I tell of the thrice famous deeds she wrought in ancient days The Armada

Many a light fishing-bark put out to pry along the coast,

And with loose rein and bloody spur rode inland many a post,

With his white hair unbonneted, the stout old sheriff comes,

Behind him march the halberdiers, before him sound the drums Ib

Night sank upon the dusky beach, and on the purple sea,

Such night in England ne'er had been, nor e'er again

The rugged miners poured to war from Mendip's sunless caves Ib

The sentinel on Whitehall gate looked forth into the night Ib

At once on all her stately gates arose the answering fires,

At once the wild alarm clashed from all her reeling spires Ib

And broader still became the blaze, and louder still the din,

As fast from every village round the horse came spurring in,

And eastward straight from wild Blackheath the warlike errand went,

And roused in many an ancient hall the gallant squires of Kent Ib

Till Belvoir's lordly terraces the sign to Lincoln sent,
 And Lincoln sped the message on o'er the wide vale of Trent,

Till Skiddaw saw the fire that burned on Gaunt's embattled pile,

And the red glare on Skiddaw roused the burghers of

SIR THOMAS MALORY

fl 1470

It is notoriously known through the universal world that there be nine worthy and the best that ever were That is to wit three paynims, three Jews, and three Christian men As for the paynims they were . the first Hector of Troy, . the second Alexander the Great, and the third Julius Caesar
As for the three Jews . the first was Duke Joshua . the second David, King of Jerusalem, and the third Judas Maccabaeus And sith the said Incarnation was first the noble Arthur
The second was Charlemagne or Charles the Great . and the third and last was Godfrey of Bouillon

Le Morte D'Arthur, vol I Caxton's Original Preface

I, according to my copy, have done set it in imprint, to the intent that noble men may see and learn the noble acts of chivalry, the gentle and virtuous deeds that some knights used in those days Ib

Wherein they shall find many joyous and pleasant histories, and noble and renowned acts of humanity, gentleness, and chivalries For herein may be seen noble chivalry, courtesy, humanity, friendliness, hardness, love, friendship, cowardice, murder, hate, virtue, and sin Do after the good and leave the evil, and it shall bring you to good fame and renown Ib

Me repenteth, said Merlin, because of the death of that lady thou shalt strike a stroke most dolorous that ever man struck, except the stroke of our Lord, for thou shalt hurt the truest knight and the man of most worship that now liveth, and through that stroke three kingdoms shall be in great poverty, misery and wretchedness twelve years, and the knight shall not be whole of that wound for many years Ib bk II, ch 8

What, nephew, said the king, is the wind in that door? Ib bk VII, ch 34

The questing beast Ib bk IX, ch 12.

God defend me, said Dinadan, for the joy of love is too short, and the sorrow thereof, and what cometh thereof, dureth over long

Ib bk X, ch 56

It is his day, said Dinadan Ib ch 70

Nay, by my knighthood, said Palomides, I never espied that ever she loved me more than all the world, nor never had I pleasure with her, but the last day she gave me the greatest rebuke that ever
I had, the which shall never go from my heart

Ib ch. 82

Fair lord, salute me to my lord, Sir Launcelot, my father, and as soon as ye see him, bid him remember of this unstable world Ib bk XVII, ch 22

Thus endeth the story of the Sangreal, that was briefly drawn out of French into English, the which is a story chronicled for one of the truest and the holiest that is in this world

Ib ch 23, end

And thus it passed on from Candlemass until after Easter, that the month of May was come, when every lusty heart beginneth to blossom, and to bring forth fruit, for like as herbs and trees bring forth fruit and flourish in May, in likewise every lusty heart that is in any manner a lover, springeth and flourisheth in lusty deeds

Ib bk XVIII, ch 25

Therefore all ye that be lovers call unto your remembrance the month of May, like as did Queen Guenevere, for whom I make here a little mention, that while she lived she was a true lover, and therefore she had a good end Ib

Through this man and me hath all this war been wrought, and the death of the most noblest knights of the world, for through our love that we have loved together is my most noble lord slain Ib bk XXI, ch 9

Therefore, Sir Launcelot, I require thee and beseech thee heartily, for all the love that ever was betwixt us, that thou never see me more in the visage. Ib

Wherefore, madam, I pray you kiss me and never no more Nay, said the queen, that shall I never do, but abstain you from such works and they departed But there was never so hard an hearted man but he would have wept to see the colour that they made Ib ch 10

And Sir Launcelot awoke, and went and took his horse, and rode all that day and all night in a forest, weeping Ib

Then Sir Launcelot saw her visage, but he wept not greatly, but sighed Ib ch. 11

Said Sir Ector Sir Launcelot thou wert never matched of earthly knights' hand, and thou wert the courtest knight that ever bare shield, and thou wert the truest friend to thy lover that ever bestrad horse, and thou wert the truest lover of a sinful man that ever loved woman, and thou wert the kindest man that ever struck with sword, and thou wert the goodliest person that ever came among press of knights, and thou wert the meekest man and the gentlest that ever ate in hall among ladies, and thou wert the sternest knight to thy mortal foe that ever put spear in the rest

 Teach light to counterfeit a gloom,
 Far from all resort of mirth,
 Save the cricket on the hearth Ib l 79

Where I may oft outwatch the Bear,
 With thrice great Hermes, or unsphere
 The spirit of Plato Ib l 87

Sometime let gorgeous Tragedy
 In sceptred pall come sweeping by,
 Presenting Thebes, or Pelops' line,
 Or the tale of Troy divine Ib l 97

Or bid the soul of Orpheus sing
 Such notes as, warbled to the string,
 Drew iron tears down Pluto's cheek Ib l 105

Or call up him that left half told
 The story of Cambuscan bold Ib l 109

Where more is meant than meets the ear Ib l 120

While the bee with honied thigh,
 That at her flowery work doth sing,
 And the waters murmuring
 With such consort as they keep,
 Entice the dewy-feather'd sleep Ib l 142

But let my due feet never fail
 To walk the studious cloisters pale Ib l 155

With antique pillars massy proof,
 And storied windows richly dight,
 Casting a dim religious light
 There let the pealing organ blow,
 To the full-voiced quire below,
 In service high, and anthems clear
 As may, with sweetness, through mine ear,
 Dissolve me into ecstasies,
 And bring all Heaven before mine eyes Ib l 158

Till old experience do attain
 To something like prophetic strain Ib l 173

Hence, loathed Melancholy,
 Of Cerberus, and blackest Midnight born,
 In Stygian cave forlorn,
 'Mongst horrid shapes, and shrieks, and sights unholy L'Allegro, l 1

So buxom, blithe, and debonair Ib l 24

Haste thee Nymph, and bring with thee
 Jest and youthful jollity,
 Quips and cranks, and wanton wiles,
 Nods, and becks, and wreathed smiles Ib l 25

Sport that wrinkled Care derides,
 And Laughter holding both his sides
 Come, and trip it as ye go
 On the light fantastic toe Ib l 31

The mountain nymph, sweet Liberty. Ib l 36

Mirth, admit me of thy crew,
 To live with her, and live with thee,
 In unreprieved pleasures free
 To hear the lark begin his flight,
 And singing startle the dull night,
 From his watch-tower in the skies,
 Till the dappled dawn doth rise,
 Then to come in spite of sorrow,
 And at my window bid good-morrow Ib l 38

While the cock with lively din
 Scatters the rear of darkness thin,
 And to the stack, or the barn door,
 Stoutly struts his dames before Ib l 40

Right against the eastern gate,
 Where the great Sun begins his state Ib l 50

The ploughman near at hand,
 Whistles o'er the furrowed land,
 And the milkmaid singeth blithe,
 And the mower whets his scythe,
 And every shepherd tells his tale
 Under the hawthorn in the dale Ib l 63.

Him the Almighty Power
Hurled headlong flaming from th' ethereal sky
With hideous ruin and combustion down
To bottomless perdition, there to dwell
In adamantyne chains and penal fire
Who durst defy th' Omnipotent to arms.

Paradise Lost, bk 1, l 44

As far as angels' ken Ib 1 59
A dungeon horrible, on all sides round
As one great furnace flam'd, yet from those flames
No light, but rather darkness visible
Serv'd only to discover sights of woe,
Regions of sorrow, doleful shades, where peace
And rest can never dwell, hope never comes
That comes to all Ib 1 60
As far removed from God and light of heav'n
As from the centre thrice to th' utmost pole Ib 1 73

But O how fall'n! how changed
From him who, in the happy realms of light, Clothed with transcendent brightness didst outshine
Myriads though bright Ib 1 84
United thoughts and counsels, equal hope,
And hazard in the glorious enterprise Ib 1 88

Yet not for those
Nor what the potent victor in his rage
Can else inflict do I repent or change,
Though changed in outward lustre, that fix'd mind
And high disdain, from sense of injured merit Ib 1 94

What though the field be lost?
All is not lost, th' unconquerable will,
And study of revenge, immortal hate,
And courage never to submit or yield
And what is else not to be overcome? Ib 1 105
Vaunting aloud, but racked with deep despair Ib 1 126

Fall'n Cherub, to be weak is miserable
Doing or suffering but of this be sure,
To do ought good never will be our task,
But ever to do ill our sole delight Ib 1 157
And out of good still to find means of evil Ib 1 165
The seat of desolation, void of light Ib 1 181
What reinforcement we may gain from hope,
It not what resolution from despair Ib 1 190

The will
And high permission of all-ruling Heaven
Left him at large to his own dark designs,
That with reiterated crimes he might Heap on himself damnation Ib 1 211
Is this the region, this the soil, the clime,
Said then the lost Archangel, this the seat
That we must change for Heav'n, this mournful gloom Ib 1 242
For that celestial light?

Farthest from him is best Whom reason hath equalled, force hath made supreme

Above his equals Farewell happy fields
Where joy for ever dwells Hail horrors, hail Infernal world, and thou profoundest Hell Receive thy new possessor one who brings
A mind not to be changed by place or time
The mind is its own place, and in it self
Can make a Heav'n of Hell, a Hell of Heav'n Ib 1 247

Here we may reign secure, and in my choice
To reign is worth ambition though in hell
Better to reign in hell, than serve in heav'n Ib 1 261.

His spear, to equal which the tallest pine Hewn on Norwegian hills, to be the mast
Of some great ammiral, were but a wand,
He walk'd with to support uneasy steps
Over the burning marle Ib 1 292

Thick as autumnal leaves that strow the brooks
In Vallombrosa, where th' Etrurian shades
High over-arch'd umbower Ib 1 302
Busiris and his Memphian chivalry Ib 1 307

'Awake, arise, or be for ever fall'n'
They heard, and were abashed, and up they sprung Upon the wing, as when men went to watch
On duty, sleeping found by whom they dread,
Rouse and bestir themselves ere well awake Ib 1 330.

First Moloch, horrid king, besmear'd with blood
Of human sacrifice, and parents' tears Ib 1 392

For spirits when they please
Can either sex assume, or both, so soft
And uncompounded is their essence pure Ib 1 423.
Execute their aery purposes Ib 1 430
Astarte, Queen of Heav'n, with crescent horns Ib 1 439

Thammuz came next behind,
Whose annual wound in Lebanon allur'd
The Syrian damsels to lament his fate
In amorous ditties all a summer's day,
While smooth Adonis from his native rock
Ran purple to the sea Ib 1 446

A leper once he lost and gain'd a king Ib 1 471
Jehovah, who in one night when he passed
From Egypt marching Ib 1 487

And when night
Darkens the streets, then wander forth the sons
Of Belial, flown with insolence and wine Ib 1 500
Shone like a meteor streaming to the wind Ib 1 537
Sonorous metal blowing martial sounds
At which the universal host up sent
A shout that tore hell's concave, and beyond Frighted the reign of Chaos and old Night Ib 1 540

Anon they move
In perfect phalanx to the Dorian mood
Of flutes and soft recorders Ib 1 549

That small infantry
Warred on by cranes Ib 1 575.

What resounds
In fable or romance of Uther's son
Begirt with British and Armoric knights,
And all who since, baptized or infidel
Jousted in Aspramont or Montalban, Damasco, or Marocco, or Trebisond,
Or whom Biserta sent from Afric shore
When Charlemain with all his peerage fell
By Fontarabba Ib 1 579

He above the rest
In shape and gesture proudly eminent Stood like a tower, his form had yet not lost
All her original brightness, nor appeared
Less than archangel ruined, and th' excess
Of glory obscur'd Paradise Lost, bk 1, l 589.

The sun
In dim eclipse disastrous twilight sheds
On half the nations, and with fear of change
Perplexes monarchs Ib 1 594

His face
Deep scars of thunder had intrenched, and care
Sat on his faded cheek, but under brows
Of dauntless courage, and considerate pride Waiting revenge Ib 1 600

Who overcomes
By force, hath overcome but half his foe Ib 1 648

Mammon led them on,
Mammon, the least erected Spirit that fell
From heav'n, for ev'n in heav'n his looks and thoughts
Were always downward bent, admiring more
The riches of heaven's pavement, trodden gold,
Than aught divine or holy else enjoy'd
In vision beatific Ib 1 678

Let none admire
That riches grow in hell, that soil may best Deserve the precious bane Ib 1 690
Anon out of the earth a fabric huge Rose like an exhalation Ib 1 710

From morn
To noon he fell, from noon to dewy eve,
A summer's day, and with the setting sun
Dropt from the zenith like a falling star Ib 1 742

Fairy elves,
Whose midnight revels, by a forest side
Or fountain some belated peasant sees,
Or dreams he sees, while overhead the moon
Sits arbitress Ib 1 781

High on a throne of royal state, which far Outshone the wealth of Ormus and of Ind,
Or where the gorgeous East with richest hand
Showers on her kings barbaric pearl and gold,
Satan exalted sat, by merit raised
To that bad eminence, and from despair
Thus high uplifted beyond hope Ib bk 11, l 1

The strongest and the fiercest Spirit
That fought in Heav'n, now fiercer by despair
His trust was with th' Eternal to be deemed Equal in strength, and rather than be less Cared not to be at all Ib 1 44

My sentence is for open war of wiles
More unexpert, I boast not Ib 1 51

When the scourge
Inexorably, and the torturing hour
Calls us to penance. Ib 1 90

Belial, in act more graceful and humane,
A fairer person lost not Heav'n, he seemed For dignity compos'd and high exploit
But all was false and hollow, though his tongue Dropt manna, and could make the worse appear
The better reason. Ib 1 109

For who would lose,
Though full of pain, this intellectual being,
Those thoughts that wander through eternity,
To perish rather, swallowed up and lost
In the wide womb of uncreated night,
Devoid of sense and motion? Ib 1 146.

His red right hand Ib 1. 174

Unrespired, unpitied, unreprieved,
Ages of hopeless end Ib 1. 185

Thus Belial with words clothed in reason's garb Counselled ignoble ease, and peaceful sloth,
Not peace Ib 1 226.

Our torments also may in length of time
Become our elements Ib 1 274

With grave
Aspect he rose, and in his rising seem'd
A pillar of state, deep on his front engraven
Deliberation sat and public care,
And princely counsel in his face yet shone,
Majestic though in ruin Ib 1 300

To sit in darkness here
Hatching vain empires Ib 1 377.

Who shall tempt with wand'ring feet
The dark unbottom'd infinite abyss
And through the palpable obscure find out
His uncouth way Ib 1 404

Long is the way
And hard, that out of hell leads up to light Ib 1 432

O shame to men! devil with devil damn'd
Firm concord holds, men only disagree
Of creatures rational. Ib 1 496.

In discourse more sweet
(For eloquence the soul, song charms the sense,) Others apart sat on a hill retir'd,
In thoughts more elevate, and reason'd high
Of providence, foreknowledge, will, and fate,
Fix'd fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute,
And found no end, in wand'ring mazes lost
Ib 1 555

Vain wisdom all, and false philosophy Ib 1 565

A gulf profound as that Serbonian bog
Betwixt Damietta and Mount Casius old,
Where armies whole have sunk the parching air
Burns froze, and cold performs th' effect of fire
Ib 1 592

The bitter change
Of fierce extremes, extremes by change more fierce
Ib 1 598

O'er many a frozen, many a fiery Alp, Rocks, caves, lakes, fens, bogs, dens, and shades of death Ib 1 620

Worse
Than fables yet have feigned, or fear conceived, Gorgons and Hydras, and Chimeræ dire Ib 1 626.

The other shape,
If shape it might be call'd that shape had none
Distinguishable in member, joint, or limb,
Or substance might be call'd that shadow seem'd,
For each seem'd either, black it stood as night,
Fierce as ten furies, terrible as hell,
And shook a dreadful dart, what seem'd his head
The likeness of a kingly crown had on. Ib 1 666.

Whence and what art thou, execrable shape?

Paradise Lost, bk 11, l 681

Incens'd with indignation Satan stood Unterrifi'd, and like a comet burn'd
That fires the length of Ophiucus huge
In th' arctic sky, and from his horrid hair
Shakes pestilence and war

Ib 1 707

Their fatal hands

No second stroke intend

Ib 1 712

I fled, and cry'd out, Death,

Hell trembled at the hideous name, and sigh'd

From all her caves, and back resounded, Death

On a sudden open fly

With impetuous recoil and jarring sound
Th' infernal doors, and on their hinges grate
Harsh thunder

Ib 1 879

A dark

Illimitable ocean without bound, Without dimension, where length, breadth, and highth,

And time and place are lost

Ib 1 891

Chaos umpire sits,

And by decision more embroils the fray
By which he reigns next him high arbiter
Chance governs all

Ib 1 907

This wild abyss,

The womb of nature and perhaps her grave

Ib 1 910

To compare

Great things with small

Ib 1 921

So eagerly the fiend

O'er bog or steep, through strait, rough, dense, or rare,

With head, hands, wings, or feet pursues his way,
And swims or sinks, or wades, or creeps, or flies

Ib 1 947

Sable-vested Night, eldest of things

Ib 1 962

With ruin upon ruin, rout on rout,
Confusion worse confounded

Ib 1 995

So he with difficulty and labour hard Moved on, with difficulty and labour he

Ib 1 1021

Hail, holy light, offspring of Heaven first-born,
Or of th' Eternal co-eternal beam,
May I express thee unblamed? Since God is light,
And never bid in unapproached light
Dwelt from eternity

Ib bk 11, l 1

So thick a drop serene hath pierced their orbs,
Or dim suffusion veiled Yet not the more Cease I to wander where the Muses haunt Clear spring, or shady grove, or sunny hill

Ib 1 25

Nor sometimes forget

Those other two equall'd with me in fate,
So were I equall'd with them in renown,
Blind Thamyras and blind Mæonides,
And Tiresias and Phineus, prophets old
Then feed on thoughts, that voluntary move Harmonious numbers, as the wakeful bird
Sings dawning, and in shadiest covert hid,
Tunes her nocturnal note Thus with the year Seasons return, but not to me returns
Day, or the sweet approach of ev'n or morn,
Or sight of vernal bloom, or summer's rose,

Or flocks, or herds, or human face divine,
But cloud instead, and ever-during dark
Surrounds me, from the cheerful ways of men
Cut off, and for the book of knowledge fair
Presented with a universal blank

Of Nature's works to me expung'd and raz'd,
And wisdom at one entrance quite shut out

So much the rather thou celestial light

Shine inward

Ib 1 32

Freely they stood who stood, and fell who fell

Ib 1 102

Dark with excessive bright

Sericana, where Chineses drive

With sails and wind their cany waggons light.

Embryos and idiots, eremites and friars,

White, black and grey, with all their trumpery

Ib 1 474

Dying put on the weeds of Dominic,

Or in Franciscan think to pass disguised

Then might ye see

Cowls, hoods, and habits, with their wearers, tost

And fluttered into rags, then reliques, beads,

Indulgences, dispenses, pardons, bulls,

The sport of winds

Ib 1 489

Into a Limbo large and broad, since called

The Paradise of Fools, to few unknown

Ib 1 495

For neither man nor angel can discern

Hypocrisy, the only evil that walks

Invisible, except to God alone

At whose sight all the stars

Hide their diminished heads

Ib bk 11, l 34

Warring in Heav'n against Heav'n's matchless King

Ib 1 41

And understood not that a grateful mind

By owing owes not, but still pays, at once

Indebted and discharged

Ib 1 55

Me miserable! which way shall I fly

Infinite wrath, and infinite despair?

Which way I fly is Hell, myself am Hell,

And in the lowest deep a lower deep

Still threatening to devour me opens wide,

To which the Hell I suffer seems a Heaven

Ib 1 73

So farewell hope, and with hope farewell fear,

Farewell remorse all good to me is lost,

Evil be thou my Good

Ib 1 108

Off at sea north-east winds blow

Sabæan odours from the spicy shore

Of Araby the blest

Ib 1 161

Many a league

Cheer'd with the grateful smell old Ocean smiles

Ib 1 164

So clomb this first grand thief into God's fold

So since into his church lewd hirelings clumb

Thence up he flew, and on the tree of life,

The middle tree and highest there that grew,

Sat like a cormorant

Ib 1 192

A heaven on earth

Groves whose rich trees wept odorous gums and balm,

Others whose fruit burnished with golden rind
Hung amiable, Hesperian fables true,
If true, here only Paradise Lost, bk iv, l 248

Flowers of all hue, and without thorn the rose
Ib l 256

The mantling vine Ib l 258

Not that fair field
Of Enna, where Proseipin gathering flowers,
Herself a fairer flower by gloomy Dis
Was gathered Ib l 268

Nor where Abassin kings their issue guard, Mount Amara, though this by some supposed
True Paradise Ib l 280

Two of far nobler shape erect and tall,
Godlike erect, with native honour clad
In naked majesty seemed lords of all Ib l 288

For contemplation he and valour formed;
For softness she and sweet attractive grace,
He for God only, she for God in him
His fair huge front and eye sublime declared
Absolute rule Ib l 297

Which implied
Subjection, but required with gentle sway
And by her yielded, by him best received,
Yielded with coy submission, modest pride,
And sweet reluctant amorous delay Ib l 307

Adam, the goodliest man of men since born
His sons, the fairest of her daughters Eve. Ib l 323

The savoury pulp they chew, and in the rind
Still as they thirsted scooped the brimming stream
Ib l 335

Sporting the lion ramped, and in his paw,
Dandled the kid, bears, tigers, ounces, pairs
Gamboll'd before them, th' unwildly elephant
To make them mirth us'd all his might, and wreathed
His lithe proboscis Ib l 343

So spake the Fiend, and with necessity,
The tyrant's plea, excus'd his devilish deeds
Ib l 393

With eyes
Of conjugal attraction unreprou'd Ib l 492
Imparadis'd in one another's arms Ib l 506

Now came still evening on, and twilight gray
Had in her sober livery all things clad,
Silence accompanied, for beast and bird,
They to their grassy couch, these to their nests,
Were slunk, all but the wakeful nightingale,
She all night long her amorous descant sung,
Silence was pleas'd now glow'd the firmament
With living sapphires Hesperus that led
The starry host, rode brightest, till the moon,
Rising in clouded majesty, at length
Apparent queen unveil'd her peerless light,
And o'er the dark her silver mantle threw Ib l 598.

God is thy law, thou mine to know no more
Is woman's happiest knowledge and her praise.
Ib l 637

With thee conversing I forget all time. Ib l 639.

Sweet is the breath of morn, her rising sweet,
With charm of earliest birds Ib l 641.

Sweet the coming on
Of grateful evening mild, then silent night
With this her solemn bird and this fair moon,
And these the gems of Heav'n, her starry train.
Ib l 646.

Millions of spiritual creatures walk the earth
Unseen, both when we wake, and when we sleep
Ib l 677.

Into their inmost bower
Handed they went, and eas'd the putting off
These troublesome disguises which we wear,
Strait side by side were laid, nor turned I ween
Adam from his fair spouse, nor Eve the rites Mysterious of connubial love refus'd
Whatever hypocrites austere talk
Of purity and place and innocence,
Defaming as impure what God declares
Pure, and commands to some, leaves free to all
Ib l 738

Hail wedded love, mysterious law, true source
Of human offspring, sole propriety,
In Paradise of all things common else Ib l 750

Sleep on,
Blest pair, and O yet happiest if ye seek No happier state, and know to know no more
Ib l 773

Him there they found
Squat like a toad, close at the ear of Eve Ib l 799.

Him thus intent Ithuriel with his spear
Touched lightly, for no falsehood can endure
Touch of celestial temper, but returns
Of force to its own likeness, up he starts
Discover'd and surpris'd Ib l 810

Not to know me argues yourselves unknown
Ib l 830

Abash'd the Devil stood,
And felt how awful goodness is, and saw Virtue in her shape how lovely Ib l 846

Of regal port,
But faded splendour wan Ib l 869

But wherefore thou alone? Wherefore with thee
Came not all hell broke loose? Ib l 917.

Then when I am thy captive talk of chains,
Proud liminary Cherub Ib l 970
Like Teneriff or Atlas unremov'd. Ib l 987.

Fled
Murmuring, and with him fled the shades of night
Ib l 1014

His sleep
Was aery light, from pure digestion bred.
Ib bk. v, l 3.

My fairest, my espoused, my latest found,
Heaven's last best gift, my ever new delight
Ib l 18.

Good, the more
Communicated, more abundant grows Ib l 71.
Best image of myself and dearer half Ib l 95.

These are thy glorious works, Parent of Good,
Almighty, thine this universal frame,
Thus wondrous fair, thyself how wondrous then!

Paradise Lost, bk v, l 153

Him first, him last, him midst, and without end
Ib l 165

A wilderness of sweets Ib l 294

Another morn
Ris'n on mid-noon Ib l 310

So saying, with despatchful looks in haste
She turns, on hospitable thoughts intent Ib l 331
From many a berry, and from sweet kernels press'd
She tempers dulcet creams Ib l 346

Nor jealousy
Was understood, the injured lover's hell Ib l 449

Son of Heav'n and Earth,
Attend that thou art happy, owe to God,
That thou continuest such, owe to thyself,
That is, to thy obedience, therein stand Ib l 519

Freely we serve,
Because we freely love, as in our will
To love or not, in this we stand or fall Ib l 538

What if earth
Be but the shadow of Heaven, and things therein
Each to other like, more than on earth is thought?
Ib l 574

Hear all ye Angels, progeny of light,
Thrones, Dominations, Princedoms, Virtues, Powers
Ib l 600

All seemed well pleased, all seemed but were not all
Ib l 617

And in their motions harmony divine
So smoothes her charming tones, that God's own ear
Listens delighted Ib l 625

Satan, so call him now, his former name
Is heard no more in heav'n Ib l 655

So spake the Seraph Abdiel, faithful found Among the faithless, faithful only he,
Among innumerable false, unmoved,
Unshaken, unseduced, unterrified
His loyalty he kept, his love, his zeal Ib l 893

All night the dreadless angel unpursued Through Heaven's wide champain held his way till morn,

Waked by the circling hours, with rosy hand
Unbarred the gates of light Ib bk vi, l 1

Servant of God, well done, wilt hast thou fought
The better fight, who singly hast maintained
Against revolted multitudes the cause
Of truth, in word mightier than they in arms
Ib l 29

He onward came, far off his coming shone Ib l 768.

Headlong themselves they threw Down from the verge of Heaven, eternal wrath
Burnt after them to the bottomless pit. Ib l 864

Standing on earth, not rapt above the Pole,
More safe I sing with mortal voice, unchang'd
To hoarse or mute, though fall'n on evil days,
On evil days though fall'n, and evil tongues
In darkness, and with dangers compass'd round,

And solitude, yet not alone, while thou
Visit'st my slumbers nightly, or when morn
Purples the east still govern thou my song,
Urania, and fit audience find, though few
But drive far off the barb'rous dissonance
Of Bacchus and his revellers Ib l 23

The affable Archangel Ib l 41

Necessity and chance
Approach not me, and what I will is fate Ib l 172

There Leviathan
Hugest of living creatures, on the deep
Stretch'd like a promontory sleeps or swims,
And seems a moving land, and at his gills
Draws in, and at his trunk spouts out a sea
Ib l 412

Now half appear'd
The tawny lion, pawing to get free
His hinder parts Ib l 463

The Planets in their stations list'ning stood,
While the bright Pomp ascended jubilant
Open, ye everlasting gates, they sung, Open, ye heavens, your living doors, let in
The great Creator from his work return'd
Magnificent, his six days' work, a world Ib l 563

The Angel ended, and in Adam's ear
So charming left his voice that he a while Thought him still speaking, still stood fixed to hear Ib bk viii, l 1

He his fabric of the Heavens
Hath left to their disputes, perhaps to move
His laughter at their quaint opinions wide Hereafter, when they come to model Heaven
And calculate the stars, how they will wield
The mighty frame, how build, unbuild, contrive
To save appearances, how grid the sphere
With centric and eccentric scribbled o'er,
Cycle and epicycle, orb in orb Ib l 76

Heaven is for thee too high
To know what passes there, be lowly wise
Think only what concerns thee and thy being
Ib l 172

Liquid lapse of murmuring streams Ib l 263

And feel that I am happier than I know Ib l 282

In solitude
What happiness? Who can enjoy alone,
Or all enjoying, what contentment find? Ib l 364

I waked
To find her, or for ever to deplore
Her loss, and other pleasures all abjure Ib l 478

Grace was in all her steps, heaven in her eye,
In every gesture dignity and love. Ib l 488

Her virtue, and the conscience of her worth,
That would be wooed, and not unsought be won
Ib l 502

The amorous bird of night
Sung spousal, and bid haste the evening star
On his hill top, to light the bridal lamp Ib l 518

The sum of earthly bliss. Ib l 522

So absolute she seems
And in herself complete, so well to know
Her own, that what she wills to do or say Seems wisest, virtuousest, discreetest, best Paradise Lost, bk viii, l 547

To whom the Angel with contracted brow Accuse not Nature, she hath done her part,
Do thou but thine, and be not diffident
Of wisdom, she deserts thee not, if thou
Dismiss not her Ib l 560

Of times nothing profits more Than self-esteem, grounded on just and right

1558?-1597

Fair and fair, and twice so fair,

As fair as any may be,

The fairest shepherd on our green,

A love for any lady

Works, ed Bullen, vol 1 Arraignment of Paris, 1 ii, 55 Song of Oenone and Paris

What thing is love for (well I wot) love is a thing

It is a prick, it is a sting,

It is a pretty, pretty thing,

It is a fire, it is a coal

Whose flame creeps in at every hole

Ib vol 11 Miscellaneous Poems The Hunting of Cupid, 1 1

His golden locks time hath to silver turn'd,

O time too swift, O swiftness never ceasing!

His youth 'gainst time and age hath ever spurn'd

But spurn'd in vain, youth waneth by increasing

Beauty, strength, youth, are flowers but fading seen,

Duty, faith, love, are roots, and ever green

Ib Polyhymnia, Sonnet ad juvem. A Farewell to Arms

His helmet now shall make a hive for bees,

And, lovers' sonnets turn'd to holy psalms,

A man-at-arms must now serve on his knees,

And feed on prayers, which are age his alms

But though from court to cottage he depart,

His saint is sure of his unspotted heart

Ib l 335

As some to church repair,
Not for the doctrine, but the music there
These equal syllables alone require,
Tho' oft the ear the open vowels tire,
While expletives their feeble aid do join,
And ten low words oft creep in one dull line

Ib l 342

Where'er you find 'the cooling western breeze',
In the next line, it 'whispers through the trees',
If crystal streams 'with pleasing murmurs creep',
The reader's threatened, not in vain, with 'sleep',
Then, at the last and only couplet fraught
With some unmeaning thing they call a thought,
A needless Alexandrine ends the song,
That, like a wounded snake, drags its slow length along

Ib l 350

True ease in writing comes from art, not chance,
As those move easiest who have learned to dance
'Tis not enough no harshness gives offence,
The sound must seem an echo to the sense
Soft is the strain when zephyr gently blows,
And the smooth stream in smoother numbers flows,
But when loud surges lash the sounding shore,
The hoarse, rough verse should like the torrent roar
When Ajax strives some rock's vast weight to throw,
The line too labours, and the words move slow
Not so, when swift Camilla scours the plain, Flies o'er th' unbending corn, and skims along the main

Ib l 362

Yet let not each gay turn thy rapture move;
For fools admire, but men of sense approve.

Awake, my St John! leave all meaner things
To low ambition, and the pride of kings
Let us, since life can little more supply
Than just to look about us and to die,
Expatiate free o'er all this scene of man,
A mighty maze! but not without a plan

An Essay on Man Epistle 1, l 1

Eye Nature's walks, shoot folly as it flies,
And catch the manners living as they rise
Laugh where we must, be candid where we can,
But vindicate the ways of God to man
Say first, of God above or man below,
What can we reason but from what we know?

Ib l 13

Observe how system into system runs,
What other planets circle other suns Ib l 25
Who sees with equal eye, as God of all,
A hero perish, or a sparrow fall,
Atoms or systems into ruin hurled,
And now a bubble burst, and now a world

Ib l 87

Hope springs eternal in the human breast,
Man never is, but always to be blessed
The soul, uneasy, and confined from home,
Rests and expatiates in a life to come
Lo, the poor Indian! whose untutored mind
Sees God in clouds, or hears him in the wind,
His soul proud science never taught to stray
Far as the solar walk or milky way,
Yet simple nature to his hope has giv'n,
Behind the cloud-topped hill, an humbler heav'n

Ib l 95

But thinks, admitted to that equal sky,
His faithful dog shall bear him company Ib l 111
In pride, in reason's pride, our error lies,
All quit their sphere and rush into the skies!
Pride still is aiming at the bless'd abodes,
Men would be angels, angels would be gods
Aspiring to be gods if angels fell,
Aspiring to be angels men rebel

It is not poetry, but prose run mad

Ib 1 187

Were there one whose fires

True genius kindles, and fair fame inspires,

Blest with each talent, and each art to please,

And born to write, converse, and live with ease

Should such a man, too fond to rule alone,

Bear, like the Turk, no brother near the throne,

View him with scornful, yet with jealous eyes,

And hate for arts that caused himself to rise,

Damn with faint praise, assent with civil leer,

And, without sneering, teach the rest to sneer,

Willing to wound, and yet afraid to strike,

Just hunt a fault, and hesitate dislike

Alike reserv'd to blame, or to commend,

A timorous foe, and a suspicious friend,

Dreading e'en fools, by flatterers besieged,

And so obliging, that he ne'er oblig'd,

Like Cato, give his little senate laws,

And sit attentive to his own applause,

While wits and Templars every sentence raise,

And wonder with a foolish face of praise—

Who but must laugh, if such a man there be?

Who would not weep, if Atticus were he!

[Addison]

- Where, where was Roderick then?
One blast upon his bugle-horn
Were worth a thousand men! Ib c. vi. xviii.
- The way was long, the wind was cold,
The Minstrel was infirm and old,
His wither'd cheek and tresses grey,
Seem'd to have known a better day.
The harp, his sole remaining joy,
Was carried by an orphan boy
The last of all the Bards was he,
Who sung of Border chivalry,
For, welladay! their date was fled,
His tuneful brethren all were dead,
And he, neglected and oppress'd,
Wish'd to be with them, and at rest
The Lay of the Last Minstrel, introd l i
- The unpremeditated lay Ib l 18
- Old times were changed, old manners gone,
A stranger fill'd the Stuarts' throne,
The bigots of the iron time
Had call'd his harmless art a crime Ib l 19.
- Nine-and-twenty knights of fame
Hung their shields in Branksome hall,
Nine-and-twenty squires of name
Brought them their steeds to bower from stall,
Nine-and-twenty yeomen tall
Waited, devout, on them all
They were all knights of mettle true,
Kinsmen to the bold Buccleuch Ib c i iii
- They carv'd at the meal
With gloves of steel,
And they drank the red wine through the helmet barr'd Ib iv.
- Such is the custom of Branksome Hall Ib vii.

Vengeance, deep-brooding o'er the slain,
Had lock'd the source of softer woe,
And burning pride and high disdain
Forbade the rising tear to flow

The Lay of the Last Minstrel, c 1 ix

To her bidding she could bow

The viewless forms of air Ib xii

What shall be the maiden's fate?

Who shall be the maiden's mate? Ib xvi

Steady of heart, and stout of hand Ib xxi

Sir William of Deloraine, good at need Ib xxii

Yet, through good heart, and Oure Ladye's grace,

At length he gain'd the landing-place Ib xxix

If thou would'st view fair Melrose aright,

Go visit it by the pale moonlight,

For the gay beams of lightsome day

Gild, but to flout, the ruins grey Ib c 11 i

Strange sounds along the chancel pass'd,

The banners wav'd without a blast Ib xvi

Yet somewhat was he chill'd with dread,

And his hair did bristle upon his head Ib

I cannot tell how the truth may be,

I say the tale as 'twas said to me Ib xxii

In peace, Love tunes the shepherd's reed,

In war, he mounts the warrior's steed,

In halls, in gay attire is seen,

In hamlets, dances on the green

Love rules the court, the camp, the grove,

And men below, and saints above,

For love is heaven, and heaven is love Ib c 111 ii

And laugh'd, and shouted, 'Lost! lost! lost!'

Ib xiii

Why, when the volleying musket play'd

Against the bloody Highland blade,

Why was not I beside him laid!

Enough, he died the death of fame,

Enough, he died with conquering Graeme

Ib c 14 ii

For ne'er

Was flattery lost on poet's ear

A simple race! they waste their toil

For the vain tribute of a smile Ib conclusion

Call it not vain, they do not err,

Who say, that when the Poet dies,

Mute Nature mourns her worshipper,

And celebrates his obsequies Ib c v i

The secret sympathy,

The silver link, the silken tie,

Which heart to heart, and mind to mind,

In body and in soul can bind Ib c v xiii

Breathes there the man, with soul so dead,

Who never to himself hath said,

This is my own, my native land!

Whose heart hath ne'er within him burn'd,

As home his footsteps he hath turn'd

From wandering on a foreign strand!

If such there breathe, go, mark him well,

For him no Minstrel raptures swell,

High though his titles, proud his name,

Boundless his wealth as wish can claim,

Despite those titles, power, and pelf,

The wretch, concentred all in self,

Living, shall forfeit fair renown,
And, doubly dying, shall go down
To the vile dust, from whence he sprung,
Unwept, unhonour'd, and unsung

O Caledonia! stern and wild,

Meet nurse for a poetic child!

Land of brown heath and shaggy wood,

Land of the mountain and the flood,

Land of my sires! what mortal hand

Can e'er untie the filial band

That knits me to thy rugged strand! Ib c vi 1-11

For Love will still be lord of all Ib xi

The elvish page fell to the ground,

And, shuddering, mutter'd, 'Found! found! found!'

Where shall the lover rest,
Whom the fates sever
From his true maiden's breast,
Parted for ever?

Where, through groves deep and high,
Sounds the far billow,
Where early violets die,
Under the willow Ib c iii x

In the lost battle,
Borne down by the flying,
Where mingles war's rattle
With groans of the dying Ib xi

Still is thy name in high account,
And still thy verse has charms,
Sir David Lindesay of the Mount,
Lord Lion King-at-arms! Ib c iv vii

O, young Lochinvar is come out of the west,
Through all the wide Border his steed was the best Ib c v, xii

So faithful in love, and so dauntless in war,
There never was knight like the young Lochinvar Ib

For a leggard in love, and a dastard in war,
Was to wed the fair Ellen of brave Lochinvar Ib

'O come ye in peace here, or come ye in war,
Or to dance at our bridal, young Lord Lochinvar?'
Ib

'To lead but one measure, drink one cup of wine'

They'll have fleet steeds that follow' quoth young Lochinvar Ib

Heap on more wood!—the wind is chill,
But let it whistle as it will,
We'll keep our Christmas merry still Ib c vi, introd 1

England was merry England, when Old Christmas brought his sports again,
'Twas Christmas broach'd the mightiest ale,
'Twas Christmas told the merriest tale,
A Christmas gambol oft could cheer
The poor man's heart through half the year. Ib iii

What skilful limner e'er would choose
To paint the rainbow's varying hues,
Unless to mortal it were given
To dip his brush in dyes of heaven? Ib c vi v.

My castles are my King's alone,
From turret to foundation-stone—
The hand of Douglas is his own Ib xiii

'And dar'st thou then

The Douglas in his hall?
And hop'st thou thence unscathed to go?
No, by Saint Bride of Bothwell, no!
Up drawbridge, grooms—what, warder, ho!
Let the portcullis fall' Ib xiv

O what a tangled web we weave,
When first we practise to deceive! Ib xvii

Scarce could they hear, or see their foes,
Until at weapon-point they close
They close, in clouds of smoke and dust,
With sword-sway, and with lance's thrust,
And such a yell was there,
Of sudden and portentous birth,
As if men fought upon the earth,
And fiends in upper air Ib xxv

Good-night to Marmion Ib xxviii

O Woman! in our hours of ease,
Uncertain, coy, and hard to please,
And variable as the shade

Eternity was in our lips and eyes, Bliss in our brows bent Ib 35.

Quietness, grown sick of rest, would purge By any desperate change Ib 53

Though age from folly could not give me freedom, It does from childishness Ib 57

At the last, best Ib 61

O! my oblivion is a very Antony, And I am all forgotten Ib 90

'Tis sweating labour

To bear such idleness so near the heart As Cleopatra this Ib 93

This common body,

Like to a vagabond flag upon the stream, Goes to and back, lacking the varying tide, To rot itself with motion Ib iv 44

On the Alps

It is reported thou didst eat strange flesh, Which some did die to look on. Ib 66.

Give me to drink mandragora
 That I might sleep out this great gap of time
 My Antony is away Antony and Cleopatra, I v 4
 The demi-Atlas of this earth, the arm
 And burgonet of men Ib 23
 Where's my serpent of old Nile? Ib 25

Think on me,
 That am with Phæbus' amorous pinches black,
 And wrinkled deep in time? Broad-fronted Cæsar, When thou wast here above the ground I was A morsel for a monarch, and great Pompey
 Would stand and make his eyes grow in my brow,
 There would he anchor his aspect and die
 With looking on his life Ib 27

My salad days,
 When I was green in judgment Ib 73

We, ignorant of ourselves,
 Beg often our own harms, which the wise powers
 Deny us for our good, so find we profit
 By losing of our prayers Ib II 1 5

I do not much dislike the matter, but
 The manner of his speech Ib II 117

No worse a husband than the best of men Ib 135

The barge she sat in, like a burnish'd throne,
 Burn'd on the water, the poop was beaten gold,
 Purple the sails, and so perfumed, that The winds were love-sick with them, the oars were silver,

Which to the tune of flutes kept stroke, and made
 The water which they beat to follow faster,
 As amorous of their strokes For her own person,
 It beggar'd all description, she did lie
 In her pavilion,—cloth-of-gold of tissue,— O'er-picturing that Venus where we see
 The fancy outwork nature, on each side her Stood pretty-dimpled boys, like smiling Cupids, With divers-colour'd fans, whose wind did seem
 To glow the delicate cheeks which they did cool,
 And what they undid did Ib [199]

Her gentlewomen, like the Nereides,
 So many mermaids, tended her i' the eyes,
 And made their bends adornings, at the helm
 A seeming mermaid steers, the silken tackle
 Swell with the touches of those flower-soft hands,
 That yarely frame the office From the barge
 A strange unclose perfume hits the sense
 Of the adjacent wharfs The city cast
 Her people out upon her, and Antony, Enthron'd i' the market-place, did sit alone,
 Whistling to the air, which, but for vacancy,
 Had gone to gaze on Cleopatra too
 And made a gap in nature Ib [214]

I saw her once
 Hop forty paces through the public street,
 And having lost her breath, she spoke, and panted
 That she did make defect perfection,
 And, breathless, power breathe forth Ib [236]

Age cannot wither her, nor custom stale
 Her infinite variety, other women cloy
 The appetites they feed, but she makes hungry
 Where most she satisfies, for vilest things
 Become themselves in her, that the holy priests
 Bless her when she is riggish Ib [243]

Read not my blemishes in the world's report,
 I have not kept the square, but thit to come Shall all be done by the rule Ib III 5

Music, moody food
 Of us that trade in love Ib v 1

I laugh'd him out of patience, and that night
 I laugh'd him into patience and next morn,
 Ere the ninth hour, I drunk him to his bed Ib 19

There is gold, and here
 My bluest veins to kiss, a hand that kings
 Have lipp'd, and trembled kissing Ib 28

Pour out the pack of matter to mine ear,
 The good and bad together Ib 54

Though it be honest, it is never good
 To bring bad news, give to a gracious message
 A host of tongues, but let ill tidings tell Themselves when they be felt Ib 85

I will praise any man that will praise me

LLPIDUS
 What manner o' thing is your crocodile?

ANTONY
 It is shaped, sir, like itself, and it is as broad as it hath breadth, it is just so high as it is, and moves with its own organs, it lives by that which nourish-eth it, and the elements once out of it, it transmigrates

 What colour is it of?

ANTONY
 Of its own colour too

LEPIDUS
 'Tis a strange serpent

ANTONY
 'Tis so, and the tears of it are wet. Ib VII [47]

Ah! this thou shouldst have done,
 And not have spoken on't In me 'tis villainy,
 In thee 't had been good service Ib [80]

Come, thou monarch of the vine,
 Plumpy Bacchus with pink eye!
 In thy fats our cares be drown'd,
 With thy grapes our hairs be crown'd:
 Cup us, till the world go round,
 Cup us, till the world go round! Ib [119]

Ambition,
 The soldier's virtue. Ib III 1 22

The swan's down-feather,
 That stands upon the swell at full of tide,
 And neither wavy inclines Ib II 48

The ostentation of our love, which, left unshown,
 Is often left unlov'd Ib VI 52

But let determin'd things to destiny
 Hold unbewail'd their way Ib 84

We have kiss'd away
 Kingdoms and provinces Ib VIII 17

Fortune knows
 We scorn her most when most she offers blows
Ib IX 73

Which had superfluous kings for messengers
 Not many moons gone by Ib v 5

He wears the rose
 Of youth upon him Ib VI 20

Men's judgments are
A parcel of their fortunes, and things outward
Do draw the inward quality after them,
To suffer all alike Antony and Cleopatra, III xi 31
Against the blown rose may they stop their nose,
That kneel'd unto the buds Ib 39

Yet he that can endure
To follow with allegiance a fall'n lord,
Does conquer him that did his master conquer,
And earns a place i' the story Ib 43

Your Cæsar's father oft,
When he hath mus'd of taking kingdoms in,
Bestow'd his lips on that unworthy place,
As it rain'd kisses Ib 82

But when we in our viciousness grow hard,— O misery on't!—the wise gods seal our eyes,
In our own filth drop our clear judgments, make us Adore our errors, laugh at's while we strut
To our confusion Ib 111

I found you as a morsel cold upon Dead Cæsar's trencher Ib 116

My playfellow, your hand, this kingly seal
And plighter of high hearts Ib 125

Henceforth,
The white hand of a lady fever thee,
Shake thou to look on't Ib 137
Let's have one other gaudy night Ib 182

Since my lord
Is Antony again, I will be Cleopatra Ib 185
Know that tomorrow the last of many battles
We mean to fight Ib IV i 11

To business that we love we rise betime,
And go to't with delight Ib IV 20

O! my fortunes have Corrupted honest men Ib v 16
I am alone the villain of the earth,
And feel I am so most. Ib vi 30

Ride on the pants triumphing Ib viii 16
O infinite virtue! com'st thou smiling from
The world's great snare uncaught? Ib 17

My nightingale,
We have beat them to their beds Ib 18
O sovereign mistress of true melancholy Ib ix 12

Swallows have built
In Cleopatra's sails their nests, the augurers
Say they know not, they cannot tell Ib x 16

The hearts
That spaniel'd me at heels, to whom I gave Their wishes, do discandy, melt their sweets
On blossoming Cæsar Ib 33

The soul and body rive not more in parting
Than greatness going off Ib xi 5

Sometimes we see a cloud that's dragonish,
A vapour sometime like a bear or lion,
A tower'd citadel, a pendant rock,
A forked mountain, or blue promontory
With trees upon't, that nod unto the world And mock our eyes with air thou hast seen these signs,
They are black vesper's pageants Ib xii 2

That which is now a horse, even with a thought
The rack dislimns, and makes it indistinct,
As water is in water Ib 9

Unarm, Eros; the long day's task is done,
And we must sleep Ib 35.

I will o'ertake thee, Cleopatra, and Weep for my pardon So it must be, for now
All length is torture, since the torch is out,
Lie down, and stray no further Now all labour
Mars what it does, yea, very force entangles
Itself with strength, seal then, and all is done
Eros!—I come, my queen—Eros!—Stay for me
Where souls do couch on flowers, we'll hand in hand,
And with our sprightly port make the ghosts gaze,
Dido and her Æneas shall want troops,
And all the haunt be ours Ib 44

Since Cleopatra died,
I have liv'd in such dishonour, that the gods
Detest my baseness Ib 55

But I will be
A bridegroom in my death, and run into 't
As to a lover's bed Ib 99

All strange and terrible events are welcome,
But comforts we despise Ib xiii 3

ANTONY:
Not Cæsar's valour hath o'er thrown Antony
But Antony's hath triumphed on itself
CLEOPATRA
So it should be, that none but Antony
Should conquer Antony Ib 14.

I am dying, Egypt, dying, only
I here importune death awhile, until
Of many thousand kisses the poor last
I lay upon thy lips Ib 18

The miserable change now at my end
Lament nor sorrow at, but please your thoughts
In feeding them with those my former fortunes
Wherein I liv'd, the greatest prince o' the world,
The noblest, and do now not basely die,
Not cowardly put off my helmet to My countryman, a Roman by a Roman Valiantly vanquished Ib 51.

Hast thou no care of me? shall I abide In this dull world, which in thy absence is No better than a sty? O! see my women,
The crown o' the earth doth melt My lord!
O! wither'd is the garland of the war,
The soldier's pole is fall'n, young boys and girls
Are level now with men, the odds is gone,
And there is nothing left remarkable
Beneath the visiting moon Ib 60

No more, but e'en a woman and commanded
By such poor passion as the maid that milks
And does the meanest chares Ib 73

What's brave, what's noble,
Let's do it after the high Roman fashion,
And make death proud to take us. Ib 86.

A rarer spirit never Did steer humanity, but you, gods, will give us
Some faults to make us men Ib v 1. 31.

My désolâtion does begin to make
 A better life 'Tis paltry to be Cæsar,
 Not being Fortune, he's but Fortune's knave,
 A minister of her will, and it is great
 To do that thing that ends all other deeds,
 Which shackles accidents, and bolts up change,
 Which sleeps, and never palates more the dug,
 The beggar's nurse and Cæsar's

Antony and Cleopatra, v 11 1

Nor once be chastis'd with the sober eye
 Of dull Octavia Shall they hoist me up
 And show me to the shouting varletry
 Of censuring Rome? Rather a ditch in Egypt
 Be gentle grave unto me! rather on Nilus' mud
 Lay me stark naked, and let the water-flies
 Blow me into abhorring! Ib 54

His legs bestrid the ocean, his rear'd arm
 Crested the world, his voice was property
 As all the tuned spheres, and that to friends,
 But when he meant to quail and shake the orb,
 He was as rattling thunder For his bounty,
 There was no winter in't, an autumn was
 That grew the more by reaping, his delights
 Were dolphin-like, they show'd his back above
 The element they liv'd in, in his livery Walk'd crowns and crownets, realms and islands were
 As plates dropp'd from his pocket Ib 82

He words me, girls, he words me, that I should not Be noble to myself Ib 190

Finish, good lady, the bright day is done,
 And we are for the dark Ib 192

Antony

Shall be brought drunken forth, and I shall see Some squeaking Cleopatra boy my greatness
 I' the posture of a whore Ib 217

I am again for Cydnus,
 To meet Mark Antony Ib 227

His biting is immortal; those that do die of it do seldom or never recover Ib [246]

A very honest woman, but something given to lie
Ib [251]

I know that a woman is a dish for the gods if the devil dress her not Ib [274]

I have Immortal longings in me Ib [282]

Husband, I come
 Now to that name my courage prove my title!
 I am fire and air, my other elements
 I give to baser life Ib [289]

If thou and nature can so gently part,
 The stroke of death is as a lover's pinch,
 Which hurts, and is desir'd Ib [296]

If thus thou vanishest, thou tell'st the world
 It is not worth leave-taking Ib [299]

CLEOPATRA

If she first meet the curled Antony,
 He'll make demand of her, and spend that kiss
 Which is my heaven to have Come, thou mortal wretch,

With thy sharp teeth this knot intrinsicate
 Of life at once untie, poor venomous fool,
 Be angry, and dispatch O! couldst thou speak,
 That I might hear thee call great Cæsar ass Unpoliced

CHARMIAN

O eastern star!

CLEOPATRA Peace! peace!
 Dost thou not see my baby at my breast,
 That sucks the nurse asleep? Ib [303]

Now boast thee, death, in thy possession lies
 A lass unparallel'd Ib [317]

It is well done, and fitting for a princess Descended of so many royal kings Ib [328]

As she would catch another Antony
 In her strong toil of grace Ib [348]

She hath pursu'd conclusions infinite
 Of easy ways to die Ib [356]

Let us sit and mock the good housewife Fortune from her wheel, that her gifts may henceforth be bestowed equally As You Like It, i 1 [35]

How now, wit! whither wander you? Ib [60]

Your heart's desires be with you! Ib [214]

One out of suits with fortune Ib [263]

My pride fell with my fortunes Ib [269]

Sir, you have wrastled well, and overthrown
 More than your enemies Ib [271]

Hereafter, in a better world than this,
 I shall desire more love and knowledge of you
Ib [301]

Thus must I from the smoke into the smother,
 From tyrant duke unto a tyrant brother Ib [304]

O, how full of briars is this working-day world!
Ib iii [12]

We'll have a swashing and a martial outside,
 As many other mannish cowards have
 That do outface it with their semblances Ib [123].

Hath not old custom made this life more sweet
 Than that of painted pomp? Are not these woods
 More free from peril than the envious court?
 Here feel we but the penalty of Adam,
 The seasons' difference, as, the icy fang
 And churlish chiding of the winter's wind,
 Which, when it bits and blows upon my body,
 Even till I shrink with cold, I smile and say,
 'This is no flattery' Ib ii 1 2

Sweet are the uses of adversity,
 Which like the toad, ugly and venomous,
 Wears yet a precious jewel in his head,
 And thus our life, exempt from public haunt,
 Finds tongues in trees, books in the running brooks,
 Sermons in stones, and good in everything Ib 12.

The big round tears

Cours'd one another down his innocent nose,
 In piteous chase Ib 38.

'Poor deer,' quoth he, 'thou mak'st a testament
 As worldlings do, giving thy sum of more
 To that which had too much' Ib 47

Sweep on, you fat and greasy citizens!
Ib 55.

I love to cope him in these sullen fits,
 For then he's full of matter Ib 67.

Though I look old, yet I am strong and lusty,
 For in my youth I never did apply
 Hot and rebellious liquors in my blood. Ib iii 47.

Therefore my age is as a lusty winter,
Frosty, but kindly As You Like It, II iii 52

O good old man! how well in thee appears
The constant service of the antique world,
When service sweat for duty, not for meed!
Thou art not for the fashion of these times,
Where none will sweat but for promotion,
And having that, do choke their service up
Even with the having Ib 56

Ay, now am I in Arden, the more fool I When I was at home I was in a better place: but travellers must be content Ib iv [16]

As true a lover
As ever sigh'd upon a midnight pillow Ib [26]

If thou remember'st not the slightest folly
That ever love did make thee run into,
Thou hast not lov'd Ib [34]

We that are true lovers run into strange capers

Thou speakest wiser than thou art ware of
Ib [57]

I shall ne'er be ware of mine own wit till I break my shins against it Ib [59]

My master is of churlish disposition
And little reckes to find the way to heaven
By doing deeds of hospitality Ib [81]

Under the greenwood tree
Who loves to lie with me,
And turn his merry note
Unto the sweet bird's throat,
Come hither, come hither, come hither
Here shall he see
No enemy

But winter and rough weather Ib v 1

I can suck melancholy out of a song as a weasel sucks eggs Ib [12]

Who doth ambition shun
And loves to live i' the sun,
Seeking the food he eats,
And pleas'd with what he gets Ib [38]

I'll rail against all the first-born in Egypt Ib [60]

A fool, a fool! I met a fool i' the forest,
A motley fool Ib vii 12

And rail'd on Lady Fortune in good terms,
In good set terms Ib 16

'Call me not fool till heaven hath sent me fortune'
And then he drew a dial from his poke,
And, looking on it with lack-lustre eye,
Says very wisely, 'It is ten o'clock,
Thus may we see,' quoth he, 'how the world wags'
Ib 19

And so, from hour to hour, we ripe and ripe,
And then from hour to hour, we rot and rot
And thereby hangs a tale Ib 26

My lungs began to crow like chanticleer,
That fools should be so deep-contemplative,
And I did laugh sans intermission
An hour by his dial O noble fool!
A worthy fool! Motley's the only wear Ib 30

And says, if ladies be but young and fair,
They have the gift to know it and in his brain,—

Which is as dry as the remainder biscuit
After a voyage,—he hath strange places cramm'd
With observation, the which he vents
In mangled forms. Ib 37.

I must have liberty
Withal, as large a charter as the wind,
To blow on whom I please Ib 47.
The 'why' is plain as way to parish church. Ib 52.

But whate'er you are
That in this desert inaccessible,
Under the shade of melancholy boughs,
Lose and neglect the creeping hours of time,
If ever you have look'd on better days,
If ever been where bells have knoll'd to church,
If ever sat at any good man's feast,
If ever from your eyelids wip'd a tear,
And know what 'tis to pity, and be pitied,
Let gentleness my strong enforcement be Ib 109.
There is an old poor man,

Oppress'd with two weak evils, age and hunger
Ib 129

All the world's a stage,
And all the men and women merely players:
They have their exits and their entrances,
And one man in his time plays many parts,
His acts being seven ages At first the infant,
Mewling and puking in the nurse's arms
And then the whining schoolboy, with his satchel,
And shining morning face, creeping like snail
Unwillingly to school And then the lover,
Sighing like furnace, with a woful ballad
Made to his mistress' eyebrow Then a soldier,
Full of strange oaths, and bearded like the pard,
Jealous in honour, sudden and quick in quarrel,
Seeking the bubble reputation
Even in the cannon's mouth And then the justice,
In fair round belly with good capon lin'd,
With eyes severe, and beard of formal cut,
Full of wise saws and modern instances,
And so he plays his part The sixth age shifts
Into the lean and slipper'd pantaloon,
With spectacles on nose and pouch on side,
His youthful hose well sav'd a world too wide
For his shrunk shank, and his big manly voice,
Turning again towards childish treble, pipes
And whistles in his sound Last scene of all,
That ends this strange eventful history,
Is second childishness, and mere oblivion,
Sans teeth, sans eyes, sans taste, sans everything
Ib 139.

Blow, blow, thou winter wind,
Thou art not so unkind

As man's ingratitude

Thy tooth is not so keen,

Because thou art not seen,

Although thy breath be rude

Heigh-ho! sing, heigh-ho! unto the green holly
Most friendship is feigning, most loving were folly.

Then heigh-ho! the holly!

This life is most jolly

Freeze, freeze, thou bitter sky,

That dost not bite so nigh

As benefits forgot

Though thou the waters warp,

Thy sting is not so sharp

As friend remember'd not.

It is to be all made of sighs and tears,—

It is to be all made of faith and service,—

Custom calls me to 't

What custom wills, in all things should we do't,

The dust on antique time would lie unswept,

And mountainous error be too highly heap'd

For truth to o'erpeer Ib ii iii [124]

I thank you for your voices, thank you,

Your most sweet voices Ib [179]

The mutable, rank-scented many Ib iii 1 65

Hear you this Triton of the minnows? mark you

His absolute 'shall'? Ib 88

His nature is too noble for the world

He would not flatter Neptune for his trident,

Or Jove for's power to thunder His heart's his mouth

What his breast forges, that his tongue must vent

Ib 254

You common cry of curs! whose breath I hate

As reek o' the rotten fens, whose loves I prize

As the dead carcasses of unburied men

That do corrupt my air,—I banish you. Ib iii 118

The beast

With many heads butts me away Ib iv 1 1

Under the canopy I' the city of kites and crows

Ib v. [41]

I'll never

Be such a gosling to obey instinct, but stand

As if a man were author of himself

And knew no other kin Ib v iii 34

Like a dull actor now,

I have forgot my part, and I am out,

Even to a full disgrace Ib 40.

O! a kiss

Long as my exile, sweet as my revenge!

Now, by the jealous queen of heaven, that kiss

I carried from thee, dear, and my true lip

Hath virgin'd it e'er since Ib 44

Chaste as the icicle

That's curdied by the frost from purest snow,

And hangs on Dian's temple Ib 65

Thou hast never in thy life

Show'd thy dear mother any courtesy,

When she—poor hen! fond of no second brood—

Has cluck'd thee to the wars, and safely home,

Loaden with honour Ib 160

If you have writ your annals true, 'tis there,

That, like an eagle in a dove-cote, I

Flutter'd your Volscians in Corioli.

Alone I did it. Ib v 114

On her left breast

A mole cinque-spotted, like the crimson drops

I' the bottom of a cowslip Cymbeline, ii 11 37

Hark! hark! the lark at heaven's gate sings,

And Phœbus' gins arise,

His steeds to water at those springs

On chaliced flowers that lies,

And winking Mary-buds begin

To open their golden eyes

With everything that pretty is,

My lady sweet, arise! Ib iii [22]

Is there no way for men to be, but women

Must be half-workers? Ib v 1

As chaste as unsunn'd snow. Ib 13

There be many Cæsars

Ere such another Julius Britain is

A world by itself, and we will nothing pay

For wearing our own noses Ib iii 1 11

The natural bravery of your isle, which stands

As Neptune's park, ribbed and paled in

With rocks unscalable, and roaring waters. Ib 18

O, for a horse with wings! Ib ii [49]

What should we speak of

When we are as old as you? when we shall hear

The rain and wind beat dark December, how,

In this our pinching cave, shall we discourse

The freezing hours away? Ib iii 35

Some jay of Italy,

Whose mother was her painting, hath betray'd him

Poor I am stale, a garment out of fashion Ib iv [51]

I have not slept one wink. Ib [103]

Hath Britain all the sun that shines? Ib [139]

To lapse in fulness

Is sorer than to lie for need, and falsehood

Is worse in kings than beggars Ib vi 12

Weariness

Can snore upon the flint when resty sloth
Finds the down pillow hard Cymbeline, III vi 33

Thou shalt not lack

The flower that's like thy face, pale primrose, nor
The azur'd harebell, like thy veins Ib IV ii 220

Great griefs, I see, medicine the less Ib 243

Though mean and mighty rotting

Together, have one dust, yet reverence—
That angel of the world—doth make distinction
Of place 'tween high and low Ib 246

Thersites' body is as good as Ajax'
When neither are alive Ib 252

Fear no more the heat o' the sun,

Nor the furious winter's rages,

Thou thy worldly task hast done,

Home art gone and t'en thy wages

Golden lads and girls all must,

As chimney-sweepers, come to dust

Fear no more the frown o' the great,

Thou art past the tyrant's stroke.

Care no more to clothe and eat,

To thee the reed is as the oak

The sceptre, learning, physic, must

All follow this, and come to dust

Fear no more the lightning flash,

Nor the all-dreaded thunder-stone,

Fear not slander, censure rash,

Thou hast finish'd joy and moan

All lovers young, all lovers must

Consign to thee, and come to dust

No exorciser harm thee!

Nor no witchcraft charm thee!

Ghost unlaid forbear thee!

Nothing ill come near thee!

Quiet consummation have,
And renowned be thy grave! Ib 258

Every good servant does not all commands
Ib v 1 6

He that sleeps feels not the toothache Ib iv [176]

He spake of her as Didon had hot dreams,
And she alone were cold Ib v 181

IMOGEN

Why did you throw your wedded lady from you?

Think that you are upon a rock, and now

Throw me again

POSTHUMUS

Hang there like fruit, my soul,

Till the tree die! Ib 262

Pardon's the word to all Ib 423

You come most carefully upon your hour
Hamlet, I 1 6

For this relief much thanks, 'tis bitter cold,
And I am sick at heart Ib 8

O! farewell, honest soldier Ib 16

BERNARDO

What! is Horatio there?

HORATIO

A piece of him. Ib 19

What! has this thing appear'd again tonight?
Ib 21

Look, where it comes again! Ib 40

But in the gross and scope of my opinion,
This bodes some strange eruption to our state
Ib 68

This sweaty haste

Doth make the night joint-labourer with the day
Ib 77

Of unimproved metal hot and full Ib 96

This post-haste and romage in the land Ib 107

In the most high and palmy state of Rome,
A little ere the mightiest Julius fell,
The graves stood tenantless and the sheeted dead
Did squeak and gibber in the Roman streets
Ib 113

The moist star

Upon whose influence Neptune's empire stands
Was sick almost to doomsday with eclipse Ib 118

I'll cross it, though it blast me Ib 127

We do it wrong, being so majestic,
To offer it the show of violence,
For it is, as the air, invulnerable,
And our vain blows malicious mockery Ib 143

And then it started like a guilty thing
Upon a fearful summons Ib 148

Whether in sea or fire, in earth or air,
The extravagant and erring spirit hies
To his confine Ib 153

It faded on the crowing of the cock
Some say that ever 'gainst that season comes Wherein our Saviour's birth is celebrated,
The bird of dawning singeth all night long,
And then, they say, no spirit can walk abroad,
The nights are wholesome, then no planets strike,
No fairy takes, nor witch hath power to charm,
So hallow'd and so gracious is the time Ib 157

But, look, the morn, in russet mantle clad,
Walks o'er the dew of yon high eastward hill
Ib 166

The memory be green Ib II 2

Therefore our sometime sister, now our queen
Ib 8

With one suspicious and one dropping eye,
With mirth in funeral and with dirge in marriage,
In equal scale weighing delight and dole Ib 11

The head is not more native to the heart Ib 47

A little more than kin, and less than kind Ib 65

Not so, my lord, I am too much 't the sun Ib 67.

Good Hamlet, cast thy nighted colour off,
And let thine eye look like a friend on Denmark
Ib 68

QUEEN

Thou know'st 'tis common, all that live must die,
Passing through nature to eternity

HAMLET

Ay, madam, it is common Ib 72.

Seems, madam! Nay, it is, I know not 'seems'.

'Tis not alone my inky cloak, good mother,
Nor customary suits of solemn black,
Nor windy suspiration of forc'd breath,
No, nor the fruitful river in the eye,
Nor the dejected 'haviour of the visage,
Together with all forms, modes, shows of grief,
That can denote me truly, these indeed seem,
For they are actions that a man might play
But I have that within which passeth show,
These but the trappings and the suits of woe

Hamlet, 1 ii 76.

But to persevere

In obstinate condescendence is a course
Of impious stubbornness, 'tis unmanly grief,
It shows a will most incorrect to heaven,
A heart unfortified, a mind impatient Ib 92

I shall in all my best obey you, madam

QUEEN

Why, 'tis a loving and a fair reply Ib 120

O! that this too too solid flesh would melt,
Thaw, and resolve itself into a dew,
Or that the Everlasting had not fix'd
His canon 'gainst self-slaughter! O God! O God!
How weary, stale, flat, and unprofitable
Seem to me all the uses of this world
Fie on't! O fie! 'tis an unweeded garden,
That grows to seed, things rank and gross in nature
Possess it merely 'That it should come to this!
But two months dead 'nay, not so much, not two
So excellent a king, that was, to this,
Hyperion to a satyr 'so loving to my mother,
That he might not betwixt the winds of heaven
Visit her face too roughly. Heaven and earth!
Must I remember? Why, she would hang on him,
As if increase of appetite had grown
By what it fed on, and yet, within a month,
Let me not think on't 'Frailty, thy name is woman!
A little month, or ere those shoes were old
With which she follow'd my poor father's body, Like Niobe, all tears, why she, even she,— O God! a beast, that wants discourse of reason,
Would have mourn'd longer,—married with mine uncle,

My father's brother, but no more like my father
Than I to Hercules Ib 129

It is not, nor it cannot come to good,
But break, my heart, for I must hold my tongue! Ib 158

A truant disposition, good my lord Ib 169
We'll teach you to drink deep ere you depart. Ib 175

Thrift, thrift, Horatio! the funeral bak'd meats
Did coldly furnish forth the marriage tables.
Would I had met my dearest foe in heaven
Ere I had ever seen that day, Horatio! Ib 180

In my mind's eye, Horatio Ib 185.

He was a man, take him for all in all,
I shall not look upon his like again. Ib 187

Season your admiration for a while. Ib 192

In the dead vast and middle of the night. Ib 198.

Armed at points exactly, cap-a-pe. Ib 200

Distill'd

Almost to jelly with the act of fear, Ib 204

These hands are not more like. Ib 212

But answer made it none Ib 215

A countenance more in sorrow than in anger. Ib 231.

While one with moderate haste might tell a hundred Ib 237

His beard was grizzled, no?

HORATIO

It was, as I have seen it in his life,
A sable silver'd Ib 239

Give it an understanding, but no tongue. Ib 249

Upon the platform, 'twixt eleven and twelve Ib 251

All is not well;
I doubt some foul play. Ib 254

Foul deeds will rise,
Though all the earth o'erwhelm them, to men's eyes Ib 256.

A violet in the youth of primy nature,
Forward, not permanent, sweet, not lasting
The perfume and suppliance of a minute Ib iii 7

His greatness weigh'd, his will is not his own,
For he himself is subject to his birth;
He may not, as unvalu'd persons do,
Carve for himself, for on his choice depends
The safety and the health of the whole state Ib 17

And keep you in the rear of your affection. Ib 34

Do not, as some ungracious pastors do,
Show me the steep and thorny way to heaven,
Whiles, like a puff'd and reckless libertine,
Himself the primrose path of dalliance treads,
And recks not his own rede. Ib 47

A double blessing is a double grace,
Occasion smiles upon a second leave Ib 53

And these few precepts in thy memory
See thou character 'Give thy thoughts no tongue, Nor any unproportion'd thought his act
Be thou familiar, but by no means vulgar,
The friends thou hast, and their adoption tried,
Grapple them to thy soul with hoops of steel,
But do not dull thy palm with entertainment
Of each new-hatch'd, unfledg'd comrade. Beware
Of entrance to a quarrel, but, being in,
Bear't that th' opposed may beware of thee.
Give every man thine ear, but few thy voice;
Take each man's censure, but reserve thy judgment.
Costly thy habit as thy purse can buy,
But not express'd in fancy, rich, not gaudy,
For the apparel oft proclaims the man,
And they in France of the best rank and station
Are most select and generous, chief in that Neither a borrower, nor a lender be,
For loan oft loses both itself and friend,
And borrowing dulls the edge of husbandry
This above all to thine own self be true,
And it must follow, as the night the day,
Thou canst not then be false to any man
Farewell, my blessing season this in thee! Ib 58.

You speak like a green girl,
Unsifted in such perilous circumstance
Hamlet, 1 iii 101

Ay, springes to catch woodcocks I do know,
When the blood burns, how prodigal the soul
Lends the tongue vows. Ib 115

Be somewhat scater of your maiden presence
Ib 121

I would not, in plain terms, from this time forth,
Have you so slander any moment's leisure Ib 132

The air bites shrewdly, it is very cold

HORATIO

It is a nipping and an eager air Ib iv 1

But to my mind,—though I am native here,
And to the manner born,—it is a custom
More honour'd in the breach than the observance
Ib 14

Angels and ministers of grace defend us!
Be thou a spirit of health or goblin damn'd,
Bring with thee airs from heaven or blasts from hell,
Be thy intents wicked or charitable,
Thou com'st in such a questionable shape
That I will speak to thee I'll call thee Hamlet, King, father, royal Dane, O! answer me
Let me not burst in ignorance, but tell
Why thy canoniz'd bones, hearsed in death,
Have burst their cerements, why the sepulchre,
Wherein we saw thee quietly inurn'd,
Hath op'd his ponderous and marble jaws,
To cast thee up again What may this mean,
That thou, dead corse, again in complete steel
Revisit'st thus the glummocks of the moon,
Making night hideous, and we fools of nature
So horribly to shake our disposition
With thoughts beyond the reaches of our souls?
Ib 39

Look, with what courteous action
It waves you to a more removed ground Ib 60
I do not set my life at a pin's fee;
And for my soul, what can it do to that,
Being a thing immortal as itself? Ib 65

My fate cries out,
And makes each petty artery in this body
As hardy as the Nemean lion's nerve Ib 81

Unhand me, gentlemen,
By heaven! I'll make a ghost of him that lets me
Ib 84

Something is rotten in the state of Denmark Ib 90
Whither wilt thou lead me? speak, I'll go no further
Ib v 1

Alas! poor ghost Ib 4

I am thy father's spirit,
Doom'd for a certain term to walk the night Ib 9

But that I am forbid
To tell the secrets of my prison-house,
I could a tale unfold whose lightest word
Would harrow up thy soul, freeze thy young blood,
Make thy two eyes, like stars, start from their spheres,
Thy knotted and combined locks to part,
And each particular hair to stand an end,
Like quills upon the fretful porpentine
But this eternal blazon must not be
To ears of flesh and blood. List, list, O, list! Ib 13

Revenge his foul and most unnatural murder Ib 25.

Murder most foul, as in the best it is,
But this most foul, strange, and unnatural Ib 27.

And duller shouldst thou be than the fat weed
That rots itself in ease on Lethe wharf Ib 32

O my prophetic soul!

My uncle! Ib 40

That it went hand in hand even with the vow
I made to her in marriage Ib 49.

But, soft! methinks I scent the morning air. Ib. 58.

In the porches of mine ears Ib 63

Cut off even in the blossoms of my sin,
Unhousel'd, disappointed, unanel'd,
No reckoning made, but sent to my account
With all my imperfections on my head
O, horrible! O, horrible! most horrible!
If thou hast nature in thee, bear it not Ib 76

Leave her to heaven,
And to those thorns that in her bosom lodge,
To prick and sting her Ib 86

The glow-worm shows the matin to be near,
And 'gins to pale his uneffectual fire Ib 89

While memory holds a seat
In this distracted globe Remember thee!
Yea, from the table of my memory
I'll wipe away all trivial fond records,
All saws of books, all forms, all pressures past,
That youth and observation copied there Ib 96.

O most pernicious woman!
O villain, villain, smiling, damned villain!
My tables,—meet it is I set it down,
That one may smile, and smile, and be a villain,
At least I'm sure it may be so in Denmark Ib 105

'There's ne'er a villain dwelling in all Denmark,
But he's an arrant knave

HORATIO

There needs no ghost, my lord, come from the grave,
To tell us this Ib 123

And, for mine own poor part,
Look you, I'll go pray Ib 131

It is an honest ghost, that let me tell you Ib 138

Art thou there, true-penny?
Come on,—you hear this fellow in the cellarage
Ib 150

Hic et ubique? then we'll shift our ground Ib 156

Well said, old mole! canst work i' the earth so fast?
Ib 162

O day and night, but this is wondrous strange!
Ib 164.

There are more things in heaven and earth, Horatio,
Than are dreamt of in your philosophy Ib 166

To put an antic disposition on Ib 172

Rest, rest, perturbed spirit! Ib 182

'The time is out of joint, O cursed spite,
That ever I was born to set it right! Ib 188.

Your bait of falsehood takes this carp of truth
Ib 11. 1 63.

By indirections find directions out Hamlet, II 1 66
 Lord Hamlet, with his doublet all unbrac'd Ib 78
 Ungarter'd, and down-gyved to his ankle Ib 80
 Such thanks
 As fits a king's remembrance Ib II 25
 Thou still hast been the father of good news Ib 42
 Brevity is the soul of wit Ib 90
 More matter with less art Ib 95
 That he is mad, 'tis true, 'tis true 'tis pity,
 And pity 'tis 'tis true a foolish figure,
 But farewell it, for I will use no art Ib 97 That's an ill phrase, a vile phrase, 'beautified' is a vile phrase Ib [110]
 Doubt thou the stars are fire,
 Doubt that the sun doth move,
 Doubt truth to be a liar,
 But never doubt I love Ib [115]
 Lord Hamlet is a prince, out of thy star Ib [141]
 If circumstances lead me, I will find Where truth is hid, though it were hid indeed
 Within the centre Ib [157]
 Let me be no assistant for a state,
 But keep a farm, and carters Ib [166]
 POLONIUS
 Do you know me, my lord?
 Excellent well, you are a fishmonger Ib [173]
 Ay, sir, to be honest, as this world goes, is to be one man picked out of ten thousand Ib [179]
 Still harping on my daughter Ib [190]
 POLONIUS
 What do you read, my lord?
 HAMLET
 Words, words, words Ib [195]
 All which, sir, though I most powerfully and potently believe, yet I hold it not honesty to have it thus set down Ib [206]
 Though this be madness, yet there is method in it
Ib [211]
 Except my life, except my life, except my life
Ib [225]
 These tedious old fools! Ib [227]
 As the indifferent children of the earth. Ib. [235]
 HAMLET
 Then you live about her waist, or in the middle of her favours?
 GUILDENSTERN
 Faith, her privates we
 In the secret parts of Fortune? O! most true, she is a strumpet What news?
 ROSENCRANTZ
 None, my lord, but that the world's grown honest
 HAMLET
 Then is doomsday near Ib [240]
 There is nothing either good or bad, but thinking makes it so Ib [259]

O God! I could be bounded in a nut-shell, and count myself a king of infinite space, were it not that I have had dreams Ib [263].

The very substance of the ambitious is merely the shadow of a dream

A dream itself is but a shadow

ROSENCRANTZ

Truly, and I hold ambition of so airy and light a quality that it is but a shadow's shadow Ib [268]

Beggar that I am, I am poor even in thanks

Ib [286]

It goes so heavily with my disposition that this goodly frame, the earth, seems to me a sterile promontory, this most excellent canopy, the air, look you, this brave o'erhanging firmament, this majestical roof fretted with golden fire, why, it appears no other thing to me but a foul and pestilent congregation of vapours What a piece of work is a man! How noble in reason! how infinite in faculty! in form, in moving, how express and admirable! in action how like in angel! in apprehension how like a god!
 the beauty of the world! the paragon of animals!
 And yet, to me, what is this quintessence of dust?
 man delights not me, no, nor woman neither, though,
 by your smiling, you seem to say so Ib [316]

There was no such stuff in my thoughts Ib [332]

What luten entertainment the players shall receive from you Ib [337]

Make those laugh whose lungs are tickle o' the sere
Ib [346]

There is something in this more than natural, if philosophy could find it out Ib [392]

I am but mad north-north-west, when the wind is southerly, I know a hawk from a handsaw¹
Ib [405]

That great baby you see there is not yet out of his swaddling-clouts Ib [410]

Seneca cannot be too heavy, nor Plautus too light
Ib [428]

One fair daughter and no more,
 The which he loved passing well Ib [435]

Come, give us a taste of your quality Ib [460]

The play, I remember, pleased not the million, 'twas caviare to the general Ib [465]

The rugged Pyrrhus, like the Hyrcanian beast
Ib [481]

Head to foot

Now is he total gulcs Ib [487]

The mobled queen Ib [533]

Good my lord, will you see the players well bestowed? Do you hear, let them be well used, for they are the abstracts and brief chronicles of the time after your death you were better have a bad epitaph than their ill report while you live
Ib [553]

Use every man after his desert, and who should
 'scape whipping? Ib [561]

O, what a rogue and peasant slave am I! Ib [584]

¹ = heron-shaw, or heron.

What's Hecuba to him or he to Hecuba
That he should weep for her? Hamlet, II ii [593]

He would drown the stage with tears,
And cleave the general ear with horrid speech,
Make mad the guilty, and appal the free,
Confound the ignorant, and amaze, indeed,
The very faculties of eyes and ears Ib [596]

A dull and muddy-mettled rascal Ib [602]

But I am pigeon-livered, and lack gall
To make oppression bitter Ib [613]

I should have fatted all the region kites
With this slave's offal Ib [615]

I have heard,
That guilty creatures sitting at a play
Have by the very cunning of the scene
Been struck so to the soul that presently
They have proclaim'd their malefactions,
For murder, though it have no tongue, will speak
With most miraculous organ Ib [625]

Abuses me to damn me Ib [640]

The play's the thing
Wherein I'll catch the conscience of the king Ib [641]

Nor do we find him forward to be sounded,
But, with a crafty madness, keeps aloof,
When we would bring him on to some confession
Of his true state Ib III i 7

'Tis too much prov'd—that with devotion's visage
And pious action, we do sugar o'er
The devil himself Ib 47

To be, or not to be that is the question
Whether 'tis nobler in the mind to suffer
The slings and arrows of outrageous fortune,
Or to take arms against a sea of troubles,
And by opposing end them? To die to sleep,
No more, and, by a sleep to say we end
The heart-ache and the thousand natural shocks
That flesh is heir to, 'tis a consummation
Devoutly to be wish'd To die, to sleep,
To sleep perchance to dream ay, there's the rub,
For in that sleep of death what dreams may come
When we have shuffled off this mortal coil,
Must give us pause There's the respect
That makes calamity of so long life,
For who would bear the whips and scorns of time,
The oppressor's wrong, the proud man's contumely,
The pangs of despiz'd love, the law's delay,
The insolence of office, and the spurns
That patient merit of the unworthy takes,
When he himself might his quietus make
With a bare bodkin? Who would fardels bear,
To grunt and sweat under a weary life,
But that the dread of something after death,
The undiscover'd country from whose bourn
No traveller returns, puzzles the will,
And makes us rather bear those ills we have,
Than fly to others that we know not of?
Thus conscience doth make cowards of us all,
And thus the native hue of resolution
Is sicklied o'er with the pale cast of thought,
And enterprises of great pith and moment
With this regard their currents turn awry,
And lose the name of action. Ib 56

Nymph, in thy orisons
Be all my sins remember'd Ib 89.

For, to the noble mind,
Rich gifts wax poor when givers prove unkind Ib 100

Get thee to a nunnery Ib [124]

I am myself indifferent honest Ib [125]

I am very proud, revengeful, ambitious, with more offences at my beck, than I have thoughts to put them in, imagination to give them shape, or time to act them in What should such fellows as I do crawling between heaven and earth? Ib [128].

Let the doors be shut upon him, that he may play the fool nowhere but in his own house Ib [137].

Be thou as chaste as ice, as pure as snow, thou shalt not escape calumny Ib [142]

I have heard of your paintings too, well enough God bath given you one face, and you make yourself another Ib [150]

I say, we will have no more marriages Ib [156]

O! what a noble mind is here o'erthrown
The courtier's, soldier's, scholar's, eye, tongue, sword,
The expectancy and rose of the fair state,
The glass of fashion, and the mould of form,
The observed of all observers, quite, quite, down!
And I, of ladies most deject and wretched,
That suck'd the honey of his music vows,
Now see that noble and most sovereign reason,
Like sweet bells jangled, out of tune and harsh,
That unmatch'd form and figure of blown youth,
Blasted with ecstasy O! woe is me,
To see what I have seen, see what I see! Ib [159]

Speak the speech, I pray you, as I pronounced it to you, trippingly on the tongue, but if you mouth it, as many of your players do, I had as lief the town-crier spoke my lines Nor do not saw the air too much with your hand, thus, but use all gently for in the very torrent, tempest, and—as I may say—whirlwind of passion, you must acquire and beget a temperance, that may give it smoothness O! it offends me to the soul to hear a robustious periwig-pated fellow tear a passion to tatters, to very rags, to split the ears of the groundlings, who for the most part are capable of nothing but ineffectual dumb-shows and noise I would have such a fellow whipped for o'erdoing Termigant, it out-herods Herod pray you, avoid it. Ib II i

Be not too tame neither, but let your own discretion be your tutor suit the action to the word, the word to the action, with this special observance, that you o'erstep not the modesty of nature Ib [19]

The purpose of playing, whose end, both at the first and now, was and is, to hold, as 'twere, the mirror up to nature Ib [24]

To show the very age and body of the time his form and pressure Ib [26]

Neither having the accent of Christians nor the gait of Christian, pagan, nor man. Ib [35]

I have thought some of nature's journeymen had made men, and not made them well, they imitated humanity so abominably Ib [38]

FIRST PLAYER

I hope we have reformed that indifferently with us, sir

O, reform it altogether Hamlet, III II [41]

That's villainous, and shows a most pitiful ambition in the fool that uses it Ib [49]

Horatio, thou art e'en as just a man
As e'er my conversation cop'd withal Ib [59]

Nay, do not think I flatter
For what advancement may I hope from thee,
That no revenue hast, but thy good spirits? Ib [61]

Since my dear soul was mistress of her choice
And could of men distinguish, her election
Hath seal'd thee for herself Ib [68]

A man that fortune's buffets and rewards
Hast ta'en with equal thanks, and bless'd are those Whose blood and judgment are so well co-mingled
That they are not a pipe for Fortune's finger
To sound what stop she please. Give me that man
That is not passion's slave, and I will wear him
In my heart's core, ay, in my heart of heart,
As I do thee. Something too much of this Ib [72]

And my imaginations are as foul
As Vulcan's stithy Ib [88]

The chameleon's dish I eat the air, promisecramed. Ib [98]

Here's metal more attractive Ib [117]

That's a fair thought to lie between maids' legs
Ib [126]

Die two months ago, and not forgotten yet? Then there's hope a great man's memory may outlive his life half a year, but, by'r lady, he must build churches then Ib [140]

For, O! for, O! the hobby-horse is forgot Ib [145]

Marry, this is mitching mallecho Ib [148]

OPHELIA

'Tis brief, my lord

As woman's love. Ib [165]

Where love is great, the littlest doubts are fear,
When little fears grow great, great love grows there Ib [183]

What to ourselves in passion we propose,
The passion ending, doth the purpose lose Ib [206]

This world is not for aye, nor 'tis not strange
That even our love should with our fortunes change Ib [212]

The great man down, you mark his favourite flies,
The poor advanc'd makes friends of enemies Ib [216]

Our wills and fates do so contrary run
That our devices still are overthrow'n Ib, [223]

Sleep rock thy brain,
And never come mischance between us twain! Ib [239]

The lady doth protest too much, methinks Ib [242]

We that have free souls, it touches us not let the galled jade wince, our withers are unwrung Ib [255]

The story is extant, and writ in very choice Italian Ib [277]

What! frighted with false fire? Ib [282]

So runs the world away Ib [289].

Put your discourse into some frame, and start not so wildly from my affair Ib [325].

O wonderful son, that can so astonish a mother! Ib [347]

The proverb is something musty Ib [366]

It will discourse most eloquent music Ib [375]

You would play upon me, you would seem to know my stops, you would pluck out the heart of my mystery, you would sound me from my lowest note to the top of my compass Ib, [387]

Do you think I am easier to be played on than a pipe?
Call me what instrument you will, though you can fret me, you cannot play upon me Ib [393]

Do you see yonder cloud that's almost in shape of a camel?

By the mass, and 'tis like a camel, indeed

Metinks it is like a weasel

POLONIUS

It is backed like a weasel

HAMLET

Or like a whale?

POLONIUS

Very like a whale Ib [400].

They fool me to the top of my bent Ib [408]

By and by is easily said Ib [411]

'Tis now the very witching time of night Ib [413]

Let me be cruel, not unnatural,
I will speak daggers to her, but use none Ib [420]

O! my offence is rank, it smells to heaven Ib III 36

My stronger guilt defeats my strong intent,
And, like a man to double business bound,
I stand in pause where I shall first begin,
And both neglect Ib 40

Whereto serves mercy
But to confront the visage of offence? Ib 46

May one be pardon'd and retain the offence? Ib 56

'Tis not so above,
There is no shuffling, there the action lies
In his true nature, and we ourselves compell'd,
Even to the teeth and forehead of our faults
To give in evidence Ib 60

Now might I do it pat, now he is praying
Ile took my father grossly, full of bread,
With all his crimes broad blown, as flush as May,
And how his audit stands who knows save heaven? Ib 80

Tell him his pranks have been too broad to bear with Ib IV 2

You go not, till I set you up a glass
Where you may see the inmost part of you.

Hamlet, III. iv 19

How now! a rat? Dead, for a ducat, dead! Ib. 23

A bloody deed! almost as bad, good mother,
As kill a king, and marry with his brother. Ib. 28

As false as dicers' oaths Ib. 45

A rhapsody of words Ib. 48.

 Ay me! what act,
That roars so loud, and thunders in the index?
Ib. 51.

Look here, upon this picture, and on this. Ib. 53.

Could you on this fair mountain leave to feed
And batten on this moor? Ib. 66.

 At your age
The hey-day in the blood is tame, it's humble,
And waits upon the judgment. Ib. 68

 Speak no more;
Thou turn'st mine eyes into my very soul Ib. 88

A cut-purse of the empire and the rule,
That from a shelf the precious diadem stole,
And put it in his pocket! Ib. 99

A king of shreds and patches Ib. 102.

Do you not come your tardy son to chide? Ib. 106.

Conceit in weakest bodies strongest works Ib. 113.

 Bring me to the test,
And I the matter will re-word, which madness
Would gambol from: Mother, for love of grace,
Lay not that flattering unction to your soul Ib. 142

 Confess yourself to heaven,
Repent what's past, avoid what is to come Ib. 149

For in the fitness of these pursy times,
Virtue itself of vice must pardon beg Ib. 153

QUFEN

O Hamlet! thou hast cleft my heart in twain.

O! throw away the worse part of it,
And live the purer with the other half. Ib. 156

Assume a virtue, if you have it not.
That monster, custom, who all sense doth eat,
Of habits devil, is angel yet in this Ib. 160

And when you are desirous to be bless'd,
I'll blessing beg of you Ib. 171

I must be cruel, only to be kind Ib. 178

For 'tis the sport to have the engineer
Hoist with his own petar and it shall go hard
But I will delve one yard below their mines,
And blow them to the moon Ib. 206

He keeps them, like an ape doth nuts, in the corner of his jaw, first mouthed, to be last swallowed.
Ib. IV. ii. [19].

A knavish speech sleeps in a foolish ear. Ib. [25].

 Diseases desperate grown,
By desperate appliances are reliev'd,
Or not at all Ib. iii 9

A certain convocation of politic worms are e'en at him Your worm is your only emperor for diet
Ib. [21]

A man may fish with the worm that hath eat of a king, and eat of the fish that hath fed of that worm
Ib. [29]

We go to gain a little patch of ground,
That hath in it no profit but the name Ib. iv. 18.

How all occasions do inform against me,
And spur my dull revenge! What is a man,
If his chief good and market of his time
Be but to sleep and feed? a beast, no more Sure he that made us with such large discourse, Looking before and after, gave us not
That capability and god-like reason
To fust in us unus'd. Ib. 32

 Some craven scruple
Of thinking too precisely on the event Ib. 40

 Rightly to be great
Is not to stir without great argument,
But greatly to find quarrel in a straw
When honour's at the stake Ib. 53.

So full of artless jealousy is guilt,
It spills itself in fearing to be spilt Ib. v 19

How should I your true love know
From another one?
By his cockle hat and staff,
And his sandal shoon. Ib. [23].

He is dead and gone, lady,
He is dead and gone,
At his head a grass-green turf,
At his heels a stone. Ib. [29]

White his shroud as the mountain snow Ib. [36]

 Larded with sweet flowers,
Which bewept to the grave did go
With true-love showers Ib. [38]

Then up he rose, and donn'd his clothes. Ib. [53]

Come, my coach! Good night, sweet ladies, good night Ib. [72]

When sorrows come, they come not single spies,
But in battalions Ib. [78]

 We have done but greenly
In hugger-mugger to inter him Ib. [83]

There's such divinity doth hedge a king,
That treason can but peep to what it would
Ib. [123]

To hell, allegiance! vows, to the blackest devil!
Conscience and grace, to the profoundest pit!
I dare damnation Ib. [130].

Nature is fine in love, and where 'tis fine
It sends some precious instance of itself
After the thing it loves Ib. [160]

They bore him barefac'd on the bier,
Hey non nonny, nonny, hey nonny,
And in his grave rain'd many a tear Ib. [163]

There's rosemary, that's for remembrance, pray, love, remember and there is pansies, that's for thoughts Ib. [174]

You must wear your rue with a difference. There's a daisy, I would give you some violets, but they withered all when my father died. Ib. [181].

They say he made a good end. Ib. [184]

For bonny sweet Robin is all my joy.

Hamlet, iv v [186]

No, no, he is dead,
Go to thy death-bed,
He never will come again

Ib [191]

He is gone, he is gone,
And we cast away soul,
God ha' mercy on his soul!

Ib [196]

His means of death, his obscure funeral,
No trophy, sword, nor hatchment o'er his bones,
No noble rite nor formal ostentation

Ib [213]

And where the offence is let the great axe fall

Ib [218]

You must not think

That we are made of stuff so fat and dull
That we can let our beard be shook with danger
And think it pastime

Ib vii 30

It warms the very sickness in my heart,
That I shall live and tell him to his teeth,
'Thus diddest thou'

Ib 55

A very riband in the cap of youth.

Ib 77.

He grew into his seat,
And to such wondrous doing brought his horse,
As he had been incorp'd and demi-natur'd
With the brave beast.

Ib 85.

No place, indeed, should murder sanctuarize

Ib 127

There is a willow grows aslant a brook,
That shows his hoar leaves in the glassy stream,
There with fantastic garlands did she come,
Of crow-flowers, nettles, daisies, and long purples,
That liberal shepherds give a grosser name,
But our cold maids do dead men's fingers call them
There, on the pendent boughs her coronet weeds
Clambering to hang, an envious silver broke,
When down her weedy trophies and herself
Fell in the weeping brook Her clothes spread wide,
And, mermaid-like, awhile they bore her up,
Which time she chanted snatches of old tunes,
As one incapable of her own distress

Ib 167

Too much of water hast thou, poor Ophelia,
And therefore I forbid my tears, but yet
It is our trick, nature her custom holds,
Let shame say what it will

Ib 186

Is she to be buried in Christian burial that wilfully seeks her own salvation?

Ib. v 1 1.

Ay, marry, is 't, crowner's quest law

Ib [23]

There is no ancient gentlemen but gardeners, ditchers, and grave-makers, they hold up Adam's profession

Ib [32]

The gallows-maker, for that frame outlives a thousand tenants

Ib [47]

Cudgel thy brains no more about it, for your dull ass will not mend his pace with beating

Ib [61]

The houses that he makes last till doomsday

Ib [64]

Has this fellow no feeling of his business?

Ib [71]

The hand of little employment hath the dancier sense.

Ib. [75]

The pate of a politician, one that could circumvent God.

Ib [84]

How absolute the knave is! we must speak by the card, or equivocation will undo us

Ib [147]

The age is grown so picked that the toe of the peasant comes so near the heel of the courtier, he galls his kibe¹

Ib. [150]

FIRST CLOWN

He that is mad, and sent into England

HAMLET

Ay, marry, why was he sent into England?

FIRST CLOWN

Why, because he was mad he shall recover his wits there, or, if he do not, 'tis no great matter there

Why

FIRST CLOWN:

'Twill not be seen in him there, there the men are as mad as he

Ib [160]

Alas! poor Yorick I knew him, Horatio, a fellow of infinite jest, of most excellent fancy, he hath borne me on his back a thousand times, and now, how abhorred in my imagination it is! my gorge rises at it. Here hung those lips that I have kissed I know not how oft Where be your gibes now?
your gambols? your songs? your flashes of merriment, that were wont to set the table on a roar?
Not one now, to mock your own grinning? quite chap-fallen? Now get you to my lady's chamber, and tell her, let her paint an inch thick, to this favour she must come

Ib [201]

'Twere to consider too curiously to consider so.

Ib. [226].

Imperious Cæsar, dead, and turn'd to clay,
Might stop a hole to keep the wind away.

Ib. [235]

We should profane the service of the dead,
To sing a requiem, and such rest to her
As to peace-parted souls

Ib. [258].

Lay her i' the earth,
And from her fair and unpolluted flesh
May violets spring! I tell thee, churlish priest, A ministering angel shall my sister be,
When thou hast howling

Ib [260]

Sweets to the sweet farewell!

Ib [265]

I thought thy bride-bed to have deck'd, sweet maid,
And not have strewed thy grave

Ib [267]

For, though I am not splenetic and rash
Yet have I in me something dangerous

Ib [283]

Forty thousand brothers

Could not, with all their quantity of love,
Make up my sum

Ib [291]

And thus a while the fit will work on him,
Anon, as patient as the female dove,
When that her golden couplets are disclos'd,
His silence will sit drooping

Ib [307]

This grave shall have a living monument

Ib [319]

There's a divinity that shapes our ends,
Rough-hew them how we will

Ib 11 10

It did me yeoman's service.

Dost know this water-fly?

HORATIO

No, my good lord.

HAMLET

Thy state is the more gracious, for 'tis a vice to know him
Hamlet, v 11 [84]

What imports the nomination of this gentleman?

Ib [134]The phrase would be more german to the matter, if we could carry cannon by our sides
Ib [165]'Tis the breathing time of day with me
Ib [181]But thou wouldst not think how ill all's here about my heart
Ib [222]Not a whit, we defy augury, there's a special providence in the fall of a sparrow. If it be now, 'tis not to come, if it be not to come, it will be now, if it be not now, yet it will come: the readiness is all
Ib [232]I have shot mine arrow o'er the house, And hurt my brother Ib [257]Now the king drinks to Hamlet!
Ib [292]A hit, a very palpable hit
Ib [295]Why, as a woodcock to mine own springe, Osric, I am justly kill'd with my own treachery Ib [320]O villainy! Ho! let the door be lock'd Treachery! seek it out Ib [325]The point envenom'd too!— Then, venom, to thy work
Ib [335]This fell sergeant, death, Is strict in his arrest
Ib [350]Report me and my cause aright
Ib [353]I am more an antique Roman than a Dane
Ib [355]Horatio, what a wounded name, Things standing thus unknown, shall live behind me. If thou didst ever hold me in thy heart, Absent thee from felicity awhile, And in this harsh world draw thy breath in pain, To tell my story
Ib [358]The potent poison quite o'ercrows my spirit
Ib [367]The rest is silence.
Ib [372]Now cracks a noble heart. Good-night, sweet prince, And flights of angels sing thee to thy rest!
Ib [373]O proud death! What feast is toward in thine eternal cell?
Ib [378]Purposes mistook Fall'n on the inventors' heads
Ib [398]For he was likely, had he been put on, To have prov'd most royally Ib [411]Hence! home, you idle creatures, get you home! Is this a holiday?
Julius Caesar, i 1 1What trade, thou knave? thou naughty knave, what trade?
Ib [15].

FLAVIUS

Thou art a cobbler, art thou?

2ND COMMONER

Truly, sir, all that I live by is with the awl. I am indeed, sir, a surgeon to old shoes
Ib [22]As proper men as ever trod upon neat's-leather Ib [27]Wherefore rejoice? What conquest brings he home?
Ib [36]

You blocks, you stones, you worse than senselless things!

O you hard hearts, you cruel men of Rome, Knew you not Pompey?
Ib [39]Have you not made a universal shout, That Tiber trembled underneath her banks, To hear the replication of your sounds Made in her concave shores?
Ib [48]Speak, Cæsar is turn'd to hear
Ib 11 17Beware the Ides of March
Ib 18He is a dreamer, let us leave him pass
Ib 24I am not gamasome. I do lack some part Of that quick spirit that is in Antony Ib 28Brutus, I do observe you now of late I have not from your eyes that gentleness And show of love as I was wont to have. You bear too stubborn and too strange a hand Over your friend that loves you
Ib 32Poor Brutus, with himself at war, Forgets the shows of love to other men
Ib 46Set honour in one eye and death i' the other, And I will look on both indifferently
Ib 86Well, honour is the subject of my story. I cannot tell what you and other men Think of this life: but, for my single self, I had as lief not be as live to be In awe of such a thing as I myself
Ib 92'Dar'st thou Cassius, now, Leap in with me into this angry flood, And swim to yonder point?' Upon the word, Accoutred as I was, I plunged in, And bade him follow
Ib 102Stemming it with hearts of controversy
Ib 109His coward lips did from their colour fly, And that same eye whose bend doth awe the world Did lose his lustre
Ib 122Ye gods, it doth amaze me, A man of such a feeble temper should So get the start of the majestic world, And bear the palm alone
Ib 128Why, man, he doth bestride the narrow world Like a Colossus, and we petty men Walk under his huge legs, and peep about To find ourselves dishonourable graves. Men at some time are masters of their fates. The fault, dear Brutus, is not in our stars, But in ourselves, that we are underlings Ib 134'Brutus' will start a spirit as soon as 'Cæsar'. Now in the names of all the gods at once, Upon what meat doth this our Cæsar feed, That he is grown so great?
Ib 146

Now is it Rome indeed and room enough

Julius Cæsar, I 11 155

But, look you, Cassius,
The angry spot doth glow on Cæsar's brow
Ib 181

Let me have men about me that are fat,
Sleek-headed men and such as sleep o' nights,
Yond' Cassius has a lean and hungry look,
He thinks too much such men are dangerous
Ib 191

Would he were fatter! But I fear him not Yet if my name were liable to fear,
I do not know the man I should avoid
So soon as that spare Cassius He reads much,
He is a great observer, and he looks
Quite through the deeds of men, he loves no plays,
As thou dost, Antony, he hears no music,
Seldom he smiles, and smiles in such a sort
As if he mock'd himself, and scorn'd his spirit,
That could be mov'd to smile at anything
Such men as he be never at heart's ease,
Whiles they behold a greater than themselves,
And therefore are they very dangerous
I rather tell thee what is to be fear'd
Than what I fear, for always I am Cæsar Ib 197
'Tis very like he hath the falling sickness
Ib [255]

If Cæsar had stabbed their mothers, they would have done no less Ib [277]

For mine own part, it was Greek to me Ib [288]

Therefore 'tis meet
That noble minds keep ever with their likes,
For who so firm that cannot be seduc'd? Ib [315]

Besides—I have not since put up my sword,—
Against the Capitol I met a lion,
Who glar'd upon me, and went surly by,
Without annoying me Ib III 19

Yesterday the bird of night did sit,
Even at noon-day, upon the market-place,
Hooping and shrieking Ib 26

But men may construe things after their own fashion,
Clean from the purpose of the things themselves.
Ib 34

Cassius from bondage will deliver Cassius Ib 90

Nor stony tower, nor walls of beaten brass,
Nor airless dungeon, nor strong links of iron,
Can be retentive to the strength of spirit;
But life, being weary of these worldly bars,
Never lacks power to dismiss itself Ib 93

So every bondman in his own hand bears
The power to cancel his captivity Ib 101

I will set this foot of mine as far
As who goes farthest Ib 119

O! he sits high in all the people's hearts
And that which would appear offence in us,
His countenance, like richest alchemy,
Will change to virtue and to worthiness Ib 157

It is the bright day that brings forth the adder;
And that craves wary walking. Ib. II. 1. 14

'Tis a common proof,
That lowliness is young ambition's ladder,
Whereto the climber-upward turns his face,

But when he once attains the upmost round,
He then unto the ladder turns his back,
Looks in the clouds, scorning the base degrees
By which he did ascend. Ib 21.

Therefore think him as a serpent's egg
Which, hatch'd, would, as his kind, grow mischievous,
And kill him in the shell Ib 32

Between the acting of a dreadful thing
And the first motion, all the interim is Like a phantasma, or a hideous dream
The genius and the mortal instruments
Are then in council, and the state of man,
Like to a little kingdom, suffers then
The nature of an insurrection Ib 63

O conspiracy!
Sham'st thou to show thy dangerous brow by night,
When evils are most free? Ib 77

For if thou path, thy native semblance on,
Not Erebus itself were dim enough
To hide thee from prevention Ib 83.

For he will never follow anything
That other men begin Ib 151

Let us be sacrificers, but not butchers, Cassius Ib 166.

Let's carve him as a dish fit for the gods
Not hew him as a carcass fit for hounds Ib 173

For he is superstitious grown of late,
Quite from the main opinion he held once
Of fantasy, of dreams, and ceremonies Ib 195

But when I tell him he hates flatterers,
He says he does, being then most flattered Ib 207.

Enjoy the honey-heavy dew of slumber Ib 230

With an angry wafture of your hand,
Gave sign for me to leave you Ib 246.

What! is Brutus sick,
And will he steal out of his wholesome bed
To dare the vile contagion of the night? Ib 263

That great vow
Which did incorporate and make us one Ib 272

PORTIA

Dwell I but in the suburbs
Of your good pleasure? If it be no more,
Portia is Brutus' harlot, not his wife
BRUTUS
You are my true and honourable wife,
As dear to me as are the ruddy drops
That visit my sad heart. Ib 285.

I grant I am a woman, but, withal,
A woman that Lord Brutus took to wife,
I grant I am a woman, but, withal,
A woman well-reputed, Cato's daughter
Think you I am no stronger than my sex,
Being so fathered and so husbanded? Ib 292.

Enter Cæsar, in his night-gown
Ib II. Stage Directions.

Nor heaven nor earth have been at peace to-night.
Ib II. 1.

CALPURNIA :

These things are beyond all use,
And I do fear them
CÆSAR

What can be avoided
Whose end is purpos'd by the mighty gods?
Julius Cæsar, II ii 25

CALPURNIA

When beggars die, there are no comets seen,
The heavens themselves blaze forth the death of princes

Cowards die many times before their deaths
The valiant never taste of death but once,
Of all the wonders that I yet have heard,
It seems to me most strange that men should fear,
Seeing that death, a necessary end,
Will come when it will come Ib 30

Danger knows full well

That Cæsar is more dangerous than he
We are two lions litter'd in one day,
And I the elder and more terrible
And Cæsar shall go forth Ib 44

The cause is in my will I will not come Ib 71

See! Antony! that revels long o' nights,
Is notwithstanding up Ib 116

My heart laments that virtue cannot live
Out of the teeth of emulation Ib III [13]

O constancy! be strong upon my side,
Set a huge mountain 'tween my heart and tongue,
I have a man's mind, but a woman's might How hard it is for women to keep counsel! Ib IV 6

CÆSAR

The ides of March are come

SOOTHAYER

Ay, Cæsar, but not gone Ib III 1 1

Sweet words,

Low-crook'd curtsies, and base spaniel fawning
Ib 42

If I could pray to move, prayers would move me,
But I am constant as the northern star,
Of whose true-fix'd and resting quality
There is no fellow in the firmament
The skies are painted with unnumber'd sparks,
They are all fire and every one doth shine,
But there's but one in all doth hold his place
So, in the world, 'tis furnish'd well with men,
And men are flesh and blood, and apprehensive,
Yet in the number I do know but one
That unassailable holds on his rank, Unshak'd of motion and that I am he,
Let me a little show it, even in this,
That I was constant Cæsar should be banish'd,
And constant do remain to keep him so Ib 59

Et tu, Brute! Ib 77

Ambition's debt is paid Ib 83

That we shall die, we know, 'tis but the time
And drawing days out, that men stand upon Ib 99

He that cuts off twenty years of life
Cuts off so many years of fearing death Ib 101

CASSIUS

How many ages hence
Shall this our lofty scene be acted o'er,
In states unborn, and accents yet unknown!

BRUTUS

How many times shall Cæsar bleed in sport Ib 111.

O mighty Cæsar! dost thou lie so low?
Are all thy conquests, glories, triumphs, spoils, Shrunk to this little measure? Ib 148

Your swords, made rich
With the most noble blood of all this world Ib 155

Live a thousand years, Ib 159

I shall not find myself so apt to die Ib 159

The choice and master spirits of this age Ib 163

Let each man render me his bloody hand
First, Marcus Brutus, will I shake with you Ib 184

Though last, not least in love. Ib 189

My credit now stands on such slippery ground,
That one of two bad ways you must conceit me,
Either a coward or a flatterer. Ib 191

Here wast thou bay'd, brave hart,
Here didst thou fall, and here thy hunters stand,
Sign'd in thy spoil, and crimson'd in thy lethe.
O world! thou wast the forest to this hart,
And this, indeed, O world! the heart of thee Ib 204

The enemies of Cæsar shall say this,
Then, in a friend, it is cold modesty. Ib 212

O! pardon me, thou bleeding piece of earth,
That I am meek and gentle with these butchers;
Thou art the ruins of the noblest man
That ever lived in the tide of times. Ib 254

Cæsar's spirit, ranging for revenge,
With Ate by his side, come hot from hell,
Shall in these confines, with a monarch's voice
Cry, 'Havoc' and let slip the dogs of war Ib 270

Passion, I see, is catching Ib 283

Not that I loved Cæsar less, but that I loved Rome more Ib II [22]

As he was valiant I honour him but, as he was ambitious, I slew him Ib [27]

Who is here so base that would be a bondman? If any, speak, for him have I offended Who is here so rude that would not be a Roman? If any, speak, for him have I offended Who is here so vile, that will not love his country? If any, speak, for him have I offended I pause for a reply Ib [31]

Friends, Romans, countrymen, lend me your ears,
I come to bury Cæsar, not to praise him
The evil that men do lives after them,
The good is oft interred with their bones,
So let it be with Cæsar The noble Brutus
Hath told you Cæsar was ambitious,
If it were so, it was a grievous fault,
And grievously hath Cæsar answer'd it Ib [79]

For Brutus is an honourable man,
So are they all, all honourable men Ib [88]

He was my friend, faithful and just to me
But Brutus says he was ambitious,
And Brutus is an honourable man.

Julius Cæsar, III ii [91]

When that the poor have cried, Cæsar hath wept, Ambition should be made of sterner stuff Ib [97]

You all did love him once, not without cause
Ib [108]

O judgment! thou art fled to brutish beasts,
And men have lost their reason Ib [110]

But yesterday the word of Cæsar might Have stood against the world, now lies he there,
And none so poor to do him reverence Ib [124]

Let but the commons hear this testament—
Which, pardon me, I do not mean to read—
And they would go and kiss dead Cæsar's wounds
And dip their napkins in his sacred blood,
Yea, beg a hair of him for memory,
And, dying, mention it within their wills,
Bequeathing it as a rich legacy
Unto their issue Ib [136]

The will, the will! we will hear Cæsar's will
Ib [145]

You are not wood, you are not stones, but men
Ib [148]

If you have tears, prepare to shed them now
You all do know this mantle I remember
The first time ever Cæsar put it on,
'Twas on a summer's evening, in his tent,
That day he overcame the Nervii Ib [174]
See what a rent the envious Casca made Ib [180]
For Brutus, as you know, was Cæsar's angel
Ib [186]

This was the most unkindest cut of all Ib [188]

Ingratitude, more strong than traitors' arms,
Quite vanquish'd him: then burst his mighty heart,
And, in his mantle muffling up his face,
Even at the base of Pompey's statue,
Which all the while ran blood, great Cæsar fell
O! what a fall was there, my countrymen,
Then I, and you, and all of us fell down,
Whilst bloody treason flourish'd over us
O! now you weep, and I perceive you feel
The dint of pity, these are gracious drops
Ib [190]

Good friends, sweet friends, let me not stir you up
To such a sudden flood of mutiny
They that have done this deed are honourable What private griefs they have, alas! I know not,
That made them do it, they are wise and honourable,
And will no doubt with reasons answer you
I come not, friends, to steal away your hearts
I am no orator, as Brutus is,
But, as you know me all, a plain, blunt man,
That love my friend Ib [214]

For I have neither wit, nor words, nor worth,
Action, nor utterance, nor power of speech,
To stir men's blood: I only speak right on,
I tell you that which you yourselves do know
Ib [225]

But were I Brutus,
And Brutus Antony, there were an Antony

Would ruffle up your spirits, and put a tongue
In every wound of Cæsar, that should move
The stones of Rome to rise and mutiny Ib [230]

Here was a Cæsar! when comes such another?
Ib [257].

Now let it work, mischief, thou art afoot,
Take thou what course thou wilt! Ib [265]

Fortune is merry,
And in this mood will give us anything Ib [271] Tear him for his bad verses, tear him for his bad verses Ib III [34]

He shall not live, look, with a spot I damn him
Ib IV i 6

This is a slight unmeritable man,
Meet to be sent on errands Ib 12

OCTAVIUS
He's a tried and valiant soldier
ANTONY
So is my horse, Octavius, and for that I do appoint him store of provender Ib 28.

We are at the stake,
And bay'd about with many enemies,
And some that smile have in their hearts, I fear,
Millions of mischiefs Ib 48

Not with such familiar instances,
Nor with such free and friendly conference,
As he hath us'd of old Ib II 16

When love begins to sicken and decay,
It useth an enforced ceremony
There are no tricks in plain and simple faith Ib 20

CASSIUS
In such a time as this it is not meet
That every nice offence should bear his comment
BRUTUS
Let me tell you, Cassius, you yourself
Are much condemn'd to have an itching palm
Ib III 7

Remember March, the ides of March remember
Ib 18

Shall we now
Contaminate our fingers with base bribes? Ib 23.

I had rather be a dog, and bay the moon,
Than such a Roman. Ib 27

Away, slight man! Ib 37

I'll use you for my mirth, yea, for my laughter,
When you are waspish Ib 49

For mine own part,
I shall be glad to learn of noble men Ib 53

You wrong me every way, you wrong me, Brutus,
I said an elder soldier, not a better.
Did I say 'better'? Ib 55

Do not presume too much upon my love,
I may do that I shall be sorry for. Ib 63

There is no terror, Cassius, in your threats,
For I am arm'd so strong in honesty
That they pass me by as the idle wind,
Which I respect not Ib 66

By heaven, I had rather coin my heart,
And drop my blood for drachmas, than to wring
From the hard hands of peasants their vile trash
By any indirection Julius Cæsar, iv iii 72

Should I have answer'd Caius Cassius so?
When Marcus Brutus grows so covetous,
To lock such rascal counters from his friends,
Be ready, gods, with all your thunderbolts,
Dash him to pieces! Ib 78

A friend should bear his friend's infirmities,
But Brutus makes mine greater than they are Ib 85

A friendly eye could never see such faults Ib 89

All his faults observ'd,
Set in a note-book, learn'd and conn'd by rote,
To cast into my teeth Ib 96

O Cassius! you are yoked with a lamb
That carries anger as the flint bears fire,
Who, much enforced, shows a hasty spark,
And straight is cold again Ib 109

O Cassius! I am sick of many griefs Ib 143

I have as much of this in art as you,
But yet my nature could not bear it so Ib 193

Good reasons must, of force, give place to better Ib 202

There is a tide in the affairs of men,
Which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune,
Omitted, all the voyage of their life
Is bound in shallows and in miseries
On such a full sea are we now afloat,
And we must take the current when it serves,
Or lose our ventures Ib 217

The deep of night is crept upon our talk,
And nature must obey necessity Ib 225

This was an ill beginning of the night
Never come such division 'tween our souls! Ib 233

BRUTUS
Then I shall see thee again?

GHOST
Ay, at Philippi

BRUTUS
Why, I will see thee at Philippi, then Ib 283

But for your words, they rob the Hybla bees,
And leave them honeyless Ib v i 34

You know that I held Epicurus strong,
And his opinion, now I change my mind,
And partly credit things that do presage Ib 77

The gods to-day stand friendly, that we may,
Lovers in peace, lead on our days to age! Ib 94

I know not how,
But I do find it cowardly and vile,
For fear of what might fall, so to prevent
The time of life Ib 103

Think not, thou noble Roman,
That ever Brutus will go bound to Rome,
He bears too great a mind: but this same day
Must end that work the ides of March begun,
And whether we shall meet again, I know not Therefore our everlasting farewell take
For ever, and for ever, farewell, Cassius!
If we do meet again, why, we shall smile!
If not, why then, this parting was well made Ib 111

O! that a man might know
The end of this day's business, ere it come,
But it sufficeth that the day will end,
And then the end is known Ib 123

This day I breathed first: time is come round,
And where I did begin, there shall I end,
My life is run his compass Ib iii 23

O hateful error, melancholy's child!
Why dost thou show, to the apt thoughts of men,
The things that are not? Ib 67

O Julius Cæsar! thou art mighty yet!
Thy spirit walks abroad, and turns our swords
In our own proper entrails Ib 94

Are yet two Romans living such as these?
The last of all the Romans, fare thee well!
It is impossible that ever Rome
Should breed thy fellow: Friends, I owe more tears
To this dead man than you shall see me pay —
I shall find time, Cassius, I shall find time Ib 98

When you do find him, or alive or dead,
He will be found like Brutus, like himself Ib iv 24

I had rather have Such men my friends than enemies Ib 28

Thou seest the world, Voluminius, how it goes,
Our enemies have beat us to the pit
It is more worthy to leap in ourselves,
Than tarry till they push us Ib v 22

Thou art a fellow of a good respect,
Thy life hath had some smatch of honour in it Ib 45

Cæsar, now be still,
I kill'd not thee with half so good a will Ib 50

This was the noblest Roman of them all Ib 68

He, only, in a general honest thought
And common good to all, made one of them
His life was gentle, and the elements
So mix'd in him that Nature might stand up
And say to all the world, 'This was a man!' Ib 71

LEAR
So young, and so untender?

CORDELIA
So young, my lord, and true King Lear, i i [108].
A still-soliciting eye. Ib [234]

Love is not love
When it is mingled with regards that stand
Aloof from the entire point Ib [239]

Fairest Cordelia, that art most rich, being poor, Most choice, forsaken, and most lov'd, despis'd!
Ib [253]

Who in the lusty stealth of nature take More composition and fierce quality
Than doth, within a dull, stale, tired bed,
Go to the creating a whole tribe of fops Ib ii 11

These lile eclipses in the sun and moon portend no good to us Ib [115]

We have seen the best of our time: machinations, hollowness, treachery, and all ruinous disorders, follow us disquietly to our graves Ib [125]

This is the excellent foppery of the world Ib [132].

We make guilty of our disasters the sun, the moon, and the stars, as if we were villains by necessity, fools by heavenly compulsion

King Lear, I. ii [134]

An admirable evasion of whoremaster man, to lay his goatish disposition to the charge of a star!

Ib [141]

My nativity was under Ursa Major, so that it follows
I am rough and lecherous

Ib [145]

Pat he comes, like the catastrophe of the old comedy, my cue is villainous melancholy, with a sigh like
'Tom o' Bedlam

Ib [150]

KENT

You have that in your countenance which I would fain call master.

I FAR

What's that?

KENT

Authority

Ib iv [29]

Not so young, sir, to love a woman for singing, nor so old to dote on her for any thing

Ib [40]

Lady the brach may stand by the fire and stunk

Ib [125]

Have more than thou showest,
Speak less than thou knowest,
Lend less than thou owest

Ib [132]

LEAR

Dost thou call me fool, boy?

FOOL

All thy other titles thou hast given away, that thou wast born with

Ib [163]

The hedge-sparrow fed the cuckoo so long,
That it had it head bit off by it young

Ib [238]

Ingratitude, thou marble-hearted fiend,
More hideous, when thou show'st thee in a child,
Than the sea-monster

Ib [283]

Into her womb convey sterility!

Dry up in her the organs of increase

Ib [302]

How sharper than a serpent's tooth it is

To have a thankless child!

Ib [312]

How far your eyes may pierce I cannot tell,

Striving to better, oft we mar what's well

Ib [370]

A knave, a rascal, an eater of broken meats.

Ib ii. ii. [15].

Thou whoreson zed! thou unnecessary letter!

Ib [68]

I'd drive ye cackling home to Camelot

Ib [89]

I have seen better faces in my time

Than stands on any shoulder that I see

Before me at this instant

Ib [99]

Winter's not gone yet, if the wild-geese fly that way.

Ib iv [46]

Down, thou climbing sorrow!

Thy element's below

Ib [57]

That sir which serves and seeks for gain,

And follows but for form,

Will pack when it begins to rain,

And leave thee in the storm

Ib [79]

O, sir! you are old,
Nature in you stands on the very verge
Of her confine.

Ib [148].

But I'll not chide thee,
Let shame come when it will, I do not call it
I do not bid the thunder-bearer shoot,
Nor tell tales of thee to high-judging Jove

Ib [228]

Our basest beggars
Are in the poorest thing superfluous
Allow not nature more than nature needs,
Man's life is cheap as beast's

Ib [267]

You see me here, you gods, a poor old man,
As full of grief as age, wretched in both!

Ib [275]

I will have such revenges on you both

That all the world shall—I will do such things,—

What they are yet I know not,—but they shall be

The terrors of the earth

Ib [282]

To wilful men,
The injuries that they themselves procure Must be their schoolmasters

Ib [305]

Contending with the fretful elements,
Bids the wind blow the earth into the sea,
Or swell the curled waters 'bove the main

Ib III. i. 4

Strives in his little world of man to out-scorn

The to-and-fro conflicting wind and rain

This night, wherein the cub-drawn bear would couch,

The lion and the belly-pinched wolf

Keep their fur dry

Ib 10

Blow, winds, and crack your cheeks! rage! blow!

You cataracts and hurricanoes, spout

Till you have drench'd our steeples, drown'd the cocks!

You sulphurous and thought-executing fires,

Vaunt-couriers to oak-cleaving thunderbolts,

Singe my white head! And thou, all-shaking thunder,

Strike flat the thick rotundity o' the world!

Crack nature's moulds, all germens spill at once

That make ingrateful man!

Ib 11. 1

I tax not you, you elements, with unkindness,

I never gave you kingdom, call'd you children,

You owe me no subscription then, let fall

Your horrible pleasure, here I stand, your slave,

A poor, infirm, weak, and despis'd old man

But yet I call you servile ministers,

That have with two pernicious daughters join'd

Your high-engender'd battles 'gainst a head

So old and white as this

Ib [16]

There was never yet fair woman but she made mouths in a glass

Ib [35]

Things that love night

Love not such nights as these.

Ib [42]

Let the great gods,

That keep this dreadful pother o'er our heads,

Find out their enemies now—Tremble, thou wretch,

That hast within thee undivulged crimes,

Unwhipp'd of justice

Ib [49]

Close pent-up guilts,

Rive your concealing continents, and cry

These dreadful summoners grace I am a man

More sinned against than sinning

Ib [57].

Come, let's away to prison;
We two alone will sing like birds i' the cage—
When thou dost ask me blessing, I'll kneel down,
And ask of thee forgiveness and we'll live,
And pray, and sing, and tell old tales, and laugh
At gilded butterflies, and hear poor rogues
Talk of court news, and we'll talk with them too,
Who loses, and who wins, who's in, who's out,
And take upon 's the mystery of things,
As if we were God's spies, and we'll wear out,
In a wall'd prison, packs and sets of great ones
That ebb and flow by the moon Ib iii 8

The heavenly rhetoric of thine eye Ib [60]

Love, whose month is ever May,
Spied a blossom passing fair,
Playing in the wanning air
Through the velvet leaves the wind,
All unseen, 'gan passage find,
That the lover, sick to death,
Wish'd himself the heaven's breath Ib [102]

Thou for whom e'en Jove would swear Juno but an Ethiop were,
And deny himself for Jove,
Turning mortal for thy love

Love's Labour's Lost, IV iii [119]

Now step I forth to whip hypocrisy Ib [151]

From women's eyes this doctrine I derive
They are the ground, the books, the academes,
From whence doth spring the true Promethean fire
Ib [302].

For where is any author in the world
Teaches such beauty as a woman's eye?
Learning is but an adjunct to ourself Ib [312]

But love, first learned in a lady's eyes,
Lives not alone immured in the brain,
But, with the motion of all elements,
Courses as swift as thought in every power,
And gives to every power a double power,
Above their functions and their offices.
It adds a precious seeing to the eye,
A lover's eyes will gaze an eagle blind;
A lover's ears will hear the lowest sound,
When the suspicious head of theft is stopp'd
Love's feeling is more soft and sensible
Than are the tender horns of cockled snails
Love's tongue proves dainty Bacchus gross in taste
For valour, is not love a Hercules,
Still climbing trees in the Hesperides?
Subtle as Sphinx, as sweet and musical
As bright Apollo's lute, strung with his hair,
And when Love speaks, the voice of all the gods
Makes heaven drowsy with the harmony.
Never durst poet touch a pen to write
Until his ink were temper'd with Love's sighs
Ib [327]

From women's eyes this doctrine I derive
They sparkle still the right Prometheus in fire;
They are the books, the arts, the academes,
That show, contain, and nourish all the world
Ib [350].

He draweth out the thread of his verbosity finer than the staple of his argument Ib, v. 1 [18]

COSTARD

O! they have lived long on the alms-basket of words.
I marvel thy master hath not eaten thee for a word, for thou art not so long by the head as honorificabilitudinitatibus thou art easier swallowed than a flap-dragon Ib [39]

Of such a merry, nimble, stirring spirit,
She might ha' been a grandam ere she died,
And so may you, for a light heart lives long

mander,
By east, west, north, and south, I spread my conquer-

My scutcheon plain declares that I am Alisander
Ib [563]

Let me take you a button-hole lower Ib [705]

A world-without-end bargain Ib [797]

A jest's prosperity lies in the ear
Of him that hears it, never in the tongue
Of him that makes it Ib [869]

When daisies pied and violets blue
And lady-smocks all silver-white
And cuckoo-buds of yellow hue
Do paint the meadows with delight,
The cuckoo then, on every tree,
Mocks married men, for thus sings he,
Cuckoo,
Cuckoo, cuckoo, O, word of fear,
Unpleasing to a married ear! Ib [902]

When icicles hang by the wall,
And Dick, the shepherd, blows his nail,
And Tom bears logs into the hall,
And milk comes frozen home in pail,
When blood is nipp'd and ways be foul,
Then nightly sings the staring owl,
Tu-whoo,
Tu-whit, tu-who—a merry note,
While grey Joan doth keel the pot
When all about the wind doth blow,
And coughing drowns the parson's saw,
And birds sit brooding in the snow,
And Marion's nose looks red and raw,
When roasted crabs hiss in the bowl Ib [920]

The words of Mercury are harsh after the songs of Apollo Ib [938]

FIRST WITCH

When shall we three meet again
In thunder, lightning, or in rain?

SECOND WITCH

When the hurly-burly's done,
When the battle's lost and won

THIRD WITCH

'That will be ere the set of sun

FIRST WITCH

Where the place?

SECOND WITCH

Upon the heath

THIRD WITCH

There to meet with Macbeth.

FIRST WITCH

I come, Graymalkin!

SECOND WITCH

Fair is foul, and foul is fair

I hover through the fog and filthy air
Macbeth, I i 1.

DUNCAN

What bloody man is that?

MALCOLM

This is the sergeant
Ib II 1

Disdaining fortune, with his brandish'd steel,
Which smok'd with bloody execution,
Like valour's minion carv'd out his passage
Macbeth, 1 ii 17

Memorize another Golgotha Ib 41

So well thy words become thee as thy wounds,
They smack of honour both. Ib. 44.

Banners flout the sky Ib 50

Till that Bellona's bridegroom, lapp'd in proof, Confronted him with self-comparisons,
Point against point, rebellious arm 'gainst arm,
Curbing his lavish spirit. Ib 55

A sailor's wife had chestnuts in her lap,
And munch'd, and munch'd, and munch'd 'Give me,' quoth I

'Aroint thee, witch!' the rump-fed ronyon cries
Her husband's to Aleppo gone, master o' the Tiger
But in a sieve I'll thither sail,
And, like a rat without a tail,
I'll do, I'll do, and I'll do Ib iii 4

Sleep shall neither night nor day
Hang upon his pent-house lid
He shall live a man forbid
Weary se'nights nine times nine Shall he dwindle, peak, and pine
Though his bark cannot be lost,
Yet it shall be tempest-tost Ib 19

So foul and fair a day I have not seen Ib 38.

What are these,
So withered, and so wild in their attire,
That look not like th' inhabitants o' the earth,
And yet are on 't? Ib 39

You should be women,
And yet your beards forbid me to interpret
That you are so. Ib 45

If you can look into the seeds of time,
And say which grain will grow and which will not
Ib 58

Stay, you imperfect speakers, tell me more Ib. 70

The Thane of Cawdor lives,
A prosperous gentleman, and to be king
Stands not within the prospect of belief;
No more than to be Cawdor. Say, from whence
You owe this strange intelligence? or why
Upon this blasted heath you stop our way
With such prophetic greeting? Ib 72

BAQUO
The earth hath bubbles, as the water has,
And these are of them
Were such things here as we do speak about?
Or have we eaten on the insane root
That takes the reason prisoner? Ib 83

Strange images of death Ib 97.
What! can the devil speak true? Ib 107

And oftentimes, to win us to our harm,
The instruments of darkness tell us truths,
Win us with honest trifles, to betray 's
In deepest consequence. Ib 123

Two truths are told,
As happy prologues to the swelling act
Of the imperial theme. Ib. 127.

This supernatural soliciting
Cannot be ill, cannot be good, if ill,
Why hath it given me earnest of success,
Commencing in a truth? I am Thane of Cawdor
If good, why do I yield to that suggestion
Whose horrid image doth unfix my hair
And make my seated heart knock at my ribs,
Against the use of nature? Present fears
Are less than horrible imaginings,
My thought, whose murder yet is but fantastical,
Shakes so my single state of man that function Is smother'd in surmise, and nothing is
But what is not Ib 130

If chance will have me king, why, chance may crown me Ib 143

Come what come may,
Time and the hour runs through the roughest day Ib 146

MALCOLM
Nothing in his life
Became him like the leaving it, he died
As one that had been studied in his death
To throw away the dearest thing he owed
As 'twere a careless trifle
DUNCAN

There's no art
To find the mind's construction in the face,
He was a gentleman on whom I built
An absolute trust. Ib iv 7

Glamis thou art, and Cawdor, and shalt be What thou art promis'd Yet do I fear thy nature,
It is too full o' the milk of human kindness
To catch the nearest way, thou wouldst be great,
Art not without ambition, but without The illness should attend it, what thou wouldst highly,
That wouldst thou holily, wouldst not play false,
And yet wouldst wrongly win, thou'dst have, great Glamis,
That which cries, 'Thus thou must do, if thou have it',
And that which rather thou dost fear to do
Than wishest should be undone Ib v [16]

The golden round,
Which fate and metaphysical aid doth seem To have thee crown'd withal Ib [29].

The raven himself is hoarse
That croaks the fatal entrance of Duncan
Under my battlements Come, you spirits
That tend on mortal thoughts! unsex me here,
And fill me from the crown to the toe top full
Of direst cruelty, make thick my blood,
Stop up the access and passage to remorse,
That no compunctious visitings of nature
Shake my fell purpose, nor keep peace between The effect and it! Come to my woman's breasts,
And take my milk for gall, you murdering ministers,
Wherever in your sightless substances
You wait on nature's mischief! Come, thick night,
And pall thee in the dunest smoke of hell,
That my keen knife see not the wound it makes,
Nor heaven peep through the blanket of the dark,
To cry 'Hold, hold!' Ib [38]

Greater than both, by the all-hail hereafter! Ib [56]

Your face, my thane, is as a book where men
May read strange matters To beguile the time,
Look like the time, bear welcome in your eye,
Your hand, your tongue: look like the innocent flower,
But be the serpent under 't. Macbeth, I iv [63]

DUNCAN

This castle hath a pleasant seat, the air
Nimbly and sweetly recommends itself
Unto our gentle senses.

BANQUO

This guest of summer,
The temple-haunting martlet, does approve
By his lov'd mansionry that the heaven's breath
Smells wooingly here no juttie, frieze,
Buttress, nor coign of vantage, but this bird
Hath made his pendent bed and procreant cradle
Where they most breed and haunt, I have observ'd,
The air is delicate Ib vi 1

If it were done when 'tis done, then 'twere well
It were done quickly if the assassination
Could trammel up the consequence, and catch
With his surcease success, that but this blow
Might be the be-all and the end-all here,
But here, upon this bank and shoal of time,
We'd jump the life to come Ib vii 1
This even-handed justice Ib 10

Besides, this Duncan
Hath borne his faculties so meek, hath been So clear in his great office, that his virtues
Will plead like angels trumpet-tongu'd, against The deep damnation of his taking-off,
And pity, like a naked new-born babe,
Striding the blast, or heaven's cherubim, hors'd
Upon the sightless couriers of the air,
Shall blow the horrid deed in every eye,
That tears shall drown the wind I have no spur
To prick the sides of my intent, but only Vaulting ambition, which o'erleaps itself,
And falls on the other Ib 16

We will proceed no further in this business
He hath honour'd me of late, and I have bought Golden opinions from all sorts of people. Ib 31

Was the hope drunk,
Wherein you dress'd yourself? hath it slept since,
And wakes it now, to look so green and pale
At what it did so freely? From this time
Such I account thy love Art thou afraid
To be the same in thine own act and valour
As thou art in desire? Wouldst thou have that Which thou esteem'st the ornament of life,
And live a coward in thine own esteem,
Letting 'I dare not' wait upon 'I would,'
Like the poor cat i' the adage Ib 35

I dare do all that may become a man,
Who dares do more is none Ib 46

LADY MACBETH

I have given suck, and know
How tender 'tis to love the babe that milks me
I would, while it was smiling in my face,
Have pluck'd my nipple from his boneless gums,
And dash'd the brains out, had I so sworn as you Have done to this

MACBETH

It we should fail,—

LADY MACBETH

We fail!
But screw your courage to the sticking-place,
And we'll not fail Ib 54

That memory, the warder of the brain,
Shall be a fume. Ib 65

Bring forth men-children only,
For thy undaunted mettle should compose Nothing but males Ib 72

Away, and mock the time with fairest show
False face must hide what the false heart doth know
Ib 81

There's husbandry in heaven;
Their candles are all out Ib 11 1 4

Merciful powers!
Restrain in me the cursed thoughts that nature
Gives way to in repose Ib 7

Shut up
In measureless content Ib 16

Is this a dagger which I see before me,
The handle toward my hand? Come, let me clutch thee
I have thee not, and yet I see thee still Art thou not, fatal vision, sensible
To feeling as to sight? or art thou but
A dagger of the mind, a false creation, Proceeding from the heat-oppressed brain? Ib 33

Now o'er the one half-world
Nature seems dead, and wicked dreams abuse
The curtain'd sleep, witchcraft celebrates Pale Hecate's offerings, and wither'd murder,
Alarum'd by his sentinel, the wolf,
Whose howl's his watch, thus with his stealthy pace,
With Tarquin's ravishing strides, towards his design
Moves like a ghost Thou sure and firm-set earth,
Hear not my steps, which way they walk, for fear
The very stones prate of my whereabouts,
And take the present horror from the time,
Which now suits with it Whiles I threat he lives
Words to the heat of deeds too cold breath gives.
I go, and it is done, the bell invites me
Hear it not, Duncan, for it is a knell
That summons thee to heaven or to hell. Ib 49

That which hath made them drunk hath made me bold,
What hath quench'd them hath given me fire Ib 11 1

It was the owl that shriek'd, the fatal bellman,
Which gives the stern'st good-night Ib 4

The attempt and not the deed,
Confounds us Ib 12

Had he not resembled
My father as he slept I had done 't Ib 14

I have done the deed Didst thou not hear a noise?
Ib 16

As they had seen me with these hangman's hands
Ib 29

Consider it not so deeply Ib 31.

I had most need of blessing, and 'Amen'
Stuck in my throat Ib 33

These deeds must not be thought
After these ways, so, it will make us mad

Macbeth, II ii 34.

Methought I heard a voice cry, 'Sleep no more!
Macbeth does murder sleep,' the innocent sleep,
Sleep that knits up the ravell'd sleeve of care,
The death of each day's life, sore labour's bath,
Balm of hurt minds, great nature's second course,
Chief nourisher in life's feast

Ib 36

Glamis hath murder'd sleep, and therefore Cawdor Shall sleep no more, Macbeth shall sleep no more!

Ib 43

You do unbend your noble strength to think
So brainsickly of things

Ib 46

MACBETH

I am afraid to think what I have done,
Look on't again I dare not

Infirm of purpose!

Give me the daggers. The sleeping and the dead
Are but as pictures, 'tis the eye of childhood
That fears a painted devil

Ib 52

Will all great Neptune's ocean wash this blood Clean from my hand? No, this my hand will rather

Ib [56]

The night has been unruly where we lay
Our chimneys were blown down, and, as they say, Lamentings heard i' the air, strange screams of death,

And prophesying with accents terrible
Of dire combustion and confus'd events
New-hatch'd to the woeful time. The obscure bird Clamour'd the live-long night. Some say the earth
Was feverous and did shake

Ib. [60]

Confusion now hath made his masterpiece!
Most sacrilegious murder hath broke ope
The Lord's anointed temple, and stole thence
The life o' the building!

Ib [72]

Shake off this downy sleep, death's counterfeit,
And look on death itself! up, up, and see
The great doom's image!

Ib [83]

Had I but died an hour before this chance,
I had liv'd a blessed time, for, from this instant,
There's nothing serious in mortality
All is but toys, renown, and grace is dead,
The wine of life is drawn, and the mere lees
Is left this vault to brag of

Ib [98]

Who can be wile, amazed, temperate, and furious, Loyal and neutral, in a moment? No man

Ib [115]

In the great hand of God I stand, and thence Against the undivulg'd pretence I fight
Of treasonous malice

A falcon, towering in her pride of place,
Was by a mousing owl hawk'd at and kill'd.

Thrifless ambition, that wilt ravin up
Thine own life's means!

Ib 28

Thou hast it now. King, Cawdor, Glamis, all,
As the weird women promis'd, and, I fear,
Thou play'st most foully for 't, yet it was said
It should not stand in thy posterity,
But that myself should be the root and father
Of many kings

Ib iii i 1

I must become a borrower of the night
For a dark hour or twain

Ib 27

But to be safely thus. To be thus is nothing,

Whose being I do fear, and, under him
My genius is rebuk'd, as, it is said,
Mark Antony's was by Cæsar

FIRST MURDERER

We are men, my liege

MACBETH
Ay, in the catalogue ye go for men

Ib 91

FIRST MURDERER

I am one, my liege,

Whom the vile blows and buffets of the world
Have so incens'd, that I am reckless what I do to spite the world

SECOND MURDERER

I another,

So weary with disasters, tugg'd with fortune,
That I would set my life on any chance,
To mend it or be rid on 't.

Ib 108

Leave no rubs nor botches in the work

Ib 134

Thy soul's flight,

If it find heaven, must find it out to-night

Ib 141

Naught's had, all's spent,

Where our desire is got without content.

'Tis safer to be that which we destroy,
Than, by destruction, dwell in doubtful joy

Ib ii 4

LADY MACBETH

Things without all remedy

Should be without regard. What's done is done

MACBETH

We have scotch'd the snake, not killed it
She'll close and be herself, whilst our poor malice Remains in danger of her former tooth
But let the frame of things disjoint, both the worlds suffer,

Ere we will eat our meal in fear, and sleep
In the affliction of these terrible dreams
That shake us nightly. Better be with the dead,
Whom we, to gain our peace, have sent to peace,
Than on the torture of the mind to lie
In restless ecstasy. Duncan is in his grave,
After life's fitful fever he sleeps well,
Treason has done his worst, nor steel, nor poison,
Malice domestic, foreign levy, nothing,
Can touch him further

 Pluck from the memory a rooted sorrow,
 Raze out the written troubles of the brain,
 And with some sweet oblivious antidote
 Cleanse the stuff'd bosom of that perilous stuff
 Which weighs upon the heart?

DOCTOR

Therein the patient
 Must minister to himself
 MACBETH
 Throw physic to the dogs, I'll none of it Ib 37.

If thou couldst, doctor, cast
 The water of my land, find her disease,
 And purge it to a sound and pristine health,
 I would applaud thee to the very echo,
 That should applaud again Ib 50
 Hang out our banners on the outward walls,
 The cry is still, 'They come', Our castle's strength
 Will laugh a siege to scorn Ib v 1

I have almost forgot the taste of fears
 The time has been my senses would have cool'd
 To hear a night-shriek, and my fell of hair
 Would at a dismal treatise rouse and stir
 As life were in 't I have suppd full with horrors, Dureness, familiar to my slaughterous thoughts, Cannot once start me Ib 9

SEYTON

The queen, my lord, is dead

MACBETH

She should have died hereafter,
 There would have been a time for such a word
 To-morrow, and to-morrow, and to-morrow,
 Creeps in this petty pace from day to day,
 To the last syllable of recorded time,
 And all our yesterdays have lighted fools
 The way to dusty death Out, out, brief candle!
 Life's but a walking shadow, a poor player,
 That struts and frets his hour upon the stage,
 And then is heard no more, it is a tale
 Told by an idiot, full of sound and fury, Signifying nothing Ib 16.

I pull in resolution, and begin
To doubt the equivocation of the fiend
That lies like truth 'Fear not, till Birnam wood Do come to Dunsinane' Macbeth, v v 42

I 'gin to be aware of the sun,
And wish the estate o' the world were now undone Ib 49

Blow, wind! come, wrack!
At least we'll die with harness on our back Ib 51
Those clamorous harbingers of blood and death Ib vi 10.

They have tied me to a stake, I cannot fly
But bear-like I must fight the course Ib vii 1

Why should I play the Roman fool, and die
On mine own sword? Ib 30

I bear a charmed life Ib 41

And let the angel whom thou still hast served Tell thee, Macduff was from his mother's womb
Untimely ripp'd Ib 43

And be these juggling fiends no more believ'd,
That palter with us with a double sense,
That keep the word of promise to our ear,
And break it to our hope Ib 48

Live to be the show and gaze o' the time Ib 53

Lay on, Macduff,
And damn'd be he that first cries, 'Hold, enough!' Ib 62

SIWARD

Had he his hurts before?

ROSS

Ay, on the front

SIWARD

Why, then, God's soldier be he!

Had I as many sons as I have hairs,
I would not wish them to a fairer death Ib 75

For if our virtues
Did not go forth of us, 'twere all alike
As if we had them not Spirits are not finely touch'd
But to fine issues Measure for Measure, i 1 33

The sanctimonious pirate, that went to sea with the Ten Commandments, but scraped one out of the table Ib ii [7]

And liberty plucks justice by the nose Ib iii 29

I hold you as a thing ensky'd and sainted Ib iv 34

A man whose blood
Is very snow-bruth, one who never feels
The wanton stings and motions of the sense Ib 57

Our doubts are traitors,
And make us lose the good we oft might win,
By fearing to attempt Ib 77

We must not make a scarecrow of the law,
Setting it up to fear the birds of prey,
And let it keep one shape, till custom make it
Their perch and not their terror Ib ii 1. 1

'Tis one thing to be tempted, Escalus,
Another thing to fall I not deny,
The jury, passing on the prisoner's life,
May in the sworn twelve have a thief or two Guiltier than him they try Ib 17

Some rise by sin, and some by virtue fall Ib 38

This will last out a night in Russia,
When nights are longest there Ib [144]

I am

At war 'twixt will and will not Ib ii 32

Condemn the fault and not the actor of it? Ib 37.

No ceremony that to great ones 'longs,
Not the king's crown, nor the deputed sword,
The marshal's truncheon, nor the judge's robe,
Become them with one half so good a grace
As mercy does Ib 59

Why, all the souls that were were forfeit once;
And He that might the vantage best have took,
Found out the remedy How would you be,
If He, which is the top of judgment, should But judge you as you are? Ib 73

O! it is excellent

To have a giant's strength, but it is tyrannous
To use it like a giant Ib 107

Merciful Heaven!
Thou rather with thy sharp and sulphurous bolt Split'st the unwedgeable and gnarled oak
Than the soft myrtle, but man, proud man,
Drest in a little brief authority,
Most ignorant of what he's most assur'd,
His glassy essence, like an angry ape,
Plays such fantastic tricks before high heaven,
As make the angels weep. Ib 114

Great men may jest with saints, 'tis wit in them,
But, in the less foul profanation. Ib 127

That in the captain's but a choleric word,
Which in the soldier is flat blasphemy. Ib 130

I am that way going to temptation,
Where prayers cross. Ib 158.

Having waste ground enough,
Shall we desire to raze the sanctuary
And pitch our evils there? Ib 170

O cunning enemy, that, to catch a saint,
With saints dost bait thy hook! Most dangerous
Is that temptation that doth goad us on To sin in loving virtue Ib 180.

When I would pray and think, I think and pray
To several subjects Heaven hath my empty words Ib iv 1.

CLAUDIO

The miserable have no other medicine
But only hope
I have hope to live, and am prepar'd to die.

DUKE

Be absolute for death, either death or life
Shall thereby be the sweeter Reason thus with life:
If I do lose thee, I do lose a thing
That none but fools would keep a breath thou art
Servile to all the skye influences Ib iii 1. 2.

If thou art rich, thou'rt poor,
For, like an ass whose back with ingots bows,
Thou bear'st thy heavy riches but a journey,
And death unloads thee Ib 25.

Thou hast nor youth nor age,
But, as it were, an after-dinner's sleep,
Dreaming on both Ib 32.

Palsied eld Measure for Measure, III 1 35

Dar'st thou die?

The sense of death is most in apprehension,
And the poor beetle, that we tread upon,
In corporal sufferance finds a pang as great
As when a giant dies Ib 75

If I must die,
I will encounter darkness as a bride,
And hug it in mine arms Ib 81

The cunning livery of hell. Ib 93

CLAUDIO

Death is a fearful thing

ISABELLA

And shamed life a hateful

CLAUDIO

Ay, but to die, and go we know not where,
To lie in cold obstruction and to rot,
This sensible warm motion to become A kneaded clod, and the delighted spirit
To bathe in fiery floods, or to reside
In thrilling region of thick-ribbed ice,
To be imprisoned in the viewless winds,
And blown with restless violence round about
The pendent world! Ib 114

The weariest and most loathed worldly life
That age, ache, penury, and imprisonment
Can lay on nature, is a paradise
To what we fear of death Ib 127

O, fie, fie, fie!

Thy sin's not accidental, but a trade Ib 146

The hand that made you fair hath made you good

There, at the moated grange, resides this dejected
Mariana Ib [279]

A very superficial, ignorant, unweighing fellow
Ib II [151]

Take, O take those lips away,
That so sweetly were forsworn,
And those eyes, the break of day,
Lights that do mislead the morn
But my kisses bring again, bring again;
Seals of love, but seal'd in vain, seal'd in vain
Ib IV 1 1

He will discredit our mystery Ib II [29]

Every true man's apparel fits your thief Ib [46]

Look, here's the warrant, Claudio, for thy death
'Tis now dead midnight, and by eight to-morrow
Thou must be made immortal Ib [66]

A man that apprehends death no more dreadfully but as a drunken sleep Ib [148]

Look, the unfolding star calls up the shepherd
Ib [219]

I am a kind of burr, I shall stick Ib III [193]

A fortified residence 'gainst the tooth of time,
And razure of oblivion. Ib V 1 12

Let the devil

Haste still pays haste, and leisure answers leisure,
Like doth quit like, and Measure still for Measure
Ib [411]

They say best men are moulded out of faults,
And, for the most, become much more the better
For being a little bad Ib [440].

In sooth I know not why I am so sad
It wearies me, you say it wearies you,
But how I caught it, found it, or came by it,
What stuff 'tis made of, whereof it is born,
I am to learn The Merchant of Venice, I 1 1

There, where your argosies with portly sail,—
Like signiors and rich burghers on the flood,
Or, as it were, the pageants of the sea,—
Do overpeer the petty traffickers Ib 9

Nature hath fram'd strange fellows in her time
Some that will evermore peep through their eyes
And laugh like parrots at a bagpiper.
And other of such vinegar aspect
That they'll not show their teeth in way of smile,
Though Nestor swear the jest be laughable Ib 51

I hold the world but as the world, Gratiano;
A stage where every man must play a part,
And mine a sad one Ib 77

Why should a man, whose blood is warm within,
Sit like his grandsire cut in alabaster? Ib 83

There are a sort of men whose visages
Do cream and mantle like a standing pond Ib 88

As who should say, 'I am Sir Oracle,
And when I ope my lips let no dog bark!
O, my Antonio, I do know of these,
That therefore only are reputed wise,
For saying nothing Ib 93

Fish not, with this melancholy bait,
For this fool gudgeon, this opinion Ib 101

Silence is only commendable
In a neat's tongue dried and a maid not vendible.
Ib 111

Gratiano speaks an infinite deal of nothing, more than any man in all Venice His reasons are as two grains of wheat, hid in two bushels of chaff you shall seek all day ere you find them, and, when you have found them, they are not worth the search Ib 114

My purse, my person, my extremest means
Lie all unlock'd to your occasion Ib [139]

Sometimes from her eyes
I did receive fair speechless messages Ib [164]

By my troth, Nerissa, my little body is aware of this great world Ib II 1

'They are as sick that surfeit with too much, as they that starve with nothing Ib [5]

Superfluity comes sooner by white hairs, but competency lives longer Ib [9]

If to do were as easy as to know what were good to do, chapels had been churches, and poor men's cottages princes' palaces Ib [13]

It is a good divine that follows his own instructions, I can easier teach twenty what were good to be done, than be one of the twenty to follow mine own teaching The Merchant of Venice, I II [15]

He doth nothing but talk of his horse. Ib [43]

God made him, and therefore let him pass for a man
Ib [59]

If I should marry him, I should marry twenty husbands Ib, [66]

I think he bought his doublet in Italy, his round hose in France, his bonnet in Germany, and his behaviour everywhere Ib [78]

I will do anything, Nerissa, ere I will be married to a sponge Ib [105]

I dote on his very absence. Ib, [118]

Ships are but boards, sailors but men, there be land-rats and water-rats, land-thieves and water-thieves
Ib III [22]

I will buy with you, sell with you, talk with you, walk with you, and so following, but I will not eat with you, drink with you, nor pray with you What news on the Rialto? Ib [36]

How like a fawning publican he looks!
I hate him for he is a Christian,
But more for that in low simplicity
He lends out money gratis, and brings down
The rate of usance here with us in Venice
If I can catch him once upon the hip,
I will feed fat the ancient grudge I bear him
He hates our sacred nation, and he rails,
Even there where merchants most do congregate,
On me, my bargains, and my well-won thrift
Ib [42]

The devil can cite Scripture for his purpose
Ib [99]

A goodly apple rotten at the heart
O, what a goodly outside falsehood hath! Ib [102]

Signior Antonio, many a time and oft
In the Rialto you have rated me Ib [107]

For sufferance is the badge of all our tribe
Ib [111].

'Hath a dog money? Is it possible
A cur can lend three thousand ducats?' or Shall I bend low, and in a bondman's key,
With bated breath, and whispering humbleness,
Say this —
'Fair sir, you spet on me on Wednesday last,
You spurn'd me such a day, another time
You call'd me dog, and for these courtesies
I'll lend you thus much moneys?' Ib [122].

For when did friendship take
A breed for barren metal of his friend? Ib [134].

O father Abram! what these Christians are,
Whose own hard dealing teaches them suspect
The thoughts of others! Ib [161].

I like not fair terms and a villain's mund Ib [180].

Mislike me not for my complexion,
The shadow'd livery of the burnished sun
Ib II I I.

An honest man's son,—or rather an honest woman's son,—for, indeed, my father did something smack, something grow to, he had a kind of taste,— well, my conscience says, 'Launcelot, budge not'
'Budge,' says the fiend 'Budge not,' says my conscience 'Conscience,' say I, 'you counsel well,' 'fiend,' say I, 'you counsel well' Ib II [16]

O heavens! this is my true-begotten father Ib [36]

An honest exceeding poor man Ib [54]

The very staff of my age, my very prop Ib [71]

It is a wise father that knows his own child
Ib [83]

Truth will come to light, murder cannot be hid long,

Lord worshipp'd might he be! What a beard hast thou got! Ib [101]

There is some ill a-brewing towards my rest,
For I did dream of money-bags to-night Ib v 17

Then it was not for nothing that my nose fell a-bleeding on Black Monday Ib [24]

And the vile squealing of the wry-neck'd fife
Ib [30]

But love is blind, and lovers cannot see
The pretty follies that themselves commit
Ib vi 36

What! must I hold a candle to my shames? Ib 41

Men that hazard all
Do it in hope of fair advantages.
A golden mind stoops not to shows of dross
Ib vii 18

Pause there, Morocco Ib 24

Young in limbs, in judgment old Ib 71.

My daughter! O my ducats! O my daughter!
Fled with a Christian! O my Christian ducats!
Ib viii 15

The fool multitude, that choose by show Ib ix 26.

Like the martlet,
Builds in the weather on the outward wall,
Even in the force and road of casualty
I will not choose what many men desire,
Because I will not jump with common spirits
And rank me with the barbarous multitude
Ib 28

Let none presume
To wear an undeserv'd dignity
O! that estates, degrees, and offices
Were not deriv'd corruptly, and that clear honour
Were purchased by the merit of the wearer! Ib 39

The fire seven times tried this Seven times tried that judgment is That did never choose amiss
Some there be that shadows kiss,
Such have but a shadow's bliss
Ib 63.

Thus hath the candle sing'd the moth
O, these deliberate fools! Ib 79.

The ancient saying is no heresy
'Hanging and wiving goes by destiny' Ib 82

The Goodwins, I think they call the place, a very dangerous flat, and fatal, where the carcasses of many a tall ship lie buried, as they say, if my gossip Report be an honest woman of her word

The Merchant of Venice, III. 1. [4]

Let him look to his bond Ib [51, 52, 54]

Hath not a Jew eyes? hath not a Jew hands, organs, dimensions, senses, affections, passions? fed with the same food, hurt with the same weapons, subject to the same diseases, healed by the same means, warmed and cooled by the same winter and summer, as a Christian is? If you prick us, do we not bleed? if you tickle us, do we not laugh? if you poison us, do we not die? and if you wrong us, shall we not revenge? Ib [63]

The villany you teach me I will execute, and it shall go hard but I will better the instruction Ib [76]

Thou stick'st a dagger in me Ib [118]

He makes a swan-like end

Fading in music Ib 44

Tell me where is fancy bred,
Or in the heart or in the head?
How begot, how nourished?
Reply, reply

It is engender'd in the eyes,
With gazing fed, and fancy dies
In the cradle where it lies
Let us all ring fancy's knell
I'll begin it,—Ding, dong, bell

Ib 11 63

So may the outward shows be least themselves
The world is still deceived with ornament
In law, what plea so tainted and corrupt
But, being season'd with a gracious voice,
Obscures the show of evil? In religion,
What damned error, but some sober brow
Will bless it and approve it with a text,
Hiding the grossness with fair ornament? Ib 73.

Ornament is but the guiled shore
To a most dangerous sea, the beauteous scarf
Veiling an Indian beauty, in a word,
The seeming truth which cunning times put on
To entrap the wisest. Ib 97

Thou pale and common drudge
'Tween man and man Ib. 103

Rash-embac'd despair,
And shuddering fear, and green-ey'd jealousy Ib 109

What demi-god
Hath come so near creation? Ib 115

An unlesson'd girl, unschooll'd, unpractis'd,
Happy in this, she is not yet so old
But she may learn, happier than this,
She is not bred so dull but she can learn Ib. 160

I wish you all the joy that you can wish. Ib 191.

My eyes, my lord, can look as swift as yours
You saw the mistress, I beheld the maid Ib 198.

Here are a few of the unpleasant'st words
That ever blotted paper! Ib 252.

I will have my bond Ib III 17.

This comes too near the praising of myself Ib IV. 22.

How every fool can play upon the word! Ib. v. [48]

Wilt thou show the whole wealth of thy wit in an instant? I pray thee, understand a plain man in his plain meaning Ib [62]

I'll not answer that

But say it is my humour Ib IV. 1 42

A harmless necessary cat. Ib 55

I am not bound to please thee with my answer Ib 65

What judgment shall I dread, doing no wrong? Ib 89.

I am a tainted wether of the flock,
Meetest for death the weakest kind of fruit
Drops earliest to the ground Ib. 114.

I never knew so young a body with so old a head. Ib. [163].

PORTIA:

Then must the Jew be merciful.

SHYLOCK.

On what compulsion must I? tell me that.

PORTIA

The quality of mercy is not strain'd,
It droppeth as the gentle rain from heaven
Upon the place beneath it is twice bless'd,
It blesseth him that gives and him that takes.
'Tis mightiest in the mightiest it becomes
The throned monarch better than his crown,
His sceptre shows the force of temporal power,
The attribute to awe and majesty,
Wherein doth sit the dread and fear of kings,
But mercy is above this sceptred sway,
It is enthroned in the hearts of kings,
It is an attribute to God himself,
And earthly power doth then show likest God's When mercy seasons justice Therefore, Jew,
Though justice be thy plea, consider this,
That in the course of justice none of us
Should see salvation we do pray for mercy,
And that same prayer doth teach us all to render
The deeds of mercy. Ib [182]

My deeds upon my head! I crave the law Ib [206]

Wrest once the law to your authority
To do a great right, do a little wrong Ib. [215].

'Twill be recorded for a precedent,
And many an error by the same example
Will rush into the state. Ib [220].

A Daniel come to judgment! yea, a Daniel!
O wise young judge, how I do honour thee! Ib. [223].

An oath, an oath, I have an oath in heaven.
Shall I lay perjury upon my soul?
No, not for Venice Ib. [228].

I charge you by the law,
Whereof you are a well-deserving pillar,
Proceed to judgment
The Merchant of Venice, IV. 1 [238].

Is it so nominated in the bond? Ib [260]

'T is not in the bond Ib [263]

For herein Fortune shows herself more kind
Than is her custom it is still her use
To let the wretched man outlive his wealth,
To view with hollow eye and wrinkled brow
An age of poverty Ib [268]

The court awards it, and the law doth give it
Ib [301]

Thyself shalt see the act,
For, as thou urgest justice, be assur'd
Thou shalt have justice, more than thou desir'st
Ib [315]

A second Daniel, a Daniel, Jew!
Now, infidel, I have thee on the hip Ib [334]

I thank thee, Jew, for teaching me that word
Ib [342]

You take my house when you do take the prop
That doth sustain my house, you take my life
When you do take the means whereby I live Ib [376]

He is well paid that is well satisfied Ib 416

You taught me first to beg, and now methinks
You teach me how a beggar should be answer'd

LORENZO

In such a night
Troilus methinks mounted the Trojan walls,
And sigh'd his soul toward the Grecian tents,
Where Cressid lay that night

JESSICA

In such a night
Did Thisbe fearfully o'ertrip the dew,
And saw the lion's shadow e'er himself,
And ran dismay'd away

LORENZO

In such a night
Stood Dido with a willow in her hand
Upon the wild sea-banks, and waft her love
To come again to Carthage

JESSICA

In such a night
Medea gather'd the enchanted herbs
That did renew old Æson Ib v 1 3

How sweet the moonlight sleeps upon this bank!
Here we will sit, and let the sounds of music
Creep in our ears soft stillness and the night
Become the touches of sweet harmony
Sit, Jessica look, how the floor of heaven
Is thick inlaid with patines of bright gold
There's not the smallest orb which thou behold'st
But in his motion like an angel sings,
Still quiring to the young-eyed cherubins,
Such harmony is in immortal souls,
But whilst this muddy vesture of decay
Doth grossly close it in, we cannot hear it Ib 54.
I am never merry when I hear sweet music Ib 69

Therefore the poet
Did feign that Orpheus drew trees, stones, and floods;
Since nought so stockish, hard, and full of rage,

But music for the time doth change his nature
The man that hath no music in himself,
Nor is not mov'd with concord of sweet sounds,
Is fit for treasons, stratagems, and spoils,
The motions of his spirit are dull as night,
And his affections dark as Erebus
Let no such man be trusted Ib 79

How far that little candle throws his beams!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world
NFRISSA
When the moon shone, we did not see the candle.

PORTIA

So doth the greater glory dim the less
A substitute shines brightly as a king
Until a king be by, and then his state
Empties itself, as doth an inland brook
Into the main of waters Ib 90

The crow doth sing as sweetly as the lark
When nuthier is attend'd, and I think
The nightingale, if she should sing by day,
When every goose is cackling, would be thought
No better a musician than the wren
How many things by season season'd are
To their right praise and true perfection!
Peace, ho! the moon sleeps with Endymion,
And would not be awak'd! Ib 102

And ere a man hath power to say, 'Behold!'
The jaws of darkness do devour it up
So quick bright things come to confusion
Ib 141

Your tongue's sweet air
More tuneable than lark to shepherd's ear,
When wheat is green, when hawthorn buds appear
Ib 183

Love looks not with the eyes, but with the mind,
And therefore is wing'd Cupid painted blind
Ib 234

The most lamentable comedy, and most cruel death of Pyramus and Thisby
Ib ii [11]

Masters, spread yourselves
Ib [16]

A part to tear a cat in, to make all split
Ib [32]

This is Ercles' vein
Ib [43]

I'll speak in a monstrous little voice
Ib [55]

I am slow of study
Ib [70]

I will roar, that I will do any man's heart good to hear me
Ib [73]

I will aggravate my voice so that I will roar you as gently as any sucking dove, I will roar you as 'twere any nightingale
Ib [84]

A proper man, as one shall see in a summer's day
Ib [89]

Hold, or cut bow-strings
Ib [115]

Over hill, over dale,
Thorough bush, thorough brier,
Over park, over pale,
Thorough flood, thorough fire
Ib ii 1 2

The cowslips tall her pensioners be,
In their gold coats spots you see,
Those be rubies, fairy favours,
In those freckles live their savours
Ib 10

I must go seek some dew-drops here,
And hang a pearl in every cowslip's ear
Ib 14

The middle summer's spring
Ib 82.

Therefore the moon, the governess of floods,
Pale in her anger, washes all the air,
That rheumatic diseases do abound.
And thorough this distemperature we see
The seasons alter hoary-headed frosts
Fall in the fresh lap of the crimson rose
Ib 103.

Since once I sat upon a promontory,
And heard a mermaid on a dolphin's back
Uttering such dulcet and harmonious breath,
That the rude sea grew civil at her song,
And certain stars shot madly from their spheres,
To hear the sea-maid's music
Ib 149

But I might see young Cupid's fiery shaft
Quench'd in the chaste beams of the wat'ry moon,
And the imperial votaress passed on,
In maiden meditation, fancy-free
Yet mark'd I where the bolt of Cupid fell
It fell upon a little western flower,
Before milk-white, now purple with love's wound,
And maidens call it, Love-in-idleness
Ib 161.

I'll put a girdle round about the earth
In forty minutes
Ib 175.

I know a bank whereon the wild thyme blows,
Where oxlips and the nodding violet grows
Quite over-canopied with luscious woodbine,
With sweet musk-roses, and with eglantine
There sleeps Titania some time of the night,
Lull'd in these flowers with dances and delight,
And there the snake throws her enamell'd skin, Weed wide enough to wrap a fairy in
Ib 249

Some to kill cankers in the musk-rose buds,
Some war with rere-mice for their leathern wings,
To make my small elves coats
Ib ii 3

The clamorous owl, that nightly hoots, and wonders
At our quaint spirits
Ib 6.

You spotted snakes with double tongue,
Thorny hedge-hogs, be not seen,
Newts, and blind-worms, do no wrong,
Come not near our fairy queen.
Ib 9

Weaving spiders come not here,
Hence, you long-legg'd spinners, hence!
Beetles black, approach not near,
Worm nor snail, do no offence
Ib 20.

This green plot shall be our stage, this hawthornbrake our tiring-house

A Midsummer Night's Dream, III 1 [3]

God shield us!—a lion among ladies, is a most dreadful thing, for there is not a more fearful wild-fowl than your lion living Ib [32]

What hempen home-spuns have we swaggering here,
So near the cradle of the fairy queen? Ib [82]

Bless thee, Bottom! bless thee! thou art translated
Ib [124]

The throstle with his note so true,
The wren with little quill. Ib [133]

As wild geese that the creeping fowler eye,
Or russet-pated choughs, many in sort,
Rising and cawing at the gun's report,
Sever themselves, and madly sweep the sky Ib 11 20

Lord, what fools these mortals be! Ib 115

So we grow together,
Like to a double cherry, seeming parted,
But yet an union in partition,
Two lovely berries moulded on one stem Ib 208

My Oberon! what visions have I seen!
Methought I was enamour'd of an ass Ib [82]

Then, my queen, in silence sad,
Trip we after the night's shade,
We the globe can compass soon,
Swifter than the wandering moon Ib [101]

HIPPOLYTA

I was with Hercules and Cadmus once,
When in a wood of Crete they bay'd the bear
With hounds of Sparta never did I hear

So musical a discord, such sweet thunder
THESEUS

My hounds are bred out of the Spartan kind,
So flew'd, so sanded, and their heads are hung
With ears that sweep away the morning dew,
Crook-knee'd, and dew-lapp'd like Thessalian bulls, Slow in pursuit, but match'd in mouth like bells,
Ib [118]

Saint Valentine is past

Begin these wood-birds but to couple now? Ib [145]

I have had a dream, past the wit of man to say what dream it was Ib [211]

The eye of man hath not heard, the ear of man hath not seen, man's hand is not able to taste, his tongue to conceive, nor his heart to report, what my dream was Ib [218]

The lunatic, the lover, and the poet,
Are of imagination all compact
One sees more devils than vast hell can hold,
That is, the madman, the lover, all as frantic,
Sees Helen's beauty in a brow of Egypt.
The poet's eye, in a fine frenzy rolling, Doth glance from heaven to earth, from earth to heaven,

And, as imagination bodies forth
The forms of things unknown, the poet's pen
Turns them to shapes, and gives to airy nothing
A local habitation and a name
Such tricks hath strong imagination,
That, if it would but apprehend some joy,
It comprehends some bringer of that joy,
Or in the night, imagining some fear,
How easy is a bush suppos'd a bear! Ib V 1 7

What revels are in hand? Is there no play,
'To ease the anguish of a torturing hour? Ib 36

Very tragical mirth. Ib [57]

For never anything can be amiss,
When simpleness and duty tender it. Ib 82

That is the true beginning of our end Consider then we come but in despite
We do not come as minding to content you,
Our true intent is All for your delight,
We are not here Ib 111

Whereat, with blade, with bloody blameful blade,
He bravely broach'd his boiling bloody breast Ib [148]

The best in this kind are but shadows, and the worst are no worse, if imagination amend them Ib [215]

A very gentle beast, and of a good conscience Ib [233]

Sigh no more, ladies, sigh no more,

Men were deceivers ever,

One foot in sea, and one on shore,

To one thing constant never

Then sigh not so,

But let them go,

And be you blithe and bonny,

Converting all your sounds of woe
Into Hey nonny, nonny

Sing no more ditties, sing no mo
Of dumps so dull and heavy,
The fraud of men was ever so,
Since summer first was leavy Ib [65]

Sits the wind in that corner? Ib [108]

BENEDICK

I have the toothache

DON PEDRO

What! sigh for the toothache? Ib [21]

Well, every one can master a grief but he that has it
Ib [28]

A' brushes his hat a mornings, what should that bode? Ib [41]

The barber's man hath been seen with him, and the old ornament of his cheek hath already stuffed tennis-balls Ib [45]

Are you good men and true? Ib III 1

To be a well-favoured man is the gift of fortune, but to write and read comes by nature Ib [14]

Well, for your favour, sir, why, give God thanks, and make no boast of it, and for your writing and reading, let that appear when there is no need of such vanity You are thought here to be the most senseless and fit man for the constable of the watch
Ib [19]

You shall comprehend all vagrom men Ib [25].

SECOND WATCH

How, if a' will not stand?

DOGBERRY

Why, then, take no note of him, but let him go, and presently call the rest of the watch together, and thank God you are rid of a knave Ib [28]

For the watch to babble and to talk is most tolerable and not to be endured. Ib [36]

- If they make you not then the better answer, you may say they are not the men you took them for Much Ado About Nothing, III. III. [49]
- The most peaceable way for you, if you do take a thief, is, to let him show himself what he is and steal out of your company Ib [61]

After your own sense Ib 67.
- Most potent, grave, and reverend signiors,
My very noble and approv'd good masters,
That I have ta'en away this old man's daughter,

It is most true, I have married her
 The very head and front of my offending
 Hath this extent, no more Rude am I in my speech,
 And little bless'd with the soft phrase of peace,
 For since these arms of mine had seven years' pith,
 Till now some nine moons wasted, they have us'd
 Their dearest action in the tented field,
 And little of this great world can I speak,
 More than pertains to feats of broil and battle,
 And therefore little shall I grace my cause
 In speaking for myself Yet, by your gracious patience,
 I will a round unvarnish'd tale deliver
 Of my whole course of love, what drugs, what charms,
 What conjuration, and what mighty magic,
 For such proceeding I am charg'd withal,
 I won his daughter Othello, I iii 76

A maiden never bold;
 Of spirit so still and quiet, that her motion
 Blush'd at herself Ib 94

Her father lov'd me, oft invited me,
 Still question'd me the story of my life
 From year to year, the battles, sieges, fortunes
 That I have pass'd
 I ran it through, even from my boyish days
 To the very moment that he bade me tell it,
 Wherein I spake of most disastrous chances,
 Of moving accidents by flood and field,
 Of hair-breadth 'scapes, I' the imminent deadly breach,
 Of being taken by the insolent foe
 And sold to slavery, of my redemption thence
 And portance in my travel's history,
 Wherein of antres vast and deserts idle,
 Rough quarries, rocks and hills whose heads touch
 heaven,
 It was my hint to speak, such was the process,
 And of the Cannibals that each other eat,
 The Anthropophagi, and men whose heads
 Do grow beneath their shoulders This to hear
 Would Desdemona seriously incline Ib 128

And often did beguile her of her tears,
 When I did speak of some distressful stroke
 That my youth suffer'd My story being done,
 She gave me for my pains a world of sighs
 She swore, in faith, 't was strange, 't was passing strange,
 'T was pitiful, 't was wondrous pitiful
 She wish'd she had not heard it, yet she wish'd
 That heaven had made her such a man, she thank'd me,
 And bade me, if I had a friend that lov'd her,
 I should but teach him how to tell my story,
 And that would woo her Upon this hint I spake
 She lov'd me for the dangers I had pass'd,
 And I lov'd her that she did pity them
 This only is the witchcraft I have us'd Ib 156

I do perceive here a divided duty Ib 181

To mourn a mischief that is past and gone
 Is the next way to draw new mischief on Ib 204

The robb'd that smiles steals something from the

But words are words, I never yet did hear
 That the bruise'd heart was pierced through the ear
Ib 218

The tyrant custom, most grave senators,
 Hath made the flinty and steel couch of war
 My thrice-driven bed of down Ib [230].

My heart's subdu'd
 Even to the very quality of my lord Ib [252]
 I saw Othello's visage in his mind Ib [254]
 A moth of peace Ib [258]

Our great captain's captain Ib II 1 74

You are pictures out of doors,
 Bells in your parlours, wild cats in your kitchens,
 Saints in your injuries, devils being offended, Players in your housewifery, and housewives in your beds Ib 109

Do not put me to 't,
 For I am nothing if not critical Ib 118

I am not merry, but I do beguile
 The thing I am by seeming otherwise Ib 122

IAGO
 She never yet was foolish that was fair,
 For even her folly help'd her to an heir

DESDEMONA
 These are old fond paradoxes to make fools laugh i' the alchouse Ib 136

IAGO
 She that was ever fair and never proud,
 Had tongue at will and yet was never loud,
 Never lack'd gold and yet went never gay,
 Fled from her wish and yet said 'Now I may,'
 She that being anger'd, her revenge being nigh,
 Bade her wrong stay and her displeasure fly,
 She that in wisdom never was so frail
 To change the cod's head for the salmon's tail,

She that could think and ne'er disclose her mind,
See suitors following and not look behind,
She was a wight, if ever such wight were,— Think'st thou I'd make a life of jealousy,

To follow still the changes of the moon

With fresh suspicions? No, to be once in doubt

Is once to be resolved Ib 177

In Venice they do let heaven see the pranks

They dare not show their husbands, their best conscience

Is not to leave 't undone, but keep 't unknown

Ib 202

I humbly do beseech you of your pardon

For too much loving you Ib 212

This fellow's of exceeding honesty.

Ib 258.

If I do prove her haggard,
Though that her jesses were my dear heart-strings,
I'd whistle her off and let her down the wind,
To prey at fortune Othello, III. iii 260

For I am declin'd
Into the vale of years Ib 265

O curse of marriage!
That we can call these delicate creatures ours,
And not their appetites I had rather be a toad,
And live upon the vapour of a dungeon,
Than keep a corner in the thing I love
For others' uses Ib 268

If she be false, O! then heaven mocks itself
I'll not believe it Ib 278

Trifles light as air
Are to the jealous confirmations strong
As proofs of holy writ Ib 323

Not poppy, nor mandragora,
Nor all the drowsy syrups of the world,
Shall ever medicine thee to that sweet sleep
Which thou ow'dst yesterday Ib 331

Avaunt! be gone! thou hast set me on the rack,
I swear 'tis better to be much abus'd
Than but to know 't a little Ib 338

He that is robb'd, not wanting what is stol'n,
Let him not know 't and he's not robb'd at all
Ib 343

I had been happy, if the general camp,
Pioners and all, had tasted her sweet body,
So I had nothing known O! now, for ever
Farewell the tranquil mind, farewell content!
Farewell the plum'd troop and the big wars
That make ambition virtue! O, farewell!
Farewell the neighing steed and the shrill trump,
The spirit-stirring drum, the ear-piercing fife,
The royal banner, and all quality,
Pride, pomp, and circumstance of glorious war!
And, O you mortal engines, whose rude throats
The immortal Jove's dread clamours counterfeit, Farewell! Othello's occupation's gone! Ib 346

Be sure of it, give me the ocular proof
Ib 361
Never pray more, abandon all remorse;
On horror's head horrors accumulate Ib 370

O wretched fool!
That liv'st to make thine honesty a vice
O monstrous world! Take note, take note, O world!
To be direct and honest is not safe Ib 376

By the world,
I think my wife be honest and think she is not,
I think that thou art just and think thou art not
Ib 384

There are a kind of men so loose of soul
That in their sleeps will mutter their affairs
Ib 417

But this denoted a foregone conclusion Ib 429

Swell, bosom, with thy fraught,
For 't is of aspics' tongues! Ib 450

O! blood, blood, blood! Ib 452

Like to the Pontick sea,
Whose icy current and compulsive course

Ne'er feels retiring ebb, but keeps due on To the Propontic and the Hellespont,
Even so my bloody thoughts, with violent pace,
Shall ne'er look back, ne'er ebb to humble love,
Till that a capable and wide revenge
Swallow them up Ib 454.

For here's a young and sweating devil here,
That commonly rebels Ib, iv 43.

The hearts of old gave hands,
But our new heraldry is hands not hearts Ib 47

That handkerchief
Did an Egyptian to my mother give Ib 56

'Tis true, there's magic in the web of it,
A sibyl, that had number'd in the world
The sun to course two hundred compasses,
In her prophetic fury sew'd the work,
The worms were hallow'd that did breed the silk,
And it was dy'd in mummy which the skilful Conserv'd of maiden's hearts Ib 70.

But jealous souls will not be answer'd so,
They are not ever jealous for the cause,
But jealous for they are jealous Ib 158

What! keep a week away? seven days and nights?
Eight score eight hours? and lovers' absent hours,
More tedious than the dial eight score times?
O, weary reckoning! Ib 172

I do attend here on the general,
And think it no addition nor my wish
To have him see me woman'd Ib 192.

O! it comes o'er my memory,
As doth the raven o'er the infected house,
Boding to all Ib iv 1 20

Many worthy and chaste dames even thus,
All guiltless, meet reproach Ib 47

To beguile many and be beguil'd by one Ib 98

They laugh that win Ib [123]

I would have him nine years a-killing Ib [186]

My heart is turn'd to stone, I strike it, and it hurts my hand Ib [190]

O! the world hath not a sweeter creature, she might lie by an emperor's side and command him tasks
Ib [192]

O, she will sing the savageness out of a bear
Ib [198]

But yet the pity of it, Iago! O! Iago, the pity of it,
Iago! Ib [205]

The justice of it pleases Ib [221]

O well-painted passion! Ib [268]

Goats and monkeys! Ib [274]

Whose solid virtue
The shot of accident nor dart of chance
Could neither graze nor pierce? Ib [277]

Your mystery, your mystery; nay, dispatch
Ib ii 29

Had it pleas'd heaven
To try me with affliction, had he rain'd
All kinds of sores, and shames, on my bare head,
Steep'd me in poverty to the very lips,

Given to captivity me and my utmost hopes,
 I should have found in some part of my soul
 A drop of patience, but, alas! to make me
 The fixed figure for the time of scorn
 To point his slow and moving finger at,
 Yet could I bear that too, well, very well
 But there, where I have garner'd up my heart,
 Where either I must live or bear no life,
 The fountain from the which my current runs
 Or else dries up, to be discarded thence!
 Or keep it as a cistern for foul toads
 To knot and gender in! Turn thy complexion there, Patience, thou young and rose-lipp'd cherubin,
 Ay, there, look grim as hell! Othello, iv ii 46

O thou weed!
 Who art so lovely fair and smell'st so sweet
 That the sense aches at thee, would thou hadst ne'er been born! Ib 66

Heaven stops the nose at it and the moon winks
Ib 76

I took you for that cunning whore of Venice
 That married with Othello You, mistress,
 That have the office opposite to Saint Peter,
 And keep the gate of hell! Ib 88

I will be hang'd, if some eternal villain,
 Some busy and insinuating rogue,
 Some cogging cozening slave, to get some office,
 Have not devis'd this slander Ib 130

O heaven! that such companions thou'dst unfold,
 And put in every honest hand a whip
 To lash the rascals naked through the world,
 Even from the east to the west! Ib 141

Unkindness may do much,
 And his unkindness may defeat my life,
 But never taint my love Ib 159

Why, now I see there's mettle in thee, and even from this instant do build on thee a better opinion than ever before Ib [207]

EMILIA

I would you had never seen him
 DESDEMONA
 So would not I, my love doth so approve him.
Ib iii 18

The poor soul sat sighing by a sycamore tree,
 Sing all a green willow,
 Her hand on her bosom, her head on her knee,
 Sing willow, willow, willow
 The fresh streams ran by her, and murmur'd her moans,
 Sing willow, willow, willow
 Her salt tears fell from her, and soften'd the stones,— Sing willow, willow, willow
 Sing all a green willow must be my garland Ib [41]

DESDEMONA

Mine eyes do itch,
 Doth that bode weeping?
 EMILIA
 'Tis neither here nor there Ib [59]

Who would not make her husband a cuckold to make him a monarch? Ib [76]

He hath a daily beauty in his life
 That makes me ugly Ib v i 19

This is the night

That either makes me or fordoes me quite Ib 128.

It is the cause, it is the cause, my soul,
 Let me not name it to you, you chaste stars!
 It is the cause Yet I'll not shed her blood,
 Nor scar that whiter skin of hers than snow,
 And smooth as monumental alabaster
 Yet she must die, else she'll betray more men
 Put out the light, and then put out the light
 If I quench thee, thou flaming minister,
 I can again thy former light restore,
 Should I repent me, but once put out thy light,
 Thou cunning'st pattern of excelling nature,
 I know not where is that Promethean heat
 That can thy light relume When I have pluck'd the rose,

I cannot give it vital growth again,
 It needs must wither I'll smell it on the tree
 O balmy breath, that dost almost persuade Justice to break her sword! One more, one more
 Be thus when thou art dead, and I will kill thee,
 And love thee after One more, and this the last
 So sweet was ne'er so fatal I must weep,
 But they are cruel tears, this sorrow's heavenly,
 It strikes where it doth love Ib ii 1

If you bethink yourself of any crime
 Unreconcil'd as yet to heaven and grace,
 Solicit for it straight. Ib 26

Alas! why gnaw you so your nether lip?
 Some bloody passion shakes your very frame;
 These are portents, but yet, I hope, I hope
 They do not point on me Ib 43.

For to deny each article with oath
 Cannot remove nor choke the strong conception
 That I do groan withal. Ib 54.

Had all his hairs been lives, my great revenge
 Had stomach for them all Ib 74

It is the very error of the moon;
 She comes more near the earth than she was wont,
 And makes men mad Ib 107

Not Cassio kill'd! then murder's out of tune,
 And sweet revenge grows harsh Ib 113

A guiltless death I die Ib 120
 Nobody, I myself, farewell Ib 122

OTHELLO

She's like a liar gone to burning hell,
 'Twas I that kill'd her

EMILIA

O! the more angel she,
 And you the blacker devil Ib 127

Nay, had she been true,
 If heaven would make me such another world
 Of one entire and perfect chrysolite,
 I'd not have sold her for it Ib 141

She was too fond of her most filthy bargain Ib 155

Thou hast not half the power to do me harm
 As I have to be hurt Ib 160

You told a lie, an odious damned lie,
 Upon my soul, a lie, a wicked lie Ib 178.

Curse his better angel from his side,
 And fall to reprobation Ib 206

Othello, v 11 212

Are there no stones in heaven

But what serve for the thunder? Ib 232

Every puny whipster gets my sword Ib 242

I will play the swan,

And die in music Ib 245

Who can control his fate? Ib 264

Here is my journey's end, here is my butt,
And very sea-mark of my utmost sail Ib 266

O ill-starr'd wench!

Pale as thy smock! when we shall meet at compt,

This look of thine will hurl my soul from heaven,

And fiends will snatch at it Cold, cold, my girl!

Even like thy chastity

O! cursed, cursed slave Whip me, ye devils,

From the possession of this heavenly sight!

Blow me about in winds! roast me in sulphur!

Wash me in steep-down gulfs of liquid fire!

O Desdemona! Desdemona! dead! Ib 271

I look down towards his feet, but that's a fable

If that thou be'st a devil, I cannot kill thee Ib 285

An honourable murderer, if you will,
For nought did I in hate, but all in honour Ib 293

OTHELLO

Will you, I pray, demand that demi-devil

Why he hath thus ensnar'd my soul and body?

IAGO

Demand me nothing what you know, you know

From this time forth I never will speak word Ib 300

I have done the state some service, and they know 't,

No more of that I pray you, in your letters,

When you shall these unlucky deeds relate,

Speak of me as I am, nothing extenuate,

Nor set down aught in malice: then, must you speak

Of one that lov'd not wisely but too well,

Of one not easily jealous, but, being wrought,

Perplex'd in the extreme, of one whose hand,

Like the base Indian, threw a pearl away

Richer than all his tribe, of one whose subdu'd eyes

Albeit unused to the melting mood,

Drop tears as fast as the Arabian trees

Their med'cinable gum Set you down this,

And say besides, that in Aleppo once,

Where a malignant and a turban'd Turk

Beat a Venetian and traduc'd the state,

I took by the throat the circumcised dog,
And smote him thus Ib 338

All that 's spoke is marred Ib 356

I kiss'd thee ere I kill'd thee Ib 357

See, where she comes apparell'd like the spring
Pericles, i 1 12

Few love to hear the sins they love to act Ib 92

O you gods!

Why do you make us love your goodly gifts,
And snatch them straight away? Ib iii 1 22

ABRAHAM

Do you bite your thumb at us, sir?

SAMFSON

Is the law of our side if I say ay?

GREGORY

No

SAMFSON

No, sir, I do not bite my thumb at you, sir, but I bite my thumb, sir Romeo and Juliet, i 1 [50]

Gregory, remember thy swashing blow Ib [68]

Saint-seducing gold Ib [220]

And 'tis not hard, I think,
For men so old as we to keep the peace Ib ii 2

PARIS

Younger than she are happy mothers made

CAPULET

And too soon marr'd are those so early made Ib 12

And then my husband—God be with his soul!

A' was a merry man—took up the child

'Yea,' quoth he, 'dost thou fall upon thy face?

Thou wilt fall backward when thou hast more wit,

Wilt thou not, Jule?' and, by my halidom,

The pretty wretch left crying, and said 'Ay,'
Ib iii 39

Pretty fool, it stinted and said 'Ay' Ib 48

I am proverb'd with a grandsire phrase,
I'll be a candle-holder, and look on Ib iv 37

Come, we burn daylight, ho! Ib 43

O! then, I see, Queen Mab hath been with you

She is the fairies' midwife, and she comes

In shape no bigger than an agate-stone

On the forefinger of an alderman,

Drawn with a team of little atomies

Athwart men's noses as they lie asleep

Her waggon-spokes made of long spinners' legs,

The cover, of the wings of grasshoppers,

The traces, of the smallest spider's web,

The collars, of the moonshine's watery beams,

Her whip, of cricket's bone, the lash, of film,

Her waggoner, a small grey-coated gnat,

Not half so big as a round little worm

Prick'd from the lazy finger of a maid,

Her chariot is an empty hazel-nut,

Made by the joiner squirrel or old grub,

Time out o' mind the fairies' coach-makers

And in this state she gallops night by night

Through lovers' brains, and then they dream of love,

O'er courtiers' knees, that dream on curtsies straight,

O'er lawyers' fingers, who straight dream on fees,

O'er ladies' lips, who straight on kisses dream,

Which oft the angry Mab with blisters plagues,

Because their breaths with sweetmeats tainted are Sometimes she gallops o'er a courtier's nose,

And then dreams he of smelling out a suit,

And sometimes comes she with a tithe-pig's tail,

Tickling a parson's nose as a' lies asleep,

Then dreams he of another benefice,

Sometime she driveth o'er a soldier's neck,

And then dreams he of cutting foreign throats,

Of breaches, ambuscadoes, Spanish blades,

Of healths five fathom deep, and then anon

Drums in his ear, at which he starts and wakes,

And, being thus frightened, swears a prayer or two,

And sleeps again This is that very Mab
That plats the manes of horses in the night,
And bakes the elf-locks in foul sluttish hairs,
Which once untangled much misfortune bodes,
This is the hag, when maids lie on their backs,
That presses them and learns them first to bear,
Making them women of good carriage
Romeo and Juliet, I iv 53

For you and I are past our dancing days
Ib v [35]

O! she doth teach the torches to burn bright
It seems she hangs upon the cheek of night
Like a rich jewel in an Ethiop's ear,
Beauty too rich for use, for earth too dear Ib [48]

We have a trifling foolish banquet towards

My only love sprung from my only hate! Ib [142]

Young Adam Cupid, he that shot so trim
When King Cophetua lov'd the beggar-maid
Ib II i 13

He jests at scars, that never felt a wound
But, soft! what light through yonder window breaks?
It is the east, and Juliet is the sun Ib II i

See! how she leans her cheek upon her hand
O! that I were a glove upon that hand,
That I might touch that cheek Ib 23

O Romeo, Romeo! wherefore art thou Romeo?
Ib 33

What's in a name? that which we call a rose
By any other name would smell as sweet Ib 43

For stony limits cannot hold love out Ib 67

Thou know'st the mask of night is on my face,
Else would a maiden blush bepaint my cheek Ib 85

Fain would I dwell on form, fain, fain deny
What I have spoke but farewell compliment! Ib 88

At lovers' perjuries,
They say, Jove laughs O gentle Romeo!
If thou dost love, pronounce it faithfully
Or if thou think'st I am too quickly won,
I'll frown and be perverse and say thee nay,
So thou wilt woo, but else, not for the world
In truth, fair Montague, I am too fond Ib 92

I'll prove more true
Than those that have more cunning to be strange
Ib 100

ROMEO
Lady, by yonder blessed moon I swear
That tips with silver all these fruit-tree tops,— JULIET
O! swear not by the moon, the inconstant moon,
That monthly changes in her circled orb,
Lest that thy love prove likewise variable Ib 107

Do not swear at all,
Or, if thou wilt, swear by thy gracious self,
Which is the god of my idolatry Ib 112

It is too rash, too unadvis'd, too sudden,
Too like the lightning, which doth cease to be

Ere one can say it lightens Sweet, good-night!
This bud of love, by summer's ripening breath,
May prove a beauteous flower when next we meet
Ib 118

Love goes toward love, as schoolboys from their books,
But love from love, toward school with heavy looks
Ib 156

O! for a falconer's voice,
To lure this tassel-gentle back again
Bondage is hoarse, and may not speak aloud,
Else would I tear the cave where Echo lies Ib 158

It is my soul that calls upon my name—
How silver-sweet sound lovers' tongues by night,
Like softest music to attending ears! Ib 164

'Tis almost morning, I would have thee gone;
And yet no further than a wanton's bird,
Who lets it hop a little from her hand,
Like a poor prisoner in his twisted gyves,
And with a silk thread plucks it back again,
So loving-jealous of his liberty. Ib 176

JULIET
Yet I should kill thee with much cherishing
Good-night, good-night! parting is such sweet sorrow
That I shall say good-night till it be morrow.

ROMEO
Sleep dwell upon thine eyes, peace in thy breast!
Would I were sleep and peace, so sweet to rest!

Men's eyes were made to look, and let them gaze,
I will not budge for no man's pleasure, I Ib [59]

No, 'tis not so deep as a well, nor so wide as a church door, but 'tis enough, 'twill serve ask for me tomorrow, and you shall find me a grave man. I am peppered, I warrant, for this world Ib [100]

A plague o' both your houses!
They have made worms' meat of me Ib [112]

- O! I am Fortune's fool Romeo and Juliet, III 1 [142] Tempt not a desperate man Ib 59
- Gallop apace, you fiery-footed steeds,
Towards Phoebus' lodging Ib II 1 One writ with me in sour misfortune's book Ib 82
- Come, civil night,
Thou sober-suited matron, all in black Ib 10 How oft when men are at the point of death
Have they been merry! which their keepers call
A lightning before death Ib 88
- For thou wilt lie upon the wings of night,
Whiter than new snow on a raven's back Ib 18 Beauty's ensign yet
Is crimson in thy lips and in thy cheeks,
And death's pale flag is not advanced there Ib 94
- Give me my Romeo and, when he shall die,
Take him and cut him out in little stars,
And he will make the face of heaven so fine
That all the world will be in love with night,
And pay no worship to the garish sun Ib 21 Shall I believe That unsubstantial Death is amorous,
And that the lean abhorred monster keeps Thee here in dark to be his paramour?
For fear of that I still will stay with thee,
And never from this palace of dum night
Depart again here, here will I remain
With worms that are thy chambermaids, O! here
Will I set up my everlasting rest,
And shake the yoke of inauspicious stars
From this world-wearied flesh Eyes, look your last!
Arms, take your last embrace! and, lips, O you
The doors of breath, seal with a righteous kiss
A dateless bargain to engrossing death! Ib 102

This music crept by me upon the waters,
Allaying both their fury, and my passion,
With its sweet air Ib 389

Full fathom five thy father lies,
Of his bones are coral made

Those are pearls that were his eyes
Nothing of him that doth fade,
But doth suffer a sea-change

Into something rich and strange
Sea-nymphs hourly ring his knell
Ding-dong

Hark! now I hear them,—ding-dong, bell. Ib 394

The fringed curtains of thine eye advance,
And say what thou seest yond Ib 405.

At the first sight
They have changed eyes. Ib 437

You sun-burn'd sicklemen, of August weary
 Ib 134.

Our revels now are ended These our actors,
As I foretold you, were all spirits and
Are melted into air, into thin air

And, like the baseless fabric of this vision,
The cloud-capp'd towers, the gorgeous palaces,
The solemn temples, the great globe itself,
Yea, all which it inherit, shall dissolve

And, like this insubstantial pageant faded,
Leave not a rack behind We are such stuff

PANDARUS
He that will have a cake out of the wheat must tarry the grinding

TROILUS
Have I not tarried?

PANDARUS
Ay, the grinding, but you must tarry the bolting

TROILUS
Have I not tarried?

PANDARUS
Ay, the bolting, but you must tarry the leavening

TROILUS
Still have I tarried

PANDARUS
Ay, to the leavening, but here's yet in the word
'hereafter' the kneading, the making of the cake, the heating of the oven, and the baking, nay, you must stay the cooling too, or you may chance to burn your lips Ib I 1 [15]

O! that her hand,
In whose comparison all whites are ink,
Writing their own reproach, to whose soft seizure
The cygnet's down is harsh, and spirit of sense
Hard as the palm of ploughman Ib [57]

I have had my labour for my travail Ib [73]

Women are angels, wooing
Things won are done, joy's soul lies in the doing
That she belov'd knows nought that knows not this Men prize the thing ungain'd more than it is Ib II [310]

The sea being smooth
How many shallow bauble boats dare sail
Upon her patient breast Ib III 34

The heavens themselves, the planets, and this centre
Observe degree, priority, and place,
Insisture, course, proportion, season, form,
Office, and custom, in all line of order Ib 85

O! when degree is shak'd,
Which is the ladder to all high designs,
The enterprise is sick Ib 101

Take but degree away, untune that string,
And, hark! what discord follows, each thing meets In mere oppugnancy Ib 109

The general's disdain'd
By him one step below, he by the next,
That next by him beneath, so every step,
Exemplary by the first pace that is sick
Of his superior, grows to an envious fever
Of pale and bloodless emulation Ib 129

Like a strutting player, whose conceit
Lies in his hamstring, and doth think it rich
To hear the wooden dialogue and sound
'Twixt his stretch'd footing and the scaffoldage Ib 153

But we are soldiers,
And may that soldier a mere recreant prove,
That means not, hath not, or is not in love! Ib 286
And in such indexes, although small pricks
To their subsequent volumes, there is seen
The baby figure of the giant mass
Of things to come at large Ib 343.

TROILUS

What is aught, but as 'tis valued?

HECTOR

But value dwells not in particular will,
It holds his estimate and dignity
As well wherein 'tis precious of itself
As in the prize 'Tis mad idolatry
To make the service greater than the god

Ib 52

Young men, whom Aristotle thought Unfit to hear moral philosophy Ib 166

Thus to persist
In doing wrong extenuates not wrong,
But makes it much more heavy Ib 186
I am giddy, expectation whirls me round
The imaginary relish is so sweet
That it enchants my sense Ib III II [17]

To be wise, and love,
Exceeds man's might Ib [163]

Time hath, my lord, a wallet at his back,
Wherein he puts alms for oblivion,
A great-siz'd monster of ingratitudes
Those scraps are good deeds past, which are devour'd
As fast as they are made, forgot as soon
As done Ib III 145

Perseverance, dear my lord,
Keeps honour bright to have done, is to hang Quite out of fashion, like a rusty mail
In monumental mockery Ib 150

For honour travels in a strait so narrow
Where one but goes abreast Ib 154

Time is like a fashionable host
That slightly shakes his parting guest by the hand,
And with his arms outstretch'd, as he would fly,
Grasps in the comer welcome ever smiles,
And farewell goes out sighing Ib 165

Beauty, wit,
High birth, vigour of bone, desert in service,
Love, friendship, charity, are subjects all
To envious and calumniating time
One touch of nature makes the whole world kin,
That all with one consent praise new-born gawds Ib 171

And give to dust that is a little gilt
More laud than gilt o'er-dusted Ib 178

A plague of opinion! a man may wear it on both sides, like a leather jerkin Ib [267]

How my achievements mock me! Ib IV II [72]

Sometimes we are devils to ourselves
When we will tempt the frailty of our powers,
Presuming on their changeful potency Ib IV [95]

Fie, fie upon her!
There's language in her eye, her cheek, her lip,
Nay, her foot speaks, her wanton spirits look out
At every joint and motive of her body Ib V. 54

What's past, and what's to come, is strew'd with husks

And formless ruin of oblivion Ib 165

The end crowns all,
And that old common arbitrator, Time,
Will one day end it Ib 223.

Words, words, mere words, no matter from the heart
Ib V III [109]

If music be the food of love, play on,
Give me excess of it, that, surfeiting,
The appetite may sicken, and so die
That strain again! it had a dying fall
O! it came o'er my ear like the sweet sound
That breathes upon a bank of violets, Stealing and giving odour! Enough! no more
'Tis not so sweet now as it was before
O spirit of love! how quick and fresh art thou,
That notwithstanding thy capacity
Receiveth as the sea, nought enters there,
Of what validity and pitch soe'er,
But falls into abatement and low price,
Even in a minute so full of shapes is fancy,
That it alone is high fantastical Twelfth Night, I 1 1

O! when mine eyes did see Olivia first,
Methought she purg'd the air of pestilence
That instant was I turn'd into a hart,
And my desires, like fell and cruel hounds,
E'er since pursue me Ib 19.

The element itself, till seven years' heat,
Shall not behold her face at ample view,
But, like a clostress, she will veiled walk,
And water once a day her chamber round
With eye-offending brine Ib 26.

Away before me to sweet beds of flowers,
Love-thoughts lie rich when canopied with bowers
Ib 40

And what should I do in Illyria?
My brother he is in Elysium Ib II 2.

O my poor brother! Ib 6

He's as tall a man as any's in Illyria Ib III [21]

Speaks three or four languages word for word without book Ib [28]

Methinks sometimes I have no more wit than a Christian or an ordinary man has, but I am a great eater of beef, and I believe that does harm to my wit Ib [90]

SIR ANDREW

I would I had bestowed that time in the tongues that I have in fencing, dancing, and bear-baiting O!
had I but followed the arts!

SIR TOBY

Then hadst thou had an excellent head of hair
Ib [99].

Wherefore are these things hid? wherefore have these gifts a curtain before 'em? are they like to take dust, like Mistress Mall's picture? why dost thou not go to church in a galliard, and come home in a coranto? My very walk should be a jig
Ib [135]

Is it a world to hide virtues in? Ib [142]

Diana's lip

Virtue that transgresses is but patched with sin, and sin that amends is but patched with virtue
Ib [52]

Good my mouse of virtue, answer me
Ib [68]

O! you are sick of self-love, Malvolio
Ib [96]

A plague o' these pickle herring!
Ib [127]

Not yet old enough for a man, nor young enough for a boy, as a squash is before 'tis a peascod, or a coding when 'tis almost an apple 'tis with him in standing water, between boy and man He is very well-favoured, and he speaks very shrewdly one would think his mother's milk were scarce out of him
Ib [166]

I would be loath to cast away my speech, for besides that it is excellently well penned, I have taken great pains to con it
Ib [184]

I can say little more than I have studied, and that question's out of my part
Ib [191]

OLIVIA

'Tis in grain, sir, 'twill endure wind and weather

VIOLA

'Tis beauty truly blent, whose red and white
Nature's own sweet and cunning hand laid on Lady, you are the cruell'st she alive
If you will lead these graces to the grave
And leave the world no copy.
Ib [257]

Item, Two lips, indifferent red, Item, Two grey eyes, with lids to them, Item, One neck, one chin, and so forth
Ib [268]

Make me a willow cabin at your gate,
And call upon my soul within the house,
Write loyal cantons of contemned love,
And sing them loud even in the dead of night;
Halloo your name to the reverberate hills,
And make the babbling gossip of the air
Cry out, 'Olivias'
Ib [289]

Farewell, fair cruelty
Ib [309]

'What is your parentage?'

'Above my fortune, yet my state is well
I am a gentleman'
Ib [310]

She is drowned already, sir, with salt water, though I seem to drown her remembrance again with more
Ib II i [31]

I am yet so near the manners of my mother, that upon the least occasion more mine eyes will tell tales of me.
Ib [42]

Not to be a-bed after midnight is to be up betimes
To be up after midnight and to go to bed then, is early, so that to go to bed after midnight is to go to bed betimes.
Ib. III. [1 and 7]

O mistress mine! where are you roaming?
O! stay and hear, your true love's coming,
'That can sing both high and low
'Trip no further, pretty sweeting,
Journeys end in lovers meeting,
Every wise man's son doth know

What is love? 'tis not hereafter,
Present mirth hath present laughter,
What's to come is still unsure
In delay there lies no plenty;
Then come kiss me, sweet and twenty,
Youth's a stuff will not endure
Ib [42].

Am not I consanguineous? am I not of her blood?
Tillyvally, lady!
Ib [85]

He does it with a better grace, but I do it more natural
Ib [91].

Is there no respect of place, persons, nor time, in you?
Ib [100]

SIR TOBY:

Dost thou think, because thou art virtuous, there shall be no more cakes and ale?

CLOWN

Yes, by Saint Anne, and ginger shall be hot i' the mouth too.
Ib. [124]

MARIA:

Marry, sir, sometimes he is a kind of puritan.

SIR ANDREW

O, if I thought that, I'd beat him like a dog!
Ib [153]

I will drop in his way some obscure epistles of love; wherein, by the colour of his beard, the shape of his leg, the manner of his gait, the expreasure of his eye, forehead, and complexion, he shall find himself most feelingly personated
Ib [171]

My purpose is, indeed, a horse of that colour
Ib [184].

Now, good Cesario, but that piece of song,
That old and antique song we heard last night;
Methought it did relieve my passion much,
More than light airs and recollected terms
Of these most brisk and giddy-paced times
Come, but one verse
Ib II iv. 2.

DUKE

If ever thou shalt love,
In the sweet pangs of it remember me,
For such as I am all true lovers are Unstaid and skittish in all motions else,
Save in the constant image of the creature
That is below'd How dost thou like this tune?

VIOLA

It gives a very echo to the seat
Where love is enthron'd
Ib. 15

Let still the woman take
An elder than herself, so wears she to him,
So sways she level in her husband's heart
For, boy, however we do praise ourselves,
Our fancies are more giddy and unfirm,
More longing, wavering, sooner lost and worn,
Than women's are
Ib 29.

Then let thy love be younger than thyself,
Or thy affection cannot hold the bent.
Ib. 36.

Mark it, Cesario, it is old and plain
The spinsters and the knitters in the sun
And the free maids that weave their thread with bones
Do use to chant it it is silly sooth,
And dallies with the innocence of love,
Like the old age Twelfth Night, II iv 43

Come away, come away, death,
And in sad cypress let me be laid,
Fly away, fly away, breath
I am slain by a fair cruel maid
My shroud of white, stuck all with yew,
O! prepare it
My part of death no one so true
Did share it.

Not a flower, not a flower sweet,
On my black coffin let there be strown,
Not a friend, not a friend greet
My poor corse, where my bones shall be thrown
A thousand thousand sighs to save,
Lay me, O! where Sad true lover never find my grave,
To weep there Ib 51

Now, the melancholy god protect thee, and the tailor make thy doublet of changeable taffeta, for thy mind is a very opal Ib [74]

Get thee to yond same sovereign cruelty
Tell her, my love, more noble than the world, Prizes not quantity of dirty lands Ib [82]

There is no woman's sides
Can bide the beating of so strong a passion
As love doth give my heart, no woman's heart
So big, to hold so much, they lack retention
Alas! their love may be call'd appetite,
No motion of the liver, but the palate,
That suffer surfeit, cloyment, and revolt,
But mine is all as hungry as the sea,
And can digest so much Ib [95]

DUKE
And what's her history?

VIOLA
A blank, my lord She never told her love,
But let concealment, like a worm i' the bud,
Feed on her damask cheek she pin'd in thought,
And with a green and yellow melancholy,
She sat like patience on a monument,
Smiling at grief Was not this love indeed?
We men may say more, swear more, but, indeed,
Our shows are more than will, for still we prove Much in our vows, but little in our love Ib [111]

Jove and my stars be praised! Here is yet a postscript
Ib [189]

He will come to her in yellow stockings, and 'tis a colour she abhors, and cross-gartered, a fashion she detests Ib [220]

When that I was and a little tiny boy,
 With hey, ho, the wind and the rain,
 A foolish thing was but a toy,
 For the rain it raineth every day

But when I came to man's estate,
 With hey, ho, the wind and the rain,
 'Gainst knaves and thieves men shut their gates,
 For the rain it raineth every day

But when I came, alas! to wive,
 With hey, ho, the wind and the rain,
 By swaggering could I never thrive,
 For the rain it raineth every day

But when I came unto my beds,
 With hey, ho, the wind and the rain,
 With toss-pots still had drunken heads,
 For the rain it raineth every day

A great while ago the world begun,
 With hey, ho, the wind and the rain,

But that's all one, our play is done,
 And we'll strive to please you every day. Ib [401]

 I think him so, because I think him so Ib II 23

Fie, fie! how wayward is this foolish love
 That, like a testy babe, will scratch the nurse
 And presently all humbled kiss the rod! Ib 55

Who is Silvia? what is she,
 That all our swains commend her?
 Holy, fair, and wise is she,
 The heaven such grace did lend her,
 That she might admired be
 Is she kind as she is fair?

For beauty lives with kindness
 Love doth to her eyes repair,

To help him of his blindness,
 And, being help'd, inhabits there

Then to Silvia let us sing,
 That Silvia is excelling,
 She excels each mortal thing
 Upon the dull earth dwelling,
 To her let us garlands bring Ib 40

When daffodils begin to peer,
With heigh! the doxy, over the dale,
Why, then comes in the sweet o' the year;
For the red blood reigns in the winter's pale.

The white sheet bleaching on the hedge,
With heigh! the sweet birds, O, how they sing!
Doth set my pugging tooth on edge,
For a quart of ale is a dish for a king

The lark, that turra-lirra chants,
With, heigh! with, heigh! the thrush and the jay,
Are summer songs for me and my aunts,
While we lie tumbling in the hay

For the flowers now that frighted thou let'st fall
From Dis's waggon! daffodils,
That come before the swallow dares, and take
The winds of March with beauty, violets dim,
But sweeter than the lids of Juno's eyes

Or Cytherea's breath, pale prime-roses,
That die unmarried, ere they can behold
Bright Phœbus in his strength,—a malady
Most incident to maids, bold oxlips and
The crown imperial, hies of all kinds,
The flower-de-luce being one

Still betters what is done When you speak, sweet,
I'd have you do it ever when you sing,
I'd have you buy and sell so, so give alms,
Pray so, and, for the ordering your affairs,
To sing them too when you do dance, I wish you
A wave o' the sea, that you might ever do Nothing but that, move still, still so,
And own no other function each your doing,
So singular in each particular,
Crowns what you are doing in the present deed,
That all your acts are queens

This royal throne of kings, this scepter'd isle,
 This earth of majesty, this seat of Mars,
 This other Eden, demi-Paradise,
 This fortress built by Nature for herself
 Against infection and the hand of war,
 This happy breed of men, this little world,
 This precious stone set in the silver sea,
 Which serves it in the office of a wall,
 Or as a moat defensive to a house,
 Against the envy of less happier lands,
 This blessed plot, this earth, this realm, this England,
 This nurse, this teeming womb of royal kings,
 Fear'd by their breed and famous by their birth,
 Renowned for their deeds as far from home,—
 For Christian service and true chivalry,—
 As is the sepulchre in stubborn Jewry
 Of the world's ransom, blessed Mary's Son

For God's sake, let us sit upon the ground
 And tell sad stories of the death of kings
 How some have been depos'd, some slain in war,
 Some haunted by the ghosts they have depos'd,
 Some poison'd by their wives, some sleeping kill'd,
 All murder'd for within the hollow crown
 That rounds the mortal temples of a king
 Keeps Death his court, and there the antick sits, Scoffing his state and grinning at his pomp,
 Allowing him a breath, a little scene,
 To monarchize, be fear'd, and kill with looks,
 Infusing him with self and vain conceit
 As if this flesh which walls about our life
 Were brass impregnable, and humour'd thus Comes at the last, and with a little pin
 Bores through his castle wall, and farewell king!

Ib 155

See, see, King Richard doth himself appear,
 As doth the blushing discontented sun
 From out the fiery portal of the east Ib 111 62

 As is my grief, or lesser than my name,
 Or that I could forget what I have been,
 Or not remember what I must be now Ib 136.

What must the king do now? Must he submit?
 The king shall do it must he be depos'd?
 The king shall be contented must he lose
 The name of king? o' God's name, let it go
 I'll give my jewels for a set of beads,
 My gorgeous palace for a hermitage,
 My gay apparel for an almsman's gown,
 My figur'd goblets for a dish of wood,
 My sceptre for a palmer's walking staff,
 My subjects for a pair of carved saints,
 And my large kingdom for a little grave,
 A little little grave, an obscure grave,
 Or I'll be buried in the king's highway,
 Some way of common trade, where subjects' feet
 May hourly trample on their sovereign's head,
 For on my heart they tread now whilst I live,
 And burned once, why not upon my head? Ib 143.

A certain lord, neat, and trimly dress'd,
 Fresh as a bridegroom, and his chin, new-reap'd,
 Show'd like a stubble-land at harvest home
 He was perfum'd like a milliner,
 And 'twixt his finger and his thumb he held
 A pouncet-box, which ever and anon
 He gave his nose and took't away again
Ib 111 33

And as the soldiers bore dead bodies by,
 He call'd them untaught knaves, unmannerly,
 To bring a slovenly, unhandsome corpse
 Betwixt the wind and his nobility
 With many holiday and lady terms
 He question'd me.
Ib 42

So pester'd with a popinjay
Ib 50

He made me mad
 To see him shine so brisk, and smell so sweet
 And talk so like a waiting-gentlewoman Of guns, and drums, and wounds,—God save the mark!

And telling me the sovereign'st thing on earth
 Was parmaceti for an inward bruise,
 And that it was great pity, so it was,
 This villainous saltpetre should be digg'd
 Out of the bowels of the harmless earth,
 Which many a good tall fellow had destroy'd
 So cowardly, and but for these vile guns,
 He would himself have been a soldier

By heaven methinks it were an easy leap
 To pluck bright honour from the pale-fac'd moon,
 Or dive into the bottom of the deep,
 Where fathom-line could never touch the ground,
 And pluck up drowned honour by the locks,
 So he that doth redeem her thence might wear
 Without corrival all her dignities
 But out upon this half-fac'd fellowship!

GLENDOWER

At my nativity

The front of heaven was full of fiery shapes,
Of burning cressets, and at my birth
The frame and huge foundation of the earth
Shak'd like a coward

HOTSPUR

Why, so it would have done at the same season, if your mother's cat had but kittened

I can call spirits from the vasty deep

HOTSPUR

Why, so can I, or so can any man,
But will they come when you do call for them?

Ib [53]

O! while you live, tell truth, and shame the devil!

Ib [62]

See how this river comes me cranking in,
And cuts me from the best of all my land
A huge half-moon, a monstrous cantle out

Ib [99]

I had rather be a kitten and cry mew

Than one of these same metre ballad-mongers

Ib [128]

Mincing poetry

Ib [133]

And such a deal of skumble-skamble stuff

As puts me from my faith

Ib [153]

O! he's as tedious

As a tired horse, a railing wife,
Worse than a smoky house I had rather live
With cheese and garlic in a windmill, far,
Than feed on cates and have him talk to me
In any summer-house in Christendom

Ib [257]

The skipping kung, he ambled up and down
With shallow jesters and rash bavin wits

Ib II 60

Being daily swallow'd by men's eyes,
They surfeited with honey and began

To loathe the taste of sweetness, whereof a little More than a little is by much too much
So, when we had occasion to be seen,
He was but as the cuckoo is in June,
I heard, not regarded

Ib 70

My near'st and dearest enemy

Ib 123

Well, I'll repent, and that suddenly, while I am in some liking, I shall be out of heart shortly, and then I shall have no strength to repent.

Ib. III [5]

Company, villainous company, hath been the spoil of me

Ib [10].

Come, sing me a bawdy song, make me merry

Ib [15]

Shall I not take mine ease in mine inn?

Ib [91]

I have more flesh than another man, and therefore more frailty

Ib [187]

That daff'd the world aside,

And bid it pass

Ib IV i 96

All plum'd like estridges that wing the wind,

Baited like eagles having lately bath'd

Ib 98

I saw young Harry, with his beaver on,
His cuisses on his thighs, gallantly arm'd,
Rise from the ground like feather'd Mercury,
And vaulted with such ease into his seat,
As if an angel dropp'd down from the clouds,
To turn and wind a fiery Pegasus,
And witch the world with noble horsemanship

Ib 104

Doomsday is near, die all, die merrily

Ib 134

I have misus'd the king's press damnably

Ib II [13]

The cankers of a calm world and a long peace

Ib [32].

I am as vigilant as a cat to steal cream

Ib [64]

Tut, tut, good enough to toss, food for powder, food for powder, they'll fill a pit as well as better tush, man, mortal men, mortal men

Ib [72]

To the latter end of a fray and the beginning of a feast

Fits a dull fighter and a keen guest

Ib [86]

Greatness knows itself

Ib III 74

For mine own part, I could be well content

To entertain the lag-end of my life

With quiet hours

Ib V i 23

Rebellion lay in his way, and he found it

Ib 28

I do not think a braver gentleman,
More active-valiant or more valiant-yong,
More daring or more bold, is now alive
To grace this latter age with noble deeds
For my part, I may speak it to my shame,
I have a truant been to chivalry

Ib 89

FALSTAFF

I would it were bed-time, Hal, and all well

PRINCE

Why, thou owest God a death

Ib [125].

Honour pricks me on Yea, but how if honour prick me off when I come on? how then? Can honour set to a leg? No Or an arm? No Or take away the grief of a wound? No Honour hath no skill in surgery, then? No What is honour? A word What is that word, honour? Air A trim reckoning! Who hath it? He that died o' Wednesday Doth he feel it? No, Doth he hear it? No It is insensible then? Yea, to the dead But will it not live with the living? No Why? Detraction will not suffer it Therefore I'll none of it honour is a mere scutcheon and so ends my catechism

King Henry IV, Part 1, v 1 [131]

Suspicion all our lives shall be stuck full of eyes,
For treason is but trusted like the fox,
Who, ne'er so tame, so cherish'd, and lock'd up,
Will have a wild trick of his ancestors Ib 11 8

O gentlemen! the time of life is short,
To spend that shortness basely were too long,
If life did ride upon a drol's point,
Still ending at the arrival of an hour
An if we live, we live to tread on kings,
If die, brave death, when princes die with us!
Now, for our consciences, the arms are fair,
When the intent of bearing them is just Ib 81

Now, Esperance! Percyl and set on Ib 96

I have led my ragamuffins where they are peppered there's not three of my hundred and fifty left alive, and they are for the town's end, to beg during life Ib 111 [36]

I like not such grinning honour as Sir Walter hath give me life, which if I can save, so, if not, honour comes unlooked for, and there's an end Ib 61

Two stars keep not their motion in one sphere.
Ib 114 65

But thought's the slave of life, and life time's fool,
And time, that takes survey of all the world,
Must have a stop Ib [81]

Fare thee well, great heart!
Ill-weav'd ambition, how much art thou shrunk!
When that this body did contain a spirit,
A kingdom for it was too small a bound,
But now two paces of the vilest earth
Is room enough this earth, that bears thee dead,
Bears not alive so stout a gentleman Ib [87]

Thy ignominy sleep with thee in the grave,
But not remember'd in thy epitaph!
What! old acquaintance! could not all this flesh
Keep in a little life? Poor Jack, farewell!
I could have better spar'd a better man Ib [100]

The better part of valour is discretion Ib [120]

Full bravely hast thou flesh'd
Thy maiden sword Ib [132]

Lord, Lord, how this world is given to lying! I grant you I was down and out of breath, and so was he, but we rose both at an instant, and fought a long hour by Shrewsbury clock Ib [148]

For my part, if a lie will do thee grace,
I'll gild it with the happiest terms I have Ib [161]

I'll purge, and leave sack, and live cleanly, as a nobleman should do Ib [168]

I speak of peace, while covert enmity
Under the smile of safety wounds the world.
King Henry IV, Part 2, Induction, 9.

Rumour is a pipe
Blown by surmises, jealousies, conjectures,
And of so easy and so plain a stop
That the blunt monster with uncounted heads,
The still-discordant wavering multitude,
Can play upon it Ib 15

Even such a man, so faint, so spiritless,
So dull, so dead in look, so woe-begone,
Drew Priam's curtain in the dead of night,
And would have told him, half his Troy was burn'd Ib 11 70

Yet the first bringer of unwelcome news
Hath but a losing office, and his tongue
Sounds ever after as a sullen bell,
Remember'd knolling a departed friend Ib 100

The brain of this foolish-compounded clay, man, is not able to invent anything that tends to laughter, more than I invent or is invented on me I am not only witty in myself, but the cause that wit is in other men I do here walk before thee like a sow that hath overwhelmed all her litter but one Ib 11 [7]

A rascally yea-forsooth knave Ib [40].

Your lordship, though not clean past your youth, hath yet some smack of age in you, some relish of the saltiness of time Ib [111]

This apoplexy is, as I take it, a kind of lethargy, an't please your lordship, a kind of sleeping in the blood, a whoreson tingling Ib [127]

It is the disease of not listening, the malady of not marking, that I am troubled withal Ib. [139].

I am as poor as Job, my lord, but not so patient.
Ib [145].

Well, I am loath to gall a new-healed wound
Ib 169

You that are old consider not the capacities of us that are young, you measure the heat of our livers with the bitterness of your galls, and we that are in the vaward of our youth, I must confess, are wigs too Ib [198]

Have you not a moist eye, a dry hand, a yellow cheek, a white beard, a decreasing leg, an increasing belly? Ib [206]

Every part about you blasted with antiquity
Ib [210]

My lord, I was born about three of the clock in the afternoon, with a white head, and something of a round belly For my voice, I have lost it with holl'ing, and singing of anthems Ib. [213].

CHIEF JUSTICE

God send the prince a better companion!

TALSTAFF

God send the companion a better prince! I cannot rid my hands of him Ib [227]

All you that kiss our lady Peace at home Ib [236]

It was always yet the trick of our English nation, if they have a good thing, to make it too common
Ib. [244].

I would to God my name were not so terrible to the enemy as it is I were better to be eaten to death with rust than to be scoured to nothing with perpetual motion King Henry IV, Part 2, 1 ii [247]

I can get no remedy against this consumption of the purse borrowing only lingers and lingers it out, but the disease is incurable Ib [268]

O, thoughts of men accurs!

Past and to come seem best, things present, worst Ib iii. 107

A poor lone woman Ib ii 1 [37]

Away, you scullion! you rampallion! you fustilarian! I'll tickle your catastrophe Ib [67]

He hath eaten me out of house and home Ib [82]

Thou didst swear to me upon a parcel-gilt goblet, sitting in my Dolphin-chamber, at the round table, by a sea-coal fire, upon Wednesday in Wheeson week Ib [97]

Doth it not show vilely in me to desire small beer? Ib ii [7]

I do now remember the poor creature, small beer Ib [12]

Let the end try the man. Ib [52]

Never a man's thought in the world keeps the road way better than thine Ib [64]

He was indeed the glass

Wherein the noble youth did dress themselves Ib iii 21

Hollow pamp'rd jades of Asia Ib [177]

By my troth, captain, these are very bitter words Ib [183]

Thou whoreson little tidy Bartholomew boar-pig Ib [249]

Patch up thine old body for heaven Ib [251]

O sleep! O gentle sleep!

Nature's soft nurse, how have I frighted thee,
That thou no more wilt weigh mine eyelids down
And steep my senses in forgetfulness?
Why rather, sleep, lest thou in smoky cribs,
Upon uneasy pallets stretching thee,
And hush'd with buzzing night-flies to thy slumber,
Than in the perfum'd chambers of the great,
Under the canopies of costly state,
And lull'd with sound of sweetest melody?
Ib iii 1 5

Wilt thou upon the high and giddy mast
Seel up the ship-boy's eyes, and rock his brains
In cradle of the rude imperious surge,
And in the visitation of the winds,
Who take the ruffian billows by the top,
Curling their monstrous heads, and hanging them
With deaf'ning clamour in the slippery clouds,
That with the hurly death itself awakes? Ib 18

With all appliances and means to boot Ib 29

Then, happy low, lie down!

Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown Ib 30

O God! that one might read the book of fate Ib 45

There is a history in all men's lives,
Figuring the nature of the times deceas'd,
The which observ'd, a man may prophesy,
With a near aim, of the main chance of things
As yet not come to life, which in their seeds
And weak beginnings lie intreasur'd Ib 80.

Death, as the Psalmist saith, is certain to all, all shall die How a good yoke of bullocks at Stamford fair? Ib ii [41]

And is old Double dead? Ib [58]

A soldier is better accommodated than with a wife Ib [73]

Most forcible Feeble Ib [181]

We have heard the chimes at midnight Ib [231]

I care not, a man can die but once, we owe God a death Ib [253]

He that dies this year is quit for the next Ib [257]

Lord, Lord, how subject we old men are to this vice of lying! Ib [329]

Like a man made after supper of a cheese-paring when a' was naked, he was, for all the world, like a forked radish, with a head fantastically carved upon it with a knife Ib [335]

Talks as familiarly of John a Gaunt as if he had been sworn brother to him Ib [348]

Against ill chances men are ever merry,
But heaviness foreruns the good event Ib iv ii 81

A peace is of the nature of a conquest;
For then both parties nobly are subdu'd,
And neither party loser Ib 89.

That I may truly say with the hook-nosed fellow of Rome, 'I came, saw, and overcame' Ib iii [44]

A man cannot make him laugh, but that's no marvel, he drinks no wine Ib [95]

A good sherris-sack hath a two-fold operation in it It ascends me into the brain, dries me there all the foolish and dull and crudy vapours which environ it, makes it apprehensive, quick, forgetive, full of nimble fiery and delectable shapes, which deliver'd o'er to the voice, the tongue, which is the birth, becomes excellent wit The second property of your excellent sherris is, the warming of the blood, which, before cold and settled, left the liver white and pale, which is the badge of pusillanimity and cowardice but the sherris warms it and makes it course from the inwards to the parts extreme It illumineth the face, which, as a beacon, gives warning to all the rest of this little kingdom, man, to arm, and then the vital commoners and inland petty spirits muster me all to their captain, the heart, who, great and puffed up with this retinue, doth any deed of courage, and this valour comes of sherris So that skill in the weapon is nothing without sack, for that sets it a-work, and learning, a mere hoard of gold kept by a devil till sack commences it and sets it in act and use. Ib [103]

If I had a thousand sons, the first human principle I would teach them should be, to forswear thin potatoes Ib [133]

Most subject is the fattest soil to weeds Ib iv 54.

Thou art a summer bird,
Which ever in the haunch of winter sings
The lifting up of day

King Henry IV, Part 2, iv iv [91]

O polish'd perturbation! golden care!
That keep'st the ports of slumber open wide
To many a watchful night! Sleep with it now!
Yet not so sound, and half so deeply sweet
As he whose brow with homely biggen bound Snore out the watch of night Ib v 22

This sleep is sound indeed, this is a sleep
That from this golden rigol hath divorc'd
So many English kings Ib 34
Thy wish was father, Harry, to that thought Ib 91

Commit

The oldest sins the newest kind of ways. Ib 124
It hath been prophesied to me many years
I should not die but in Jerusalem,
Which vainly I suppos'd the Holy Land
But bear me to that chamber, where I'll lie
In that Jerusalem shall Harry lie Ib 235

Any pretty little tiny kickshaws, tell William cook
Ib v 1 [29]

Not Amurath an Amurath succeeds,
But Harry, Harry Ib 48

Sorrow so royally in you appears,
That I will deeply put the fashion on Ib 51

'Tis merry in hall when beards wag all Ib iii [35]

A foutra for the world, and worldlings base!
I speak of Africa and golden joys Ib [100]

Under which king, Bezonian? speak, or die!
Ib [116]

Let us take any man's horses, the laws of England are at my commandment Ib [139]

I know thee not, old man fall to thy prayers,
How ill white hairs become a fool and jester!
I have long dream'd of such a kind of man,
So surfeit-swell'd, so old, and so profane Ib v [52]

Make less thy body hence, and more thy grace,
Leave gormandizing, know the grave doth gape
For thee thrice wider than for other men Ib [57]

Presume not that I am the thing I was Ib [61]

Master Shallow, I owe you a thousand pound
Ib [78]

Where, for anything I know, Falstaff shall die of a sweat, unless already a' be killed with your hard opinions, for Oldcastle died a martyr, and this is not the man Ib Epilogue [32]

O! for a Muse of fire, that would ascend
The brightest heaven of invention

King Henry V, Chorus, 1

The flat unrais'd spirits Ib 9

Can this cockpit hold
The vasty fields of France? or may we cram
Within this wooden O the very casques
That did affright the air at Agincourt? Ib 11

Consideration like an angel came,
And whipp'd the offending Adam out of him.
Ib 1 1 8

Never came reformation in a flood,
With such a heady currance, scouring faults. Ib 33

When he speaks,
The air, a charter'd libertine, is still Ib 47

O noble English! that could entertain
With half their forces the full pride of France,
And let another half stand laughing by,
All out of work, and cold for action Ib ii 111

And make your chronicle as rich with praise
As is the owse and bottom of the sea
With sunken wreck and sumless treasures Ib 163

For so work the honey-bees,
Creatures that by a rule in nature teach
The act of order to a peopled kingdom.
They have a king and officers of sorts;
Where some, like magistrates, correct at home,
Others, like merchants, venture trade abroad,
Others, like soldiers, armed in their stings,
Make boot upon the summer's velvet buds,
Which pillage they with merry march bring home
To the tent-royal of their emperor
Who, busied in his majesty, surveys
The singing masons building roofs of gold,
The civil citizens kneading up the honey,
The poor mechanic porters crowding in Their heavy burdens at his narrow gate,
The sad-eyed justice, with his surly hum,
Delivering o'er to executors pale
The lazy yawning drone Ib 187

His present and your pains we thank you for
When we have match'd our rackets to these balls,
We will in France, by God's grace, play a set Shall strike his father's crown into the hazard Ib 26c

Now all the youth of England are on fire,
And silken dalliance in the wardrobe lies,
Now thrive the armourers, and honour's thought Reigns solely in the breast of every man
They sell the pasture now to buy the horse,
Following the mirror of all Christian kings,
With winged heels, as English Mercuries.
For now sits Expectation in the air
And hides a sword from hilts unto the point
With crowns imperial, crowns and coronets, Promis'd to Harry and his followers Ib 11 Chorus, 1

O England! model to thy inward greatness,
Like little body with a mighty heart,
What might'st thou do, that honour would thee do,
Were all thy children kind and natural!
But see thy fault! Ib 16

I dare not fight, but I will wink and hold out mine iron Ib 1 [7]

That's the humour of it Ib [63]

Base is the slave that pays Ib [100]

For, lambkins, we will live Ib [134]

Would I were with him, wheresome'er he is, either in heaven or in hell Ib iii [7]

He's in Arthur's bosom, if ever man went to Arthur's bosom A' made a finer end, and went away an it had been any christom child, a' parted even just between twelve and one, even at the turning o' the tide for after I saw him fumble with the sheets and play with flowers and smile upon his fingers' ends, I knew there was but one way, for his nose was as sharp as a pen, and he babbled of green fields [Theobald's emendation of the Folio's reading 'A table of green fields']

King Henry V, II iii [9]

So a' cried out 'God, God, God!' three or four times now I, to comfort him, bid him a' should not think of God, I hoped there was no need to trouble himself with any such thoughts yet Ib [19]

As cold as any stone Ib [25]

BOY

Yes, that a' did, and said they were devils incarnate
HOSTESS

A' never could abide carnation, 'twas a colour he never liked

A' said once, the devil would have him about women
Ib [33]

Trust none,

For oaths are straw, men's faiths are wafer-cakes,
And hold-fast is the only dog, my duck Ib [53]

Once more unto the breach, dear friends, once more,
Or close the wall up with our English dead!
In peace there's nothing so becomes a man
As modest stillness and humility
But when the blast of war blows in our ears,
Then imitate the action of the tiger,
Stiffen the sinews, summon up the blood,
Disguise fair nature with hard-favour'd rage,
Then lend the eye a terrible aspect Ib III 1 1

On, on you noblest English!

Whose blood is fet from fathers of war-proof,
Fathers that, like so many Alexanders,
Have in these parts from morn till even fought,
And sheath'd their swords for lack of argument Ib 17

And you, good yeomen,

Whose limbs were made in England, show us here
The mettle of your pasture Ib 25

I see you stand like greyhounds in the slips,
Straining upon the start The game's afoot
Follow your spirit, and, upon this charge
Cry 'God for Harry! England and Saint George!' Ib 31

I would give all my fame for a pot of ale, and safety
Ib II [14]

Men of few words are the best men Ib [40]

A' never broke any man's head but his own, and that was against a post when he was drunk Ib [43]

He will maintain his argument as well as any military man in the world, in the disciplines of the pristine wars of the Romans Ib [89]

One Bardolph, if your majesty know the man his face is all bubukles, and whelks, and knobs, and flames o' fire Ib VI [110]

I thought upon one pair of English legs
Did march three Frenchmen Ib [161]

Give them great meals of beef and iron and steel, they will eat like wolves and fight like devils
Ib VII [166]

Now entertain conjecture of a time
When creeping murmur and the pining dark
Fills the wide vessel of the universe

From camp to camp, through the foul womb of night,
The hum of either army stilly sounds,
That the fix'd sentinels almost receive
The secret whispers of each other's watch
Fire answers fire, and through their paly flames
Each battle sees the other's umber'd face
Steeds threatens steeds, in high and boastful tents
Piercing the night's dull ear, and from the tents
The armourers, accomplishing the knights,
With busy hammers closing rivets up,
Give dreadful note of preparation Ib IV Chorus, 1

The royal captain of this ruin'd band Ib 29

A largess universal, like the sun
His liberal eye doth give to every one,
Thawing cold fear Ib 43

A little touch of Harry in the night Ib 47

O for pity,—we shall much disprace,
With four or five most vile and ragged foils,
Right ill dispos'd in brawl ridiculous,
The name of Agincourt Ib 49.

Gloucester, 'tis true that we are in great danger,
The greater therefore should our courage be
Ib IV 1 1

There is some soul of goodness in things evil,
Would men observingly distil it out Ib 4.

Thus may we gather honey from the weed,
And make a moral of the devil himself Ib 11

Art thou base, common and popular? Ib 37

Trait'st thou the pussant pike? Ib 40

If you would take the pains but to examine the wars of Pompey the Great, you shall find, I warrant you, that there is no tiddle-taddle nor pibblepabble in Pompey's camp Ib [69]

There is much care and valour in this Welshman
Ib [85]

I think the king is but a man, as I am the violet smells to him as it doth to me Ib [106]

I am afraid there are few die well that die in a battle, for how can they charitably dispose of anything when blood is their argument? Ib [149]

Every subject's duty is the king's, but every subject's soul is his own Ib [189]

Upon the king! let us our lives, our souls,
Our debts, our careful wives,
Our children, and our sins lay on the king!
We must bear all O hard condition! Ib [250]

What infinite heart's ease
Must kings neglect, that private men enjoy!
And what have kings that privates have not too,
Save ceremony, save general ceremony? Ib [256]

'Tis not the balm, the sceptre and the ball,
The sword, the mace, the crown imperial,
The intertissued robe of gold and pearl,
The farced title running 'fore the king,
The throne he sits on, nor the tide of pomp
That beats upon the high shore of this world,
No, not all these, thrice-gorgeous ceremony,
Not all these, laid in bed majestical,
Can sleep so soundly as the wretched slave

Who with a body fill'd and vacant mind
 Gets him to rest, cram'd with distress'd bread,
 Never sees horrid night, the child of hell,
 But, like a lackey, from the rise to set Sweats in the eye of Phoebus, and all night
 Sleeps in Elysium, next day after dawn,
 Doth rise and help Hyperion to his horse,
 And follows so the ever-running year
 With profitable labour to his grave
 And, but for ceremony, such a wretch,
 Winding up days with toil and nights with sleep,
 Hath the forehand and vantage of a king
King Henry V, iv 1 [280]

O God of battles! steel my soldiers hearts,
 Possess them not with fear, take from them now
 The sense of reckoning, if the opposed numbers
 Pluck their hearts from them Ib [309]

O! that we now had here
 But one ten thousand of those men in England
 That do no work to-day. Ib iii. 16
 If we are mark'd to die, we are enow
 To do our country loss, and if to live,
 The fewer men, the greater share of honour. Ib. 20.

I am not covetous for gold,

But if it be a sin to covet honour
 I am the most offending soul alive Ib 24

He which hath no stomach to this fight,
 Let him depart, his passport shall be made,
 And crowns for convoy put into his purse
 We would not die in that man's company
 That fears his fellowship to die with us.
 This day is called the feast of Crispian
 He that outlives this day and comes safe home,
 Will stand a tip-toe when this day is nam'd,
 And rouse him at the name of Crispian.
 He that shall live this day, and see old age,
 Will yearly on the vigil feast his neighbours,
 And say, "To-morrow is Saint Crispian"
 Then will he strip his sleeve and show his scars,
 And say, "These wounds I had on Crispian's day"
 Old men forget yet all shall be forgot,
 But he'll remember with advantages
 What feats he did that day Then shall our names,
 Familiar in his mouth as household words,
 Harry the King, Bedford and Exeter,
 Warwick and Talbot, Salisbury and Gloucester,
 Be in their flowing cups freshly remember'd
 This story shall the good man teach his son,
 And Crispin Crispian shall ne'er go by,
 From this day to the ending of the world,
 But we in it shall be remembered,
 We few, we happy few, we band of brothers,
 For he to-day that sheds his blood with me
 Shall be my brother, be he ne'er so vile
 This day shall gentle his condition
 And gentlemen in England, now a-bed
 Shall think themselves accus'd they were not here,
 And hold their manhoods cheap whiles any speaks
 That fought with us upon Saint Crispian's day. Ib 35

Thou damned and luxurious mountain goat.
Ib. iv [20]

I'll fer him, and firk him, and ferret him. Ib [29]
 And all my mother came into mine eyes
 And gave me up to tears Ib. vi 31

There is a river in Macedon, and there is also moreover a river at Monmouth . . . and there is salmons in both Ib vii [28]

But now behold,
 In the quick forge and working-house of thought,
 How London doth pour out her citizens
Ib v Chorus, 22

Were now the general of our gracious empress,—
 As in good time he may,—from Ireland coming,
 Bringing rebellion broached on his sword. Ib 30

There is occasions and causes why and wherefore in all things Ib v 1 [3]

Not for Cadwallader and all his goats Ib [29]

By this leek, I will most horribly revenge Ib [49].

Why that the naked, poor, and mangled Peace,
 Dear nurse of arts, plenties, and joyful births
Ib ii 34.

The even mead, that erst brought sweetly forth
 The freckled crowslip, burnet, and green clover,

Conceives by idleness, and nothing teems
 But hateful docks, rough thistles, kecksies, burs
Ib 48

If not, to say to thee that I shall die, is true, but for thy love, by the Lord, no, yet I love thee too.
Ib [157].

For these fellows of infinite tongue, that can rhyme themselves into ladies' favours, they do always reason themselves out again Ib [162]

Shall not thou and I, between Saint Denis and Saint George, compound a bov, half-French, half-English, that shall go to Constantinople and take the Turk by the beard? Ib [218].

It is not a fashion for the maids in France to kiss before they are married Ib [287].

God, the best maker of all marriages,
 Combine your hearts in one Ib [387].

Hung be the heavens with black, yield day to night!
King Henry VI, Part 1, 1 i. 1

Expect Saint Martin's summer, halcyon days
Ib ii. 131.

Unbidden guests
 Are often welcome when they are gone.

She's beautiful and therefore to be woo'd,
She is a woman, therefore to be won

King Henry VI, Part 1, v iii 78

She bears a duke's revenues on her back,
And in her heart she scorns our poverty

King Henry VI, Part 2, i iii [83]

Could I come near your beauty with my nails
I'd set my ten commandments in your face Ib [144]

What stronger breastplate than a heart untainted!
Thrice is he arm'd that hath his quarrel just,
And he but naked, though lock'd up in steel,
Whose conscience with injustice is corrupted

He dies, and makes no sign Ib iii 29

Forbear to judge, for we are sinners all
Close up his eyes, and draw the curtains close,
And let us all to meditation Ib 31

The gaudy, blabbing, and remorseful day
Is crept into the bosom of the sea Ib iv i i

True nobility is exempt from fear Ib 129

I say it was never merry world in England since gentlemen came up Ib ii. [10]

There shall be in England seven halfpenny loaves sold for a penny, the three-hooped pot shall have ten hoops, and I will make it felony to drink small beer Ib [73]

The first thing we do, let's kill all the lawyers
Ib [86]

Is not thus a lamentable thing, that of the skin of an innocent lamb should be made parchment? that parchment, being scribbled o'er, should undo a man? Ib [88]

And Adam was a gardener Ib [146]

Thou hast most traitorously corrupted the youth of the realm in erecting a grammar school and whereas, before, our forefathers had no other books but the score and the tally, thou hast caused printing to be used, and, contrary to the king, his crown and dignity, thou hast built a paper-mill Ib vii [35]

Away with him! away with him! he speaks Latin
Ib [62]

Lord, who would live turmoiled in the court,
And may enjoy such quiet walks as these? Ib x [18]

This battle fares like to the morning's war,
When dying clouds contend with growing light,
What time the shepherd, blowing of his nails,
Can neither call it perfect day nor night

King Henry VI, Part 3, ii v i

O God! methinks it were a happy life,
To be no better than a homely swain,
To sit upon a hill, as I do now,
To carve out dials, quaintly, point by point,
Thereby to see the minutes how they run,
How many make the hour full complete,
How many hours bring about the day,
How many days will finish up the year,
How many years a mortal man may live Ib 21

Gives not the hawthorn bush a sweeter shade
To shepherds, looking on their silly sheep,

Than doth a rich embroider'd canopy
To kings that fear their subjects' treachery? Ib 42

See, see! what showers arise,
Blown with the windy tempest of my heart Ib 85

Warwick, peace,
Proud setter up and puller down of kings Ib 156

A little fire is quickly trodden out,
Which, being suffer'd, rivers cannot quench Ib viii 7

Live we how we can, yet die we must Ib v ii 27

Suspicion always haunts the guilty mind;
The thief doth fear each bush an officer. Ib vi ii

Down, down to hell, and say I sent thee thither
Ib 67.

Now is the winter of our discontent
Made glorious summer by this sun of York

King Richard III, i i i

Our stern alarums changed to merry meetings,
Our dreadful marches to delightful measures. Ib 7

He capers nimbly in a lady's chamber
To the lascivious pleasing of a lute. Ib 12

This weak piping time of peace Ib 24

And therefore, since I cannot prove a lover,
I am determined to prove a villain Ib 28

By silken, sly, insinuating Jacks? Ib iii 53

Since every Jack became a gentleman
There's many a gentle person made a Jack Ib 72

And thus I clothe my naked villany
With odd old ends stol'n forth of holy writ,
And seem a saint when most I play the devil. Ib 336.

O, I have pass'd a miserable night,
So full of ugly sights, of ghastly dreams,
That, as I am a Christian faithful man,
I would not spend another such a night,
Though 'twere to buy a world of happy days,
So full of dismal terror was the time! Ib iv 2

Lord, Lord! methought what pain it was to drown
What dreadful noise of water in mine ears!
What sights of ugly death within mine eyes!
Methought I saw a thousand fearful wracks,
A thousand men that fishes gnaw'd upon,
Wedges of gold, great anchors, heaps of pearl,
Inestimable stones, unvalu'd jewels,
All scatter'd in the bottom of the sea
Some lay in dead men's skulls, and in those holes
Where eyes did once inhabit, there were crept
As 'twere in scorn of eyes, reflecting gems,
That woo'd the slimy bottom of the deep,
And mock'd the dead bones that lay scatter'd by Ib 21

The empty, vast, and wandering air Ib 39

Orpheus with his lute made trees,
And the mountain-tops that freeze,
Bow themselves when he did sing
To his music plants and flowers
Ever sprung, as sun and showers
There had made a lasting spring.

Everything that heard him play,
Even the billows of the sea,
Hung their heads, and then lay by.
In sweet music is such art,
Killing care and grief of heart
Fall asleep, or hearing die. Ib III 1 3

Heaven is above all yet, there sits a judge,
That no king can corrupt Ib 99

A spleeny Lutheran Ib II 100

'Tis well said again,
And 'tis a kind of good deed to say well
And yet words are no deeds Ib 153

And then to breakfast, with What appetite you have Ib 203.

That in all you write to Rome, or else
To foreign princes, 'Ego et Rex meus'
Was still inscrib'd Ib 314.

Farewell! a long farewell, to all my greatness!
This is the state of man to-day he puts forth
The tender leaves of hope, to-morrow blossoms,
And bears his blushing honours thick upon him,
The third day comes a frost, a killing frost;
And, when he thinks, good easy man, full surely
His greatness is a-ripening, nips his root,
And then he falls, as I do I have ventur'd,

Like little wanton boys that swim on bladders,
 This many summers in a sea of glory,
 But far beyond my depth my high-blown pride
 At length broke under me, and now has left me
 Weary and old with service, to the mercy
 Of a rude stream that must for ever hide me
 Vain pomp and glory of this world, I hate ye
 I feel my heart new open'd O how wretched
 Is that poor man that hangs on princes' favours!
 There is, betwixt that smile we would aspire to,
 That sweet aspect of princes, and their ruin,
 More pangs and fears than wars or women have,
 And when he falls, he falls like Lucifer,
 Never to hope again King Henry VIII, III ii 352

A peace above all earthly dignities,
 A still and quiet conscience Ib 380

A load would sink a navy Ib 384

There was the weight that pull'd me down O Cromwell!

The king has gone beyond me all my glories
 In that one woman I have lost for ever Ib 408

Cromwell, I did not think to shed a tear
 In all my miseries, but thou hast forc'd me,
 Out of thy honest truth, to play the woman Ib 429

Let's dry our eyes and thus far hear me, Cromwell,
 And, when I am forgotten, as I shall be,
 And sleep in dull cold marble, where no mention
 Of me more must be heard of, say, I taught thee, Say, Wolsey, that once trod the ways of glory,
 And sounded all the depths and shoals of honour, Found thee a way, out of his wrack, to rise in,
 A sure and safe one, though thy master miss'd it Ib 432

Cromwell, I charge thee, fling away ambition
 By that sin fell the angels Ib 441

Love thyself last cherish those hearts that hate thee, Corruption wins not more than honesty
 Still in thy right hand carry gentle peace,
 To silence envious tongues be just, and fear not Let all the ends thou aim'st at be thy country's, Thy God's, and truth's; then if thou fall'st, O Cromwell!

Thou fall'st a blessed martyr Ib 444

Had I but serv'd my God with half the zeal
 I serv'd my king, he would not in mine age
 Have left me naked to mine enemies Ib 456

She had all the royal makings of a queen Ib iv 1 87

An old man, broken with the storms of state,
 Is come to lay his weary bones among ye,
 Give him a little earth for charity Ib ii 21

He gave his honours to the world again,
 His blessed part to Heaven, and slept in peace Ib 29

So may he rest, his faults lie gently on him! Ib 31

He was a man
 Of an unbounded stomach, Ib 33

His promises were, as he then was, mighty,
 But his performance, as he is now, nothing Ib 41

Men's evil manners live in brass, their virtues
 We write in water. Ib 45

He was a scholar, and a ripe and good one,
 Exceeding wise, fair-spoken, and persuading Lofty and sour to them that lov'd him not,
 But, to those men that sought him, sweet as summer Ib 51

Those twins of learning that he rais'd in you,
 Ipswich and Oxford! Ib 58

After my death I wish no other herald,
 No other speaker of my living actions,
 To keep mine honour from corruption,
 Than such an honest chronicler as Griffith Ib 69

To dance attendance on their lordships' pleasures Ib v ii 30

'Tis a cruelty
 To load a falling man Ib 76

In her days every man shall eat in safety
 Under his own vine what he plants, and sing
 The merry songs of peace to all his neighbours Ib v 34

Those about her
 From her shall read the perfect ways of honour Ib 37.

Nor shall this peace sleep with her, but as when The bird of wonder dies, the maiden phoenix,
 Her ashes new-create another heir
 As great in admiration as herself Ib 40

Some come to take their ease
 And sleep an act or two Ib Epilogue, 2

The first heir of my invention
Venus and Adonis, Preface

Hunting he lov'd, but love he laugh'd to scorn Ib 1 4

Bid me discourse, I will enchant thine ear,
 Or like a fairy trip upon the green,
 Or, like a nymph, with long dishevell'd hair,
 Dance on the sands, and yet no footing seen
 Love is a spirit all compact of fire,
 Not gross to sink, but light, and will aspire Ib 1 145

Round-hoof'd, short-jointed, fetlocks shag and long,
 Broad breast, full eye, small head and nostril wide,
 High crest, short ears, straight legs and passing strong,

Thin mane, thick tail, broad buttock, tender hide Look, what a horse should have he did not lack,
 Save a proud rider on so proud a back Ib 1. 295.

By this, poor Wat, far off upon a hill,
 Stands on his hinder legs with listening ear,
 To hearken if his foes pursue him still Ib 1 607

What I have done is yours, what I have to do is yours, being part in all I have, devoted yours
The Rape of Lucrece, Preface

Beauty itself doth of itself persuade
 The eyes of men without an orator Ib 1 29.

Time's glory is to calm contending kings,
 To unmask falsehood, and bring truth to light Ib 1 939

Cloud-kissing Ilion. Ib 1 1370

From fairest creatures we desire increase,
That thereby beauty's rose might never die

Sonnets, 1

When forty winters shall besiege thy brow,
And dig deep trenches in thy beauty's held Ib 2

Thou art thy mother's glass, and she in thee
Calls back the lovely April of her prime Ib 3

Lo! in the orient when the gracious light
Lifts up his burning head, each under eye
Doth homage to his new-appearing sight Ib 7

Music to hear, why hear'st thou music sadly?
Sweets with sweets war not, joy delights in joy
Why lov'st thou that which thou receiv'st not gladly,
Or else receiv'st with pleasure thine annoy? Ib 8

True concord of well-tuned sounds Ib

When lofty trees I see barren of leaves,
Which erst from heat did canopy the herd,
And summer's green all girded up in sheaves,
Borne on the bier with white and bristly beard Ib 12

If I could write the beauty of your eyes
And in fresh numbers number all your graces,
The age to come would say, 'This poet lies,
Such heavenly touches ne'er touch'd earthly faces' Ib 17

And stretched metre of an antique song Ib

Shall I compare thee to a summer's day?
Thou art more lovely and more temperate Rough winds do shake the darling buds of May,
And summer's lease hath all too short a date.
Sometime too hot the eye of heaven shines,
And often is his gold complexion dimm'd,
And every fair from fair sometime declines,
By chance, or nature's changing course untrimm'd,
But thy eternal summer shall not fade,
Nor lose possession of that fair thou ow'st,
Nor shall death brag thou wander'st in his shade,
When in eternal lines to time thou grow'st,
So long as men can breathe, or eyes can see,
So long lives this, and this gives life to thee Ib 18

My glass shall not persuade me I am old,
So long as youth and thou are of one date,
But when in thee time's furrows I behold,
Then look I death my days should expiate Ib 22

As an imperfect actor on the stage,
Who with his fear is put beside his part Ib 23

O! let my books be then the eloquence
And dumb presagers of my speaking breast Ib

The painful warrior famoused for fight,
After a thousand victories once foil'd,
Is from the book of honour razed quite,
And all the rest forgot for which he toil'd Ib 25

Weary with toil, I haste me to my bed, Ib 27

When in disgrace with fortune and men's eyes
I all alone bewep my outcast state,
And trouble deaf heaven with my bootless cries,
And look upon myself and curse my fate,
Wishing me like to one more rich in hope,
Featur'd like him, like him with friends possess'd,
Desiring this man's art, and that man's scope,
With what I most enjoy contented least,

Yet in these thoughts myself almost despising,
Haply I think on thee,—and then my state,
Like to the lark at break of day arising
From sullen earth, sings hymns at heaven's gate,
For thy sweet love remember'd such wealth brings
That then I scorn to change my state with kings Ib 29

When to the sessions of sweet silent thought
I summon up remembrance of things past,
I sigh the lack of many a thing I sought,
And with old woes new wail my dear time's waste
Then can I drown an eye, unus'd to flow,
For precious friends hid in death's dateless night,
And weep afresh love's long since cancell'd woe,
And moan the expense of many a vanish'd sight
Then can I grieve at grievances foregone,
And heavily from woe to woe tell o'er
The sad account of fore-bemoaned moan,
Which I new pay as if not paid before
But if the while I think on thee, dear friend,
All losses are restor'd and sorrows end Ib 30

But since he died, and poets better prove,
Theirs for their style I'll read, his for his love Ib 32.

Full many a glorious morning have I seen
Flatter the mountain-tops with sovereign eye,
Kissing with golden face the meadows green,
Gilding pale streams with heavenly alchemy Ib 33.

But, out! alack! he was but one hour mine,
The region cloud hath mask'd him from me now Ib.

Suns of the world may stain when heaven's sun staineth Ib

Why didst thou promise such a beauteous day,
And make me travel forth without my cloak? Ib 34.

Roses have thorns, and silver fountains mud,
Clouds and eclipses stain both moon and sun,
And loathsome canker lives in sweetest bud
All men make faults Ib 35.

As a decrepit father takes delight
To see his active child do deeds of youth,
So I, made lame by fortune's dearest spite,
Take all my comfort of thy worth and truth Ib 37.

Against that time when thou shalt strangely pass,
And scarcely greet me with that sun, thine eye,
When love, converted from the thing it was,
Shall reasons find of settled gravity Ib 49

Like stones of worth they thinly placed are,
Or captain jewels in the carcanet Ib 52.

What is your substance, whereof are you made,
That millions of strange shadows on you tend? Ib 53.

You in Grecian tires are painted new Ib.

The spring and foison of the year Ib.

O! how much more doth beauty beauteous seem
By that sweet ornament which truth doth give! Ib 54.

Not marble, nor the gilded monuments
Of princes, shall outlive this powerful rhyme Ib 55.

Being your slave, what should I do but tend Upon the hours and times of your desire?
 I have no precious time at all to spend,
 Nor services to do, till you require
 Nor dare I chide the world-without-end hour
 Whilst I, my sovereign, watch the clock for you,
 Nor think the bitterness of absence sour
 When you have bid your servant once adieu,
 Nor dare I question with my jealous thought
 Where you may be, or your affairs suppose,
 But like a sad slave, stay and think of nought Save, where you are, how happy you make those So true a fool is love that in your will,
 Though you do anything, he thinks no ill

Sonnets, 57

Like as the waves make towards the pebbled shore,
 So do our minutes hasten to their end Ib 60

Time doth transfix the flourish set on youth
 And delves the parallels in beauty's brow Ib

Sin of self-love possesseth all mine eye Ib 62

When I have seen by Time's fell hand defac'd
 The rich-proud cost of outworn buried age Ib 64

When I have seen the hungry ocean gain Advantage on the kingdom of the shore Ib

Since brass, nor stone, nor earth, nor boundless sea,
 But sad mortality o'ersways their power,
 How with this rage shall beauty hold a plea,
 Whose action is no stronger than a flower? Ib 65

Tir'd with all these, for restful death I cry,
 As to behold desert a beggar born,
 And needy nothing trimm'd in jollity,
 And purest faith unhappily forsworn,
 And gilded honour shamefully misplac'd,
 And maiden virtue rudely strumpeted,
 And right perfection wrongfully disgrac'd,
 And strength by limping sway disabled,
 And art made tongue-tied by authority,
 And folly—doctor-like—controlling skill,
 And simple truth miscall'd simplicity,
 And captive good attending captain ill
 Tir'd with all these, from these I would be gone,
 Save that, to die, I leave my love alone Ib 66

No longer mourn for me when I am dead
 Than you shall hear the surly sullen bell
 Give warning to the world that I am fled
 From this vile world, with vilest worms to dwell Ib 71

That time of year thou mayst in me behold
 When yellow leaves, or none, or few, do hang Upon those boughs which shake against the cold, Bare ruin'd choirs, where late the sweet birds sang
 In me thou see'st the twilight of such day
 As after sunset fadeth in the west,
 Which by and by black night doth take away,
 Death's second self, that seals up all in rest Ib 73

Thus thou perceiv'st, which makes thy love more
 strong,

To love that well which thou must leave ere long Ib

So all my best is dressing old words new Ib 76

Like unletter'd clerk, still cry 'Amen' Ib 85

Was it the proud full sail of his great verse,
 Bound for the prize of all too precious you,

That did my ripe thoughts in my brain inhearse,
 Making their tomb the womb wherein they grew? Ib 86

That affable familiar ghost
 Which nightly gulls him with intelligence Ib 87

Farewell! thou art too dear for my possessing,
 And like enough thou know'st thy estimate
 The charter of thy worth gives thee releasing,
 My bonds in thee are all determinate
 For how do I hold thee but by thy granting?
 And for that riches where is my deserving?
 The cause of this fair gift in me is wanting,
 And so my patent back again is swerving Thyself thou gav'st, thine own worth then not knowing,

Or me, to whom thou gav'st it, else mistaking,
 So thy great gift, upon misprision growing,
 Comes home again, on better judgment making
 Thus have I had thee, as a dream doth flatter,
 In sleep a king, but, waking, no such matter Ib 87.

Ah, do not, when my heart hath 'scap'd this sorrow,
 Come in the rearward of a conquer'd woe,
 Give not a windy night a rainy morrow,
 To linger out a purpos'd overthrow Ib 90

They that have power to hurt and will do none,
 That do not do the thing they most do show,
 Who, moving others, are themselves as stone,
 Unmoved, cold, and to temptation slow Ib 94

They are the lords and owners of their faces,
 Others but stewards of their excellence
 The summer's flower is to the summer sweet,
 Though to itself it only live and die Ib

Lilies that fester smell far worse than weeds Ib

How like a winter hath my absence been
 From thee, the pleasure of the fleeting year!
 What freezings have I felt, what dark days seen!
 What old December's bareness every where! Ib 97

From you have I been absent in the spring,
 When proud-pied April, dress'd in all his trim,
 Hath put a spirit of youth in everything Ib 98

To me, fair friend, you never can be old,
 For as you were when first your eye I ey'd,
 Such seems your beauty still Three winters cold
 Have from the forests shook three summers' pride,
 Three beauteous springs to yellow autumn turn'd
 In process of the seasons have I seen,
 Three April perfumes in three hot Junes burn'd,
 Since first I saw your fresh, which yet are green
 Ah! yet doth beauty, like a dial-hand,
 Steal from his figure, and no pace perceiv'd,
 So your sweet hue, which methinks still doth stand,
 Hath motion, and mine eye may be deceiv'd
 For fear of which, hear this, thou age unbred
 Ere you were born was beauty's summer dead Ib 104

And beauty, making beautiful old rhyme Ib 106.

Not mine own fears, nor the prophetic soul
 Of the wide world dreaming on things to come,
 Can yet the lease of my true love control,
 Suppos'd as forfeit to a confin'd doom
 The mortal moon hath her eclipse endur'd,
 And the sad augurs mock their own presage Ib 107.

And thou in this shalt find thy monument,
When tyrants' crests and tombs of brass are spent.
Sonnets, 107.

O! never say that I was false of heart,
Though absence seem'd my flame to qualify Ib 109.

Alas! 'tis true I have gone here and there,
And made myself a motley to the view, God'd mine own thoughts, sold cheap what is most dear,
Made old offences of affections new,
Most true it is that I have look'd on truth
Askance and strangely, but, by all above,
These blenches gave my heart another youth,
And worse essays prov'd thee my best of love Ib 110

My nature is subdu'd
To what it works in, like the dyer's hand,
Pity me, then, and wish I were renew'd Ib 111

Let me not to the marriage of true minds
Admit impediments Love is not love
Which alters when it alteration finds,
Or bends with the remover to remove O, no! it is an ever-fixed mark,
That looks on tempests and is never shaken,
It is the star to every wandering bark,
Whose worth's unknown, although his height be taken

Love's not Time's fool, though rosy lips and cheeks
Within his bending sickle's compass come,
Love alters not with his brief hours and weeks,
But bears it out even to the edge of doom
If this be error, and upon me prov'd,
I never writ, nor no man ever lov'd Ib 116

The expense of spirit in a waste of shame
Is lust in action, and till action, lust
Is perjur'd, murderous, bloody, full of blame, Savage, extreme, rude, cruel, not to trust Ib 129

Mad in pursuit, and in possession so,
Had, having, and in quest to have, extreme;
A bliss in proof,—and prov'd, a very woe,
Before, a joy propos'd, behind, a dream
All this the world well knows, yet none knows well
To shun the heaven that leads men to this hell Ib

My mistress' eyes are nothing like the sun,
Coral is far more red than her lips' red:
If snow be white, why then her breasts are dun,

MARY WOLLSTONECRAFT SHELLEY

1797-1851

Mrs Shelley was choosing a school for her son, and asked the advice of this lady, who gave for advice—to use her own words to me—'Just the sort of banality, you know, one does come out with "Oh, send him somewhere where they will teach him to think for himself!" Mrs Shelley answered "Teach him to think for himself? Oh, my God, teach him rather to think like other people!"

It might make one in love with death, to think that one should be buried in so sweet a place Adonais. Preface.

I weep for Adonais—he is dead!
O, weep for Adonais! though our tears
Thaw not the frost which binds so dear a head!
Ib. 1

Most musical of mourners, weep again!
Lament anew, Urania!—He died,
Who was the Sire of an immortal strain,
Blind, old, and lonely, when his country's pride,
The priest, the slave, and the libertine,
Trampled and mocked with many a loathed rite
Of lust and blood, he went, unterrified,
Under the gulf of death, but his clear Sprite
Yet reigns o'er earth, the third among the sons of light
Ib iv

But now, thy youngest, dearest one, has perished—
The nursing of thy widowhood
Ib vi

To that high Capital, where kingly Death
Keeps his pale court in beauty and decay,
He came Adonais, vii

He will awake no more, oh, never more! Ib viii

The quick Dreams,
The passion-winged Ministers of thought Ib ix

Lost Angel of a ruin'd Paradise!
She knew not 'twas her own, as with no stain
She faded, like a cloud which had outwep't its rain
Ib x

Desires and Adorations,
Winged Persuasions and veiled Destinies, Splendours, and Glooms, and glimmering Incarnations

Of hopes and fears, and twilight Phantasies,
And Sorrow, with her family of Sighs,
And Pleasure, blind with tears, led by the gleam
Of her own dying smile instead of eyes,
Came in slow pomp Ib xiii

Ah, woe is me! Winter is come and gone,
But grief returns with the revolving year Ib xviii

The great morning of the world when first God dawned on Chaos Ib xix

Alas! that all we loved of him should be,
But for our grief, as if it had not been,
And grief itself be mortal! Ib xxi

Whence are we, and why are we? Of what scene
The actors or spectators? Ib

As long as skies are blue, and fields are green,
Evening must usher night, night urge the morrow, Month follow month with woe, and year wake year to sorrow Ib

Why didst thou leave the trodden paths of men
Too soon, and with weak hands though mighty heart
Dare the unpastured dragon in his den?
Defenceless as thou wert, oh, where was then Wisdom the mirrored shield, or scorn the spear?
Ib xxvii

The herded wolves, bold only to pursue,
The obscene ravens, clamorous o'er the dead
Ib xxviii

The Pilgrim of Eternity, whose fame
Over his living head like heaven is bent,
An early but enduring monument,
Came, veiling all the lightnings of his song
In sorrow Ib xxx

A pard-like spirit, beautiful and swift—
A Love in desolation masked,—a Power
Girt round with weakness,—it can scarce uplift
The weight of the superincumbent hour,
It is a dying lamp, a falling shower,
A breaking billow,—even whilst we speak
Is it not broken? Ib xxxii

A herd-abandoned deer struck by the hunter's dart Ib xxxiii.

Our Adonais has drunk poison—oh!
What deaf and viperous murderer could crown
Life's early cup with such a draught of woe?
Ib xxxvi.

He wakes or sleeps with the enduring dead,
Thou canst not soar where he is sitting now—

Dust to the dust! but the pure spirit shall flow Back to the burning fountain whence it came,
A portion of the Eternal Ib xxxviii

He hath awakened from the dream of life—
'Tis we, who lost in stormy visions, keep With phantoms an unprofitable strife,
And in mad trance, strike with our spirit's knife
Invulnerable nothings Ib xxxix

He has out-soared the shadow of our night;
Envy and calumny and hate and pain,
And that unrest which men miscall delight,
Can touch him not and torture not again,
From the contagion of the world's slow stain
He is secure, and now can never mourn
A heart grown cold, a head grown grey in vain
Ib xl

He lives, he wakes,—'tis Death is dead, not he Ib xli

He is made one with Nature there is heard
His voice in all her music, from the moan
Of thunder, to the song of night's sweet bird
Ib xlii

He is a portion of the loveliness
Which once he made more lovely. Ib xliii

The inheritors of unfulfilled renown
Rose from their thrones, built beyond mortal thought,
Far in the Unapparent Ib xlv

Sublimely mild, a Spirit without spot (Sidney) Ib
Oblivion as they rose shrank like a thing reproved
Ib

What Adonais is, why fear we to become? Ib li

The One remains, the many change and pass,
Heaven's light forever shines, Earth's shadows fly,
Life, like a dome of many-coloured glass,
Stains the white radiance of Eternity. Ib lii

The soul of Adonais, like a star, Beacons from the abode where the Eternal are Ib lv

The lone Chorasman shore Alastor, l 272

But thou art fled
Like some frail exhalation Ib l 686

Pale despair and cold tranquillity,
Nature's vast frame, the web of human things,
Birth and the grave, that are not as they were
Ib l 718

I am the eye with which the Universe
Beholds itself and knows itself divine,
All harmony of instrument or verse,
All prophecy, all medicine is mine,
All light of art or nature,—to my song
Victory and praise in its own right belong

Arethusa arose
From her couch of snows
In the Acroceranuan mountains,—
From cloud and from crag,
With many a jag,
Shepherding her bright fountains Arethusa.
Like friends once parted
Grown single-hearted Ib.

'Do you not hear the Aziola cry?
Methinks she must be nigh,'
Said Mary as we sate
In dusk, ere stars were lit, or candles brought,
And I, who thought
This Aziola was some tedious woman,
Asked, 'Who is Aziola?' The Aziola

Give yourself no unnecessary pain,
My dear Lord Cardinal Here, Mother, tie
My girdle for me, and bind up this hair
In any simple knot, ay, that does well
And yours I see is coming down How often Have we done this for one another, now
We shall not do it any more My Lord,
We are quite ready Well, 'tis very well
The Centi, v iv 158

A widow bird sate mourning for her love
Upon a wintry bough,
The frozen wind crept on above,
The freezing stream below.

There was no leaf upon the forest bare,
No flower upon the ground,
And little motion in the air
Except the mill-wheel's sound
Charles the First, sc v, 1 10

I bring fresh showers for the thirsting flowers,
From the seas and the streams,
I bear light shade for the leaves when laid
In their noonday dreams The Cloud

I wield the flail of the lashing hail,
And whiten the green plains under,
And then again I dissolve it in rain,
And laugh as I pass in thunder Ib

I sift the snow on the mountains below,
And their great pines groan aghast,
And all the night 'tis my pillow white,
While I sleep in the arms of the blast
Sublime on the towers of my skiey bowers,
Lightning my pilot sits,
In a cavern under is fettered the thunder,
It struggles and howls at fits Ib

And I all the while bask in Heaven's blue smile, Whilst he is dissolving in rains Ib

That orb'd maiden, with white fire laden,
Whom mortals call the moon,
Glides glimmering o'er my fleece-like floor,
By the midnight breezes strewn,
And wherever the beat of her unseen feet,
Which only the angels hear,
May have broken the woof of my tent's thin roof,
The stars peep behind her and peer,
And I laugh to see them whirl and flee
Like a swarm of golden bees,
When I widen the rent in my wind-built tent,
Till the calm rivers, lakes, and seas,
Like strips of the sky fallen through me on high,
Are each paved with the moon and these Ib

I am the daughter of earth and water,
And the nursling of the sky,
I pass through the pores of the ocean and shores,
I change, but I cannot die
For after the rain when with never a stain
The pavilion of Heaven is bare,

And the winds and sunbeams with their convex gleams

Build up the blue dome of air,
I silently laugh at my own cenotaph,
And out of the caverns of rain,
Like a child from the womb, like a ghost from the tomb,

I arise and build it again. Ib

How wonderful is Death,
Death and his brother Sleep!
One pale as yonder wan and horned moon,
With lips of lurid blue,
The other glowing like the vital morn,
When throned on ocean's wave
It breathes over the world

Yet both so passing strange and wonderful

 And like sunrise from the sea,
 Athens arose! Ib l 682

The world's great age begins anew,
 The golden years return,
 The earth doth like a snake renew
 Her winter weeds outworn;
 Heaven smiles, and faiths and empires gleam,
 Like wrecks of a dissolving dream

A brighter Hellas rears its mountains
 From waves serener far,
 A new Peneus rolls his fountains
 Against the morning star
 Where fairer Tempes bloom, there sleep
 Young Cyclads on a sunnier deep

A loftier Argo cleaves the main,
 Fraught with a later prize,
 Another Orpheus sings again,
 And loves, and weeps, and dies
 A new Ulysses leaves once more

I arise from dreams of thee
 In the first sweet sleep of night
 When the winds are breathing low,
 And the stars are shining bright.
 I arise from dreams of thee,
 And a spirit in my feet
 Hath led me—who knows how?
 To thy chamber window, Sweet!

The wandering airs they faint
 On the dark, the silent stream—
 The Champak odours fail
 Like sweet thoughts in a dream;
 The nightingale's complaint,
 It dies upon her heart,—
 As I must on thine,
 Beloved as thou art!

Oh lift me from the grass!
 I die! I faint! I fail!
 Let thy love in kisses rain
 On my lips and eyelids pale
 My cheek is cold and white, alas!
 My heart beats loud and fast,—
 Oh! press it to thine own again,
 Where it will break at last The Indian Serenade.

What! alive, and so bold, O earth?
*Lines written on hearing the News of the Death

The fountains mingle with the river,
And the rivers with the ocean,
The winds of heaven mix for ever
With a sweet emotion,
Nothing in the world is single,
All things, by a law divine,
In one another's being mingle
Why not I with thine?—

See the mountains kiss high Heaven
And the waves clasp one another,
No sister-flower would be forgiven
If it disdained its brother,
And the sunlight clasps the earth
And the moonbeams kiss the sea:
What are all these kissings worth
If thou kiss not me? Love's Philosophy.

O wild West Wind, thou breath of Autumn's being,
Thou, from whose unseen presence the leaves dead
Are driven, like ghosts from an enchanter fleeing,

Yellow, and black, and pale, and hectic red,
Pestilence-stricken multitudes O thou,
Who chariotest to their dark wintry bed

The winged seeds, where they lie cold and low,
Each like a corpse within its grave, until Thine azure sister of the spring shall blow

Her clarion o'er the dreaming earth, and fill

With living hues and odours plain and hill

The blue Mediterranean, where he lay,
Lulled by the coil of his crystalline streams

If I were a dead leaf thou mightst bear,
If I were a swift cloud to fly with thee,
A wave to pant beneath thy power, and share

The impulse of thy strength, only less free Than thou, O uncontrollable! If even I were as in my boyhood, and could be

The comrade of thy wanderings over Heaven,
As then, when to outstrip thy skyey speed
Scarce seemed a vision, I would ne'er have striven

As thus with thee in my sore need
Oh, lift me as a wave, a leaf, a cloud!
I fall upon the thorns of life! I bleed! Ib l 43

Make me thy lyre, even as the forest is What if my leaves are falling like its own?
The tumult of thy mighty harmonies

Will take from both a deep, autumnal tone,
Sweet though in sadness Be thou, Spirit fierce,
My spirit! Be thou me, impetuous one!

Drive my dead thoughts over the universe
Like withered leaves to quicken a new birth!
And, by the incantation of this verse,

Scatter, as from an unextinguished hearth
Ashes and sparks, my words among mankind!
Be through my lips to unawakened earth

The trumpet of a prophecy! O, Wind,

I dreamed that, as I wandered by the way,
Bare Winter suddenly was changed to Spring,
And gentle odours led my steps astray,
Mixed with a sound of water's murmuring

Along a shelving bank of turf, which lay
 Under a copse, and hardly dared to fling
 Its green arms round the bosom of the stream,
 But kissed it and then fled, as thou mightst in

 And wild roses, and ivy serpentine,
 With its dark buds and leaves, wandering astray,
 And flowers azure, black, and streaked with gold,
 Fairer than any wakened eyes behold Ib

And nearer to the river's trembling edge
 There grew broad flag-flowers, purple, pranked with white,

And starry river buds among the sedge,
 And floating water-lilies, broad and bright Ib.

In the highlands, in the country places,
Where the old plain men have rosy faces,
And the young fair maidens

Quiet eyes

Ib XV

Trusty, dusky, vivid, true,

With eyes of gold and bramble-dew,

Steel-true and blade-straight,

The great artificer

Made my mate

Ib XXV My Wife

Sing me a song of a lad that is gone,

Say, could that lad be I?

Merry of soul he sailed on a day

Over the sea to Skye

Ib XLIII.

Mull was a-stern, Rum on the port,

Egg on the starboard bow,

Glory of youth glowed in his soul,

Where is that glory now?

Ib

Blows the wind to-day, and the sun and the rain are flying,

Blows the wind on the moors to-day and now,
Where about the graves of the martyrs the whaups are crying,

My heart remembers how!

Ib XLV To S R Crockett

Be it granted to me to behold you again in dying,

Hills of home! and to hear again the call,

Hear about the graves of the martyrs the peewees crying,

And hear no more at all

Ib

Of all my verse, like not a single line,

But like my title, for it is not mine

That title from a better man I stole,

Ah, how much better, had I stol'n the whole!

Underwoods Foreword.

Go, little book, and wish to all

Flowers in the garden, meat in the hall,

A bun of wine, a spice of wit,

A house with lawns enclosing it,

A living river by the door,

A nightingale in the sycamore! Ib bk 1 I Envoy.

If I have faltered more or less
In my great task of happiness,
If I have moved among my race
And shown no glorious morning face,
If beams from happy human eyes
Have moved me not, if morning skies,
Books, and my food, and summer rain
Knocked on my sullen heart in vain —
Lord, thy most pointed pleasure take
And stab my spirit broad awake,
Or, Lord, if too obdurate I,
Choose thou, before that spirit die,
A piercing pain, a killing sin,
And to my dead heart run them in!

I can not eat but little meat,
My stomach is not good
But sure I think, that I can drink
With him that wears a hood
Though I go bare, take ye no care,
I am nothing a cold
I stuff my skin, so full with in,
Of jolly good ale and old.

Back and side go bare, go bare,
Both foot and hand go cold
But belly God send thee good ale enough,
Whether it be new or old

Maiden, and mistress of the months and stars
Now folded in the flowerless fields of heaven
Atalanta in Calydon Collected Poetical Works
(1924), vol II, p 247, 1 1

When the hounds of spring are on winter's traces,
The mother of months in meadow or plain Fills the shadows and windy places
With lisp of leaves and ripple of rain,
And the brown bright nightgale amorous
Is half assuaged for Itylus,
For the Thracian ships and the foreign faces,
The tongueless vigil and all the pain

Come with bows bent and with emptying of quivers, Maiden most perfect, lady of light,
With a noise of winds and many rivers,
With a clamour of waters, and with might,
Bind on thy sandals, O thou most fleet,
Over the splendour and speed of thy feet,
For the faint east quickens, the wan west shivers,
Round the feet of the day and the feet of the night

Where shall we find her, how shall we sing to her,
Fold our hands round her knees, and cling?
O that man's heart were as fire and could spring to her,

Fire, or the strength of the streams that spring!
For the stars and the winds are unto her
As rament, as songs of the harp-player,
For the risen stars and the fallen cling to her,
And the southwest-wind and west-wind sing

For winter's rains and ruins are over,
And all the season of snows and sins,
The days dividing lover and lover,
The light that loses, the night that wins,
And time remembered is grief forgotten,
And frosts are slain and flowers begotten,

And in green underwood and cover
Blossom by blossom the spring begins

That his strength might endure for a span
With travail and heavy sorrow,
The holy spirit of man. Ib p 259

Eyesight and speech they wrought
For the veil of the soul therein,
A time for labour and thought,
A time to serve and to sin,
They gave him light in his ways,
And love, and a space for delight,
And beauty and length of days,
And night, and sleep in the night
His speech is a burning fire,
With his lips he travaileth,
In his heart is a blind desire,
In his eyes foreknowledge of death,
He weaves, and is clothed with derision,

Now all strange hours and all strange loves are over,
 Dreams and desires and sombre songs and sweet,
 Hast thou found place at the great knees and feet

For thee, O now a silent soul, my brother,
 Take at my hands this garland and farewell
 Thin is the leaf, and chill the wintry smell,
 And chill the solemn earth, a fatal mother,
 With sadder than the Niobeon womb
 And in the hollow of her breasts a tomb Ib xviii
 There lies not any troublous thing before,
 Nor sight nor sound to war against thee more,
 For whom all winds are quiet as the sun,
 All waters as the shore Ib

In a coign of the cliff between lowland and highland,
 At the sea-down's edge between windward and lee,
 Walled round with rocks as an inland island,
 The ghost of a garden fronts the sea
A Forsaken Garden.

The fields fall southward, abrupt and broken,
 To the low last edge of the long lone land
 If a step should sound or a word be spoken,
 Would a ghost not rise at the strange guest's hand?
 So long have the grey bare walls lain guestless,
 Through branches and briars if a man make way,
 He shall find no life but the sea-wind's, restless Night and day Ib

Heart handfast in heart as they stood, 'Look thither,' Did he whisper? 'look forth from the flowers to the

And men that love lightly may die—but we?'
 And the same wind sang and the same waves whitened,

And or ever the garden's last petals were shed,
 In the lips that had whispered, the eyes that had lightened,

Love was dead. Ib.

Stretched out on the spoils that his own hand spread

Here, where the world is quiet,
 Here, where all trouble seems Dead winds' and spent waves' riot
 In doubtful dreams of dreams

The Garden of Proserpine

I am tired of tears and laughter,
 And men that laugh and weep,
 Of what may come hereafter
 For men that sow and reap
 I am weary of days and hours,
 Blown buds of barren flowers,
 Desires and dreams and powers
 And everything but sleep.

Here life has death for neighbour,
 And far from eye or ear
 Wan waves and wet winds labour,
 Weak ships and spirits steer.

Pale, beyond porch and portal,
 Crowned with calm leaves, she stands
 Who gathers all things mortal
 With cold immortal hands

Dead dreams of days forsaken,
 Blind buds that snows have shaken,
 Wild leaves that winds have taken,
 Red strays of ruined springs.

We are not sure of sorrow,
 And joy was never sure.

From too much love of living,
 From hope and fear set free,
 We thank with brief thanksgiving
 Whatever gods may be
 That no man lives forever,
 That dead men rise up never,
 That even the weariest river
 Winds somewhere safe to sea.

Then star nor sun shall waken,
 Nor any change of light
 Nor sound of waters shaken,
 Nor any sound or sight
 Nor wintry leaves nor vernal,
 Nor days nor things diurnal,
 Only the sleep eternal
 In an eternal night.

The Gardener's Daughter, l 28

A sight to make an old man young Ib l 140
 The she rode forth, clothed on with chastity.
Godiva, l 53

With twelve great shocks of sound, the shameless noon
 Was clash'd and hammer'd from a hundred towers
Ib l 74

Ah! when shall all men's good
 Be each man's rule, and universal Peace
 Lie like a shaft of light across the land?
The Golden Year, l 47

Thro' all the circle of the golden year Ib l 51
 That a lie which is all a lie may be met and fought with outright,
 But a lie which is part a truth is a harder matter to fight The Grandmother, viii

That man's the true Conservative
 Who lops the moulder'd branch away
Hands All Round, i

Pray God our greatness may not fail
 Thro' craven fears of being great Ib iii

Gigantic daughter of the West,
 We drink to thee across the flood
 For art thou not of British blood?

Live pure, speak true, right wrong, follow the King—
 Else, wherefore born?
Ib. Gareth and Lynette, l 117.

The city is built
 To music, therefore never built at all,
 And therefore built for ever. Ib l. 272

Lightly was her slender nose
 Tip-tilted like the petal of a flower. Ib l 576.

Lead, and I follow. Ib l 726

O purblind race of miserable men,
 How many among us at this very hour
 Do forge a lifelong trouble for ourselves,
 By taking true for false, or false for true!

For manners are not idle, but the fruit
 Of loyal nature, and of noble mind Ib l 333.

The children born of thee are sword and fire,
 Red ruin, and the breaking up of laws Ib l 422.

To reverence the King, as if he were Their conscience, and their conscience as their King,
 To break the heathen and uphold the Christ,
 To ride abroad redressing human wrongs,
 To speak no slander, no, nor listen to it,
 To honour his own word as if his God's Ib l 465

To love one maiden only, cleave to her,
And worship her by years of noble deeds,
Until they won her, for indeed I knew
Of no more subtle master under heaven
Than is the maiden passion for a maid,
Not only to keep down the base in man,
But teach high thought, and amiable words
And courtliness, and the desire of fame,
And love of truth, and all that makes a man
The Idylls of the King. Guinevere, l 472.

Our fair father Christ Ib l 559

Hereafter in that world where all are pure
We two may meet before high God, and thou Wilt spring to me, and claim me thine, and know
I am thine husband—not a smaller soul,
Nor Lancelot, nor another Ib l 560

He never mocks,
For mockery is the fume of little hearts Ib l 627

I thought I could not breathe in that fine air
That pure severity of perfect light—
I yearn'd for warmth and colour which I found In Lancelot Ib l 640

It was my duty to have loved the highest
It surely was my profit had I known
It would have been my pleasure had I seen
We needs must love the highest when we see it,

I am going a long way
With these thou seest—if indeed I go (For all my mind is clouded with a doubt)—
To the island-valley of Avilion,
Where falls not hail, or rain, or any snow,
Nor ever wind blows loudly, but it lies Deep-meadow'd, happy, fair with orchard lawns
And bowery hollows crown'd with summer sea,
Where I will heal me of my grievous wound
Ib l. 424

Like some full-breasted swan
That, fluting a wild carol ere her death,
Ruffles her pure cold plume, and takes the flood

Thou comest, much wept for such a breeze Compell'd thy canvas	In Memoriam , xvii	That nothing walks with aimless feet, That not one life shall be destroy'd, Or cast as rubbish to the void, When God hath made the pile complete;
And from his ashes may be made The violet of his native land,	Ib xviii	That not a worm is cloven in vain, That not a moth with vain desire Is shrivell'd in a fruitless fire, Or but subserves another's gain	Ib
There twice a day the Severn fills, The salt sea-water passes by, And hushes half the babbling Wye, And makes a silence in the hills	Ib xix	But what am I? An infant crying in the night An infant crying for the light And with no language but a cry.	Ib
I do but sing because I must, And pipe but as the linnets sing	Ib xxi	So careful of the type she seems, So careless of the single life	Ib lv
The Shadow cloak'd from head to foot, Who keeps the keys of all the creeds	Ib xxiii	The great world's altar-stairs That slope thro' darkness up to God Nature, red in tooth and claw	Ib lvi
And Thought leapt out to wed with Thought Ere Thought could wed itself with Speech	Ib	Dragons of the prime, That tare each other in their slume, Were mellow music match'd with him	Ib
I envy not in any moods The captive void of noble rage, The linnet born within the cage, That never knew the summer woods	Ib xxvii	Peace, come away the song of woe Is after all an earthly song Peace, come away we do him wrong To sing so wildly let us go	Ib lvii
'Tis better to have loved and lost Than never to have loved at all.	Ib	The passing of the sweetest soul That ever look'd with human eyes	Ib
The time draws near the birth of Christ	Ib xxviii	O Sorrow, wilt thou live with me No casual mistress, but a wife	Ib lix
'Where wert thou, brother, those four days?' There lives no record of reply, Which telling what it is to die Had surely added praise to praise		As some divinely gifted man, Whose life in low estate began And on a simple village green,
From every house the neighbours met, The streets were fill'd with joyful sound, A solemn gladness even crown'd The purple brows of Olivet.		Who breaks his birth's invidious bar, And grasps the skirts of happy chance, And breaths the blows of circumstance, And grapples with his evil star	Ib lxiv.
Behold a man raised up by Christ! The rest remaineth unreveal'd, He told it not, or something seal'd The lips of that Evangelist	Ib xxxi	Yet feels, as in a pensive dream, When all his active powers are still, A distant dearthness in the hill, A secret sweetness in the stream	Ib .
Her eyes are homes of silent prayer	Ib xxxii	So many worlds, so much to do, So little done, such things to be	Ib lxxiii
Leave thou thy sister when she prays, Her early Heaven, her happy views, Nor thou with shadow'd hint confuse A life that leads melodious days	Ib xxxiii	Death has made His darkness beautiful with thee	Ib lxxiv
And so the Word had breath, and wrought With human hands the creed of creeds In loveliness of perfect deeds, More strong than all poetic thought.	Ib xxxvi	And round thee with the breeze of song To stir a little dust of praise	Ib lxxv
Short swallow-flights of song, that dip Their wings in tears, and skim away	Ib xlviii	O last regret, regret can die!	Ib lxxviii
And Time, a maniac scattering dust, And Life, a Fury slinging flame	Ib l	Laburnums, dropping-wells of fire	Ib lxxxiii
Do we indeed desire the dead Should still be near us at our side? Is there no baseness we would hide? No inner vileness that we dread?	Ib li	God's finger touch'd him, and he slept	Ib lxxxv
How many a father have I seen, A sober man, among his boys, Whose youth was full of foolish noise	Ib liii	I, the divided half of such A friendship as had master'd Time Dusty purlieus of the law.	Ib lxxxix
Hold thou the good define it well For fear divine Philosophy Should push beyond her mark, and be Procuress to the Lords of Hell	Ib	The hard heir strides about their lands, And will not yield them for a day	Ib xc
Oh yet we trust that somehow good Will be the final goal of ill	Ib liv	When rosy plumelets tuft the larch, And rarely pipes the mounted thrush, Or underneath the barren bush. The sea-blue bird of March	Ib xci

You tell me, doubt is Devil-born.

Ring out the old, ring in the new,
Ring, happy bells, across the snow

The year is going, let him go,
Ring out the false, ring in the true Ib

Ring out the feud of rich and poor. Ib.

Ring out a slowly dying cause,
And ancient forms of party strife,

Ring in the nobler modes of life,
With sweeter manners, purer laws

Ring out the want, the care, the sin,
The faithless coldness of the times,

Ring out, ring out my mournful rhymes,
But ring the fuller minstrel in Ring out false pride in place and blood,

The civic slander and the spite,

Ring in the love of truth and right,
Ring in the common love of good

Ring out old shapes of foul disease,
Ring out the narrowing lust of gold,

Ring out the thousand wars of old,
Ring in the thousand years of peace

Ring in the valiant man and free,
The larger heart, the kindlier hand,

Ring out the darkness of the land,
Ring in the Christ that is to be Ib.

'Tis held that sorrow makes us wise,
Whatever wisdom sleep with thee. Ib cxiii.

Not the schoolboy heat,
The blind hysterics of the Celt Ib cxv.

And thus he bore without abuse
The grand old name of gentleman,

Defamed by every charlatan,
And soil'd with all ignoble use Ib cxv.

Now fades the last long streak of snow
Now burgeons every maze of quick

About the flowering squares and thick
By ashen roots the violets blow Ib cxv.

And drown'd in yonder living blue
The lark becomes a sightless song Ib cxv.

But trust that those we call the dead
Are breathers of an ampler day

For ever nobler ends Ib cxviii

There, where the long street roars, hath been
The stillness of the central sea Ib cxviii

And all is well, tho' faith and form
Be sunder'd in the night of fear Ib cxviii

The red fool-fury of the Seine. Ib, cxviii

From yon blue heavens above us bent
The gardener Adam and his wife

Smile at the claims of long descent
Howe'er it be, it seems to me,

'Tis only noble to be good.

On either side the river lie
Long fields of barley and of rye

The Lady of Shalott, pt 1.

Willows whiten, aspens quiver,
Little breezes dusk and shiver. Ib.

But who hath seen her wave her hand?
Or at the casement seen her stand?

Or is she known in all the land,
The Lady of Shalott? Ib

Only reapers, reaping early
In among the bearded barley,

Hear a song that echoes cheerly
From the river winding clearly

Down to tower'd Camelot. Ib

She hath no loyal knight and true,
The Lady of Shalott. Ib pt ii.

Or when the moon was overhead,
Came two young lovers lately wed,

'I am half sick of shadows,' said
The Lady of Shalott. Ib

A bow-shot from her bower-eaves,
He rode between the barley-sheaves,

The sun came dazzling thro' the leaves,
And flamed upon the brazen greaves

Of bold Sir Lancelot

A red-cross knight for ever kneel'd
To a lady in his shield,

That sparkled on the yellow field,
Beside remote Shalott Ib, pt iii

All in the blue unclouded weather
"Tirra lirra," by the river

Sang Sir Lancelot Ib.

She left the web, she left the loom,
She made three paces thro' the room,

She saw the water-lily bloom,
She saw the helmet and the plume,

She look'd down to Camelot
Out flew the web and floated wide,

The mirror crack'd from side to side;
'The curse is come upon me,' cried Ib.

The Lady of Shalott

Like some bold seer in a trance,
Seeing all his own mischance—
With a glassy countenance
Did she look to Camelot

Ib pt iv

Heard a carol, mournful, holy,
Chanted loudly, chanted lowly,
Till her blood was frozen slowly,
And her eyes were darken'd wholly,
Turn'd to tower'd Camelot

Ib

Who is this? and what is here?
And in the lighted palace near Died the sound of royal cheer,
And they cross'd themselves for fear,
All the knights at Camelot
But Lancelot mused a little space,
He said, 'She has a lovely face,
God in his mercy lend her grace,
The Lady of Shalott'

Come into the garden, Maud,
For the black bat, night, has flown,
Come into the garden, Maud,
I am here at the gate alone,
And the woodbine spices are wafted abroad,
And the musk of the rose is blown

For a breeze of morning moves,
And the planet of Love is on high,
Beginning to faint in the light that she loves
On a bed of daffodil sky Ib. xxii. 1-11.

All night have the roses heard

The slender acacia would not shake
One long milk-bloom on the tree;
The white lake-blossom fell into the lake
As the pimpernel dozed on the lea;
But the rose was awake all night for your sake,
Knowing your promise to me,
The lilies and roses were all awake,
They sigh'd for the dawn and thee. Ib viii

Queen rose of the rosebud garden of girls Ib ix

There has fallen a splendid tear
From the passion-flower at the gate.
She is coming, my dove, my dear,
She is coming, my life, my fate,
The red rose cries, 'She is near, she is near,'
And the white rose weeps, 'She is late,'
The larkspur listens, 'I hear, I hear,'
And the lily whispers, 'I wait'

She is coming, my own, my sweet;
Were it ever so airy a tread,
My heart would hear her and beat,
Were it earth in an earthy bed;
My dust would hear her and beat,
Had I lain for a century dead;
Would start and tremble under her feet,
And blossom in purple and red. Ib x-xi

O Swallow, Swallow, flying South,
 Fly to her, and fall upon her gilded eaves,
 And tell her, tell her, what I tell to thee
 O tell her, Swallow, thou that knowest each,
 That bright and fierce and fickle is the South,
 And dark and true and tender is the North Ib 1 75.

O tell her, Swallow, that thy brood is flown:
 Say to her, I do but wanton in the South,
 But in the North long since my nest is made.

O tell her, brief is life but love is long,
 And brief the sun of summer in the North,
 And brief the moon of beauty in the South

O Swallow, flying from the golden woods,
 Fly to her, and pipe and woo her, and make her mine,
 And tell her, tell her, that I follow thee. Ib 1 90

Ask me no more the moon may draw the sea,
 The cloud may stoop from heaven and take the shape
 With fold to fold, of mountain or of cape,
 But O too fond, when have I answer'd thee?
 Ask me no more

Ask me no more what answer should I give?
 I love not hollow cheek or faded eye
 Yet, O my friend, I will not have thee die!
 Ask me no more, lest I should bid thee live,
 Ask me no more

Ask me no more thy fate and mine are seal'd
 I strove against the stream and all in vain
 Let the great river take me to the main
 No more, dear love, for at a touch I yield;
 Ask me no more,

Recollections of the Arabian Nights, 1

At Flores in the Azores Sir Richard Grenville lay, And a pinnace, like a fluttered bird, came flying from far away.

'Spanish ships of war at sea! we have sighted fifty-three!'

The Revenge, 1

Then swore Lord Thomas Howard "Fore God I am
no coward,
But I cannot meet them here, for my ships are out of gear,

And the half my men are sick I must fly, but follow quick

We are six ships of the line, can we fight with fifty-three? Ib

Then spake Sir Richard Grenville 'I know you are no coward,

You fly them for a moment to fight with them again
But I've ninety men and more that are lying sick ashore

I should count myself the coward if I left them, my Lord Howard,

To these Inquisition dogs and the devildoms of Spain' Ib 11

So Lord Howard past away with five ships of war that day,

Till he melted like a cloud in the silent summer
heaven,

But Sir Richard bore in hand all his sick men from the land

Very carefully and slow,
Men of Bideford in Devon,

And we laid them on the ballast down below,
For we brought them all aboard,

And they blest him in their pain, that they were not left to Spain,

To the thumbscrew and the stake, for the glory of the Lord

Ib 111

'Shall we fight or shall we fly?

Good Sir Richard, tell us now,

For to fight is but to die!

There'll be little of us left by the time this sun be set'
And Sir Richard said again 'We be all good English men

Let us bang these dogs of Seville, the children of the devil,

For I never turn'd my back upon Don or devil yet'

Ib 117

And the sun went down, and the stars came out far over the summer sea,

But never a moment ceased the fight of the one and the fifty-three

Ship after ship, the whole night long, their high-built galleons came,

Ship after ship, the whole night long, with her battle-thunder and flame,

Ship after ship, the whole night long, drew back with her dead and her shame

For some were sunk and many were shatter'd, and so could fight us no more—

God of battles, was ever a battle like this in the world before? Ib 118

'Sink me the ship, Master Gunner—sink her, split her in twain!

Fall into the hands of God, not into the hands of Spain!'

Ib 119

And the gunner said 'Ay, ay', but the seamen made reply

'We have children, we have wives,
And the Lord hath spared our lives'

Ib 121

And they praised him to his face with their courtly foreign grace,

But he rose upon their decks, and he cried
'I have fought for Queen and Faith like a valiant man and true,

I have only done my duty as a man is bound to do
With a joyful spirit I Sir Richard Grenville die!'

And he fell upon their decks, and he died Ib 121.

Much have I seen and known, cities of men
And manners, climates, councils, governments,
Myself not least, but honour'd of them all,
And drunk delight of battle with my peers,
Far on the ringing plains of windy Troy.
I am a part of all that I have met,

Gleams that untravell'd world, whose margin fades
For ever and for ever when I move

Moves all the labouring surges of the world Ib

What heart could have thought you?—

Past our devisal
(O filigree petal!)
Fashioned so purely,
Fragilely, surely,
From what Paradisal Imagineless metal,
Too costly for cost?

When Britain first, at heaven's command,
Arose from out the azure main,
This was the charter of the land,
And guardian angels sung this strain:

'Rule, Britannia, rule the waves,
Britons never will be slaves'

See, Winter comes to rule the varied year, Sullen and sad Ib Winter, 1 1.

Welcome, kindred glooms!
Congenial horrors, hail! Ib 1 5.

The redbreast, sacred to the household gods,
Wisely regardful of the embroidering sky,
In joyless fields and thorny thickets leaves
His shivering mates, and pays to trusted man
His annual visit Half afraid, he first Against the window beats, then brisk alights
On the warm hearth, then, hopping o'er the floor,
Eyes all the smiling family askance,
And pecks, and starts, and wonders where he is—Till, more familiar grown, the table-crumbs Attract his slender feet. Ib 1 246.

Studious let me sit,
And hold high converse with the mighty dead

You never enjoy the world aright, till the sea itself floweth in your veins, till you are clothed with the heavens, and crowned with the stars and perceive yourself to be the sole heir of the whole world, and more than so, because men are in it who are every one sole heirs as well as you Till you can sing and rejoice and delight in God, as misers do in gold, and kings in sceptres, you never enjoy the world
Centuries of Meditations Cent 1, § 29

The corn was orient and immortal wheat, which never should be reaped, nor was ever sown

The Men! O what venerable and reverend creatures did the aged seem! Immortal Cherubims! And young men glittering and sparkling Angels, and maids strange seraphic pieces of life and beauty!
 Boys and girls tumbling in the street, and playing, were moving jewels I knew not that they were born or should die, but all things abided eternally as they were in their proper places Ib

Contentment is a sleepy thing
 If it in death alone must die,
 A quiet mind is worse than poverty,
 Unless it from enjoyment spring!

Father of lights! what sunny seed,
What glance of day hast Thou confin'd
Into this bird? To all the breed

This busy ray Thou hast assign'd,

Through that pure virgin shrine,
That sacred veil drawn o'er Thy glorious noon,
That men might look and live, as glow-worms shine,

And face the moon,
Wise Nicodemus saw such light
As made him know his God by night

Ib The Night, I 1.

Most blest believer he!
Who in that land of darkness and blind eyes
Thy long expected healing wings could see
When Thou didst rise!

And, what can never more be done,
Did at midnight speak with the Sun!

Dear Night! this world's defeat,
The stop to busy fools, care's check and curb,
The day of spirits, my soul's calm retreat
Which none disturb!

Christ's progress, and His prayer-time,
The hours to which high Heaven doth chime

Ib I. 25.

There is in God—some say—
A deep, but dazzling darkness, as men here Say it is late and dusky, because they See not all clear

O for that Night! where I in Him
Might live invisible and dim!

Silex Scantillans The Night, l 49.

My soul, there is a country
Far beyond the stars,
Where stands a winged sentry
All skilful in the wars
There, above noise and danger,
Sweet Peace is crown'd with smiles,
And One born in a manger Commands the beauteous files

Ib. Peace.

If thou canst get but thither,
There grows the flower of Peace,
The Rose that cannot wither,
Thy fortress, and thy ease
Leave then thy foolish ranges;
For none can thee secure,
But One, who never changes,
Thy God, thy life, thy cure

Ib.

Happy those early days, when I
Shin'd in my angel-infancy
Before I understood this place
Appointed for my second race,
Or taught my soul to fancy aught
But a white, celestial thought,
When yet I had not walked above
A mile or two from my first love,
And looking back—at that short space—
Could see a glimpse of His bright face

Ib The Retreat, l 1

And in those weaker glories spy
Some shadows of eternity
But felt through all this fleshly dress
Bright shoots of everlastingness.

Ib l 13

O how I long to travel back,
And tread again that ancient track!
That I might once more reach that plain,
Where first I left my glorious train,
From whence th' enlighten'd spirit sees
The shady City of palm-trees.

Ib l 21.

Some men a forward motion love,
But I by backward steps would move,
And when this dust falls to the urn,
In that state I came, return

Ib l 29

They are all gone into the world of light,
And I alone sit lingering here,
Their very memory is fair and bright,
And my sad thoughts doth clear

Ib They Are All Gone

I see them walking in an air of glory,
Whose light doth trample on my days
My days, which are at best but dull and hoary,
Mere glimmering and decays.

Ib

Dear, beauteous death! the jewel of the just,
Shining nowhere but in the dark,
What mysteries do lie beyond thy dust,
Could man outlook that mark!

Ib.

He that hath found some fledg'd bird's nest, may know

At first sight, if the bird be flown;
But what fair well or grove he sings in now,
That is to him unknown

Ib

And yet, as angels in some brighter dreams
Call to the soul when man doth sleep,
So some strange thoughts transcend our wonted themes,
And into glory peep

Ib

I saw Eternity the other night,
Like a great ring of pure and endless light,
All calm, as it was bright,
And round beneath it, Time in hours, days, years,
Driv'n by the spheres
Like a vast shadow mov'd, in which the world
And all her train were hurl'd

I am, Sir, a Brother of the Angle Ib pt. I, ch. 1

It [angling] deserves commendations, it is an art, and an art worthy the knowledge and practice of a wise man Ib

Angling is somewhat like poetry, men are to be born so Ib

Sir Henry Wotton was also a most dear lover, and a frequent practiser of the art of angling, of which he would say, 'it was an employment for his idle time, which was then not idly spent . . . a rest to his mind, a cheerer of his spirits, a diverter of sadness, a calmer of unquiet thoughts, a moderator of passions, a procurer of contentedness, and that it begat habits of peace and patience in those that professed and practised it' Ib.

I remember that a wise friend of mine did usually say,

O my brave soul!
O farther farther sail!
O daring joy, but safe, are they not all the seas of God?
O farther, farther, farther sail! Passage to India, 9
Joy, shipmate, joy!
(Pleas'd to my soul at death I cry.)
Our life is closed, our life begins,
The long, long anchorage we leave,
The ship is clear at last, she leaps!
She swiftly courses from the shore,
Joy, shipmate, joy. Joy, Shipmate, Joy.

O Captain! my Captain! our fearful trip is done,
The ship has weather'd every rack, the prize we sought is won,
The port is near, the bells I hear, the people all exulting O Captain! My Captain! 1.

The ship is anchor'd safe and sound, its voyage closed

Who is the happy Warrior? Who is he That every man in arms should wish to be?
It is the generous spirit, who, when brought

Our birth is but a sleep and a forgetting
The Soul that rises with us, our life's Star, Hath had elsewhere its setting,
And cometh from afar
Not in entire forgetfulness,
And not in utter nakedness,
But trailing clouds of glory do we come
From God, who is our home
Heaven lies about us in our infancy!
Shades of the prison-house begin to close Upon the growing boy,
But he beholds the light, and whence it flows,
He sees it in his joy,

The youth, who daily farther from the east
Must travel, still is Nature's priest,
And by the vision splendid
Is on his way attended,
At length the man perceives it die away,
And fade into the light of common day. Ib v.

Behold the child among his new-born blisses,

Not for these I raise
The song of thanks and praise,
But for those obstinate questionings
Of sense and outward things,
Fallings from us, vanishings,
Blank misgivings of a creature
Moving about in worlds not realised,
High instincts before which our mortal nature
Did tremble like a guilty thing surprised
But for those first affections,
Those shadowy recollections,
Which, be they what they may,
Are yet the fountain-light of all our day,
Are yet a master-light of all our seeing Ib.

Our noisy years seem moments in the being
Of the eternal Silence truths that wake,
To perish never
Which neither listlessness, nor mad endeavour,
Nor Man nor Boy,
Nor all that is at enmity with joy,
Can utterly abolish or destroy!
Hence in a season of calm weather
Though inland far we be,
Our souls have sight of that immortal sea
Which brought us hither,
Can in a moment travel thither,
And see the children sport upon the shore,
And hear the mighty waters rolling evermore. Ib

Though nothing can bring back the hour
Of splendour in the grass, of glory in the flower,
We will grieve not, rather find Strength in what remains behind,
In the primal sympathy
Which having been must ever be,

In the soothing thoughts that spring
Out of human suffering,
In the faith that looks through death,
In years that bring the philosophic mind.

Intimations of Immortality, x.

Dear Child! dear Girl! that walkest with me here

She dwelt among the untrodden ways
 Beside the springs of Dove,
 A maid whom there were none to praise
 And very few to love

A violet by a mossy stone
 Half hidden from the eye!
 Fair as a star, when only one
 Is shining in the sky

She lived unknown, and few could know
 When Lucy ceased to be,
 But she is in her grave, and, oh,
 The difference to me!

She Dwelt Among the Untrodden Ways.

She was a phantom of delight
 When first she gleamed upon my sight,
 A lovely apparition, sent
 To be a moment's ornament,
 Her eyes as stars of twilight fair,
 Like twilight's, too, her dusky hair,
 But all things else about her drawn
 From May-time and the cheerful dawn,
 A dancing shape, an image gay,
 To haunt, to startle, and waylay

She was a Phantom of Delight

I saw her upon nearer view,
 A spirit, yet a woman too!
 Her household motions light and free,
 And steps of virgin liberty,
 A countenance in which did meet
 Sweet records, promises as sweet,
 A creature not too bright or good
 For human nature's daily food,
 For transient sorrows, simple wiles,
 Praise, blame, love, kisses, tears, and smiles Ib.

And now I see with eye serene,
 The very pulse of the machine,
 A being breathing thoughtful breath,
 A traveller betwixt life and death,
 The reason firm, the temperate will,
 Endurance, foresight, strength, and skill,
 A perfect woman, nobly planned,
 To warn, to comfort, and command,
 And yet a spirit still, and bright
 With something of angelic light. Ib.

The world is too much with us, late and soon,
Getting and spending, we lay waste our powers
Little we see in Nature that is ours,
We have given our hearts away, a sordid boon!
The Sea that bares her bosom to the moon,
The winds that will be howling at all hours,
And are up-gathered now like sleeping flowers,
For this, for everything, we are out of tune,
It moves us not, Great God! I'd rather be A Pagan suckled in a creed outworn,
So might I, standing on this pleasant lea,
Have glimpses that would make me less forlorn,
Have sight of Proteus rising from the sea,
Or hear old Triton blow his wreathed horn

I will arise and go now, and go to Innisfree,
And a small cabin build there, of clay and wattles
made:

Nine bean-rows will I have there, a hive for the honey-bee,

And live alone in the bee-loud glade

And I shall have some peace there, for peace comes dropping slow,

Dropping from the veils of the morning to where the cricket sings,

There midnight's all a-glimmer, and noon a purple glow,

And evening full of the linnet's wings

I will arise and go now, for always night and day
I hear lake water lapping with low sounds by the shore,

While I stand on the roadway, or on the pavements gray

I hear it in the deep heart's core

The Lake Isle of Innisfree.

The wind blows out of the gates of the day,

The wind blows over the lonely of heart,

And the lonely of heart is withered away

Who dreamed that beauty passes like a dream?

For these red lips, with all their mournful pride,

Mournful that no new wonder may betide,

Troy passed away in one high funeral gleam,

And Usna's children died.

We and the labouring world are passing by

Amid men's souls, that waver and give place

Like the pale waters in their wintry race,

Under the passing stars, foam of the sky,

Lives on this lonely face

Bow down, archangels, in your dim abode,

Before you were, or any hearts to beat,
Weary and kind one linger'd by His seat,

And seemed the greatness of the world in tears,
Doomed like Odysseus and the labouring ships
And proud as Priam murdered with his peers,

Arose, and on the instant clamorous eaves,

And all that lamentation of the leaves,
Could but compose man's image and his cry

When you are old and gray and full of sleep,
And nodding by the fire, take down this book,
And slowly read, and dream of the soft look
Your eyes had once, and of their shadows deep,
How many loved your moments of glad grace,
And loved your beauty with love false or true,
But one man loved the pilgrim soul in you,
And loved the sorrows of your grieving face,
And bending down beside the glowing bars,
Murmurs, a little sadly, how Love fled
And paced upon the mountains overhead
And hid his face amid a crowd of stars
